Section 1408. Recommendations as to Ordinances. The clerk of council shall furnish to the board for its consideration, upon introduction into council, a copy of all proposed resolutions and ordiances, and amendments thereto, which relate to the location or extent of public ways, grounds or open spaces, public buildings or structures, public utility franchises or zoning regulations or any other matter related to the physical development of the city. The proposed action of council shall not be taken until the board has been given the opportunity to consider the proposed action. If the proposed action will result in an addition or change in the master plan, the board shall hold a public meeting pursuant to public notice before giving its approval or disapproval. After the approval of the proposed action by an affirmative vote of three-fourths of the voting members holding office or after the lapse of the thirty days after the matter was referred to the board without any action by the board, council may proceed to pass the resolution or ordiance. If three-fourths of the voting members holding office shall disapprove of the proposed action, council may adopt the resolution or ordinance only by an affirmative vote of two-thirds of the councilmen holding office.

Section 1409. Control of Platting. All plans of streets or highways for public use, and all plans, plats and replats of land laid out in building lots which include streets, highways, alleys or other portions intended to be dedicated to public use or to the use of owners of lots fronting thereon or adjacent thereto, shall not be recorded or made a part of the street plan unless approved by the board. It shall be unlawful to receive or record any such plan in any public office if the plan does not bear evidence thereon of the approval of a majority of the board. The approval shall be deemed an acceptance of the proposed dedication, but shall not impose any duty upon the city concerning maintenance or improvement until the city shall have made an actual appropriation of the land. To effect the purpose of the department and particularly to avoid the congestion of population, the board may, by way of regulations concerning platting for the city or any district thereof, establish a minimum width and area of building lots, and may impose minimum standards of street and sanitary requirements as a condition precedent to the approval of plats.

Section 1410. Transfer of Lots in Unapproved Subdivisions. The owner of any land within a subdivision, the plat of which has not been approved by the board as provided in this Act, or duly recorded, or made a part of the street plan, shall not sell, lease or agree to sell or lease any lot in the subdivision in accordance with, by reference to, by exhibition of or by other use of a plat of the subdivision. Any such agreement, sale or lease may be set aside by the purchaser or lessee at his option.

Section 1411. Erection of Buildings. No building, or parts thereof, shall be erected on any tract, nor shall a building permit be issued therefor, unless the street giving access to the tract upon which such building is proposed to be placed shall have been accepted or opened as, or shall otherwise have received the legal status of, a public street or unless such street is a street shown on the master plan or on a plat of a subdivision approved by the board.

Section 1412. Zoning. Council shall have power to pass zoning ordinances in accordance with the provisions of this Article. The board shall recommend zoning regulations or changes or additions to any existing zoning regulations, including full texts of proposed ordinances with accompanying maps, for the city or for any district thereof as it may determine, pertaining to: the location, construction, height, number of stories, bulk and size of buildings and other structures; minimum standards for housing; the percentages of lots which may be occupied; the setting back of building lines; the sizes of yards, courts and other open spaces; and the location, use and occupancy of buildings, structures and land for trade, industry, residence, recreation, public activities or other purposes. Prior to any recommendations, the board shall hold public hearings pursuant to public notice. Council may not pass zoning ordinances except in the manner provided herein for the adoption of the master plan.

Section 1413. Reservations of Locations for Future Acquisition. The board shall have power, after the adoption of the master plan, to cause to be made surveys for the exact locations of new public grounds or open spaces or public buildings or structures in the city, and to make a plat of the area or district thus surveyed showing the land which it recommends be reserved for future acquisition by the city. The board before approving any such reservation shall hold a public hearing pursuant to public notice. Such a reservation, approved by the board and by council, and made a part of the master plan in accordance with this Act, shall be effective for ten years from the date of the approval by council. The reservation shall not be considered a taking of the land unless the city makes an appropriation therefor. At the expiration of ten years, a reservation shall be removed from the master plan. Before that time a reservation may be removed in the manner provided herein for changes in the master plan. To preserve the master plan, no permit shall be issued for the construction or alteration of any building or structure on any land during its reservation except as may be permitted by the board of zoning appeals as provided herein. It is not intended hereby to alter existing law as to the reservation of land for public ways.

Section 1414. Board of Zoning Appeals. There shall be in the department a board of zoning appeals to consist of three persons, one person to be appointed by the planning board from its members or from the staff of the department, and two persons who hold no public office or public employment, to be appointed by the city manager. The members of the board of zoning appeals shall hold office for a term of one year starting with the first Monday in January. Each member who is not a staff member of the department shall receive $20.00 for each board meeting he attends. The members shall elect from their own number a chairman of the board. The chief engineer and surveyor shall act as secretary of the board without compensation. He shall not have the right to vote.

Section 1415. Powers on Appeal. The board of zoning appeals shall have power:

(a) to hear and decide appeals where a person alleges there is error in any order, requirement, decision or determination, which is particularly applicable to him, made by an officer in the administration or enforcement of the previous sections of this Article, or of any ordinance adopted pursuant thereto;

(b) to hear and decide special exceptions to, or interpretations of, the terms of those ordinances upon which the board is required to pass under the provisions of such ordinance; and

(c) to authorize, in specific cases, such permits for construction on reserved locations and such variance from the terms of an ordinance for the administration or the enforcement of this Article, as will not be contrary to the public interest, where, owing to special conditions, a literal enforcement will result in unnecessary hardship, and so that the spirit of the Article shall be observed and substantial justice done.

In exercising the above mentioned powers, the board may, in conformity with the provisions of this Article, reverse or affirm, wholly or partly, or may modify, the order, requirement, decision or determination appealed from, and may make such order, requirement, decision or determination as ought to be made, and, to that end, shall have all the powers of the officer from whom the appeal is taken.

Section 1416. Appeal Procedure. Appeals to the board of zoning appeals may be taken within a reasonable time, as provided by the rules of the board, by filing with the officer from whom the appeal is taken and with the board a notice of appeal specifying the grounds thereof. The officer from whom the appeal is taken shall forthwith transmit to the board all the papers constituting the record upon which the action appealed from was taken.

Section 1417. Effect of Appeal. An appeal shall stay all proceedings in furtherance of the action appealed from, unless the officer from whom the appeal is taken certifies to the board that a stay would in his opinion cause imminent peril to life or property. In such case, proceedings shall not be stayed, otherwise than by a restraining order which may be granted by the board, or by a court of record on application, and notice to the officer from whom the appeal is taken and on due cause shown.

Section 1418. Hearing. The board of zoning appeals shall fix a reasonable time for the hearing of the appeal, give public notice thereof, as well as due notice to the parties in interest, and decide the appeal within a reasonable time. At the hearing any party may appear in person or by agent or by attorney. The chairman, or in his absence the acting chairman, may administer oaths and compel the attendance of witnesses. Hearings shall be open to the public. In all hearings the board shall not be required to follow established rules or evidence of court procedure but shall seek all information and evidence bearing on the merits of the case. In every hearing the board shall keep a full and complete record including notes of testimony.

Section 1419. Court Review. Any persons jointly or severally aggrieved by any decision of the board of zoning appeals, or any taxpayer, or any officer, department, board or bureau of the city, may present to a court of record a petition, duly verified, setting forth that the decision is illegal in whole or in part, specifying the grounds of the illegality. Such petition shall be presented to the court within thirty days after the decision of the board. Upon the presentation of such petition, the court may allow a writ of certiorari, directed to the board, to review such decision of the board, and shall prescribe therein the time within which a return thereto must be made and served upon the attorney of the relator, which shall not be less than ten days and may be extended by the court. The allowance of the writ shall not stay proceedings upon the decision appealed from, but the court may, on application, on notice to the board, and on due cause shown, grant a restraining order. The board shall not be required to return the original papers acted upon by it, but it shall be sufficient to return certified or sworn copies thereof, or of such portions thereof as may be called for by such writ. The return shall concisely set forth such other facts as may be pertient and material to show the grounds of the decision appealed from and shall be verified. No additional evidence shall be received by the court and the decision of the board of zoning appeals shall not be vacated or set aside except for error of law or violation of constitutional rights. The court may reverse or affirm, wholly or partly, or may modify, the decision brought up for review. Costs shall not be allowed against the board unless it shall appear to the court that it acted with gross negligence, or in bad faith, or with malice, in making the decision appealed from. All issues in any proceeding under this Section shall have preference over all other civil actions and proceedings.

Section 1420. Art Jury. There shall be in the department of city planning an art jury, composed of the mayor ex-officio and eight other members to be appointed by him for a term of four years except that the terms of the first eight appointees, in groups of two, shall be one, two, three and four years, respectively, as shall be indicated by the mayor at the time of their appointment. As to a structure to be used by a subdivision of any department, office or agency, the head of such subdivision shall also for the time being act as a member of the jury ex-officio.

Section 1421. Composition of Art Jury. The members of the jury, other than the mayor, shall be a painter, a sculptor, an architect, a member of the board of recreation and parks, an experienced business executive, and three persons, each of whom, at the time of appointment, shall be a member of the governing body or of the faculty of a corporation organized under the laws of this Commonwealth and conducting a school of art or architecture in the city.

Section 1422. Organization. The members of the jury shall elect from their own number a president and a vice-president to serve for one year. The jury shall have power to adopt its own rules of procedure, and to prescribe regulations for the submission to it of all matters within its jurisdiction. Five members shall constitute a quorum.

Section 1423. Powers.

(a) No work of art shall become the property of the city, by purchase, gift, or otherwise, unless the work of art or design for the same, and the proposed location of the work of art, shall first have been submitted to, and approved by, the art jury; nor shall any work of art, until so approved, be erected or placed in or upon or allowed to extend over, any building, highway, stream, lake, square, park, or other public place belonging to, or under the control of the city. The jury may, when it deems proper, also require a complete model of the proposed work of art to be submitted to it before taking final action thereon. The term "work of art," as used in this Article, shall include all paintings, mural decorations, inscriptions, stained glass, statues, reliefs, or other sculptures, monuments, fountains, arches, or other structures, intended for ornament or commemoration.

(b) No existing work of art in the possession of the city shall be removed, relocated, or altered in any way, without the approval of the jury.

(c) No construction or erection in the city of any building, bridge, or its approaches, arch, gate, fence, or other structure or fixture, which is to be paid for, either wholly or in part, from the city treasury, or for which the city or any other public authority is to furnish a site, shall be begun unless the exterior design shall have been submitted to the jury and approved by it before the final approval thereof by the officer or other person having authority to contract therefor.

(d) The approval of the jury shall also be required in respect to all structures or fixtures belonging to any person or corporation which shall be erected upon, or extended over, any highway, stream, lake, square, park, or other public place within the city.

(e) In deeds for land made by the city, restrictions may be imposed, requiring that the design of structures to be altered or erected thereon shall be first approved by the art jury. No structure which requires the approval of the jury shall be erected or changed in design without the approval of the jury. If the jury fails to act upon any matter submitted to it within 60 days after such submission, its approval of the matter shall be presumed.

Section 1424. Penalties. If any building or structure shall be erected, constructed, reconstructed, altered, repaired, converted or maintained, or any building, structure or land used in violation of this Article, or of any ordinance or regulation made under authority thereof, the person or persons, artificial or natural, knowingly so offending shall be subject to a fine of not more than $1,000.00, and not less than $100.00, to be recovered as fines and penalties of like amount are now recoverable by law. The fact of such violation being committed shall be prima facie evidence that it was knowingly done. In case of any such actual or threatened violation, the city may institute any appropriate action or proceeding to prevent or abate such unlawful erection, construction, reconstruction, alteration, conversion, maintenance, use or occupation, or to restrain or prevent any illegal act or business or use, under this Article, or under any such ordinance or regulation.

Section 1425. Board of Commerce and Industry. There shall be in the department of city planning a board of commerce and industry consisting of the mayor ex-officio and of six persons appointed by the mayor for a term coincident with that of the mayor. The members of the board shall receive no compensation. The mayor shall be entitled to vote and shall be chairman of the board. The board shall manage all activities of the city which relate to the promotion and development of the commercial and industrial interests of the city which shall include, without limitation, promotional activities in connection with any commercial museums, exhibition or convention halls; assistance to the city solicitor in proceedings concerning transportation rates; and the promotion and development of aviation and port activities. The board shall have the power to make rules and regulations, and to fix schedules of fees, for the purpose of permitting persons, firms or corporations to make incidental use of facilities which are devoted primarily to the commercial and industrial development of the city, provided, however, that such rules, regulations and schedules shall not be inconsistent with any ordinance which council may adopt.

ARTICLE XV. DEPARTMENT OF FINANCE

Section 1501. Director. There shall be a department of finance of which the director of finance shall be the head. He shall be appointed by the city manager. The director of finance without any additional compensation shall also be the receiver of taxes and shall continue to have the powers and duties now vested in that officer by law.

Section 1502 Powers of Department. Except as otherwise provided in this Act, the department shall have the care, management, administration and supervision of the financial affairs of the city including, without limitation, the making of assessments as provided herein, the preparation for the city manager of the annual current budget, the receiving and collection of all monies payable to the city subject to such allowances and penalties as may be fixed by ordinance, the preparation and sending out of bills payable to the city and the making of purchases which are to be paid for out of the city treasury.

Section 1503. Budget Bureau. There shall be in the department of finance a budget bureau the head of which shall be the budget director. The budget director shall prepare each year for the city manager information for the current budget for the ensuing fiscal year and perform all duties in regard thereto as the city manager may direct. He shall have the power, personally or by his representatives, to survey each department, office, or agency for the purpose of reviewing their budgetary requests. He may require any officer or employe to furnish information and to answer inquiries pertinent to such survey.

Section 1504. Purchasing Bureau. There shall be in the department of finance a purchasing bureau which shall:

(a) prepare for all purchases of tangible personal property to be paid for out of the city treasury, except as provided herein for general specifications for the construction of public buildings, plans and specifications to be submitted to the city controller for his approval to insure competitive bids so far as possible, before the solicitation of bids;

(b) make all such purchases;

(c) certify to the city controller that such purchases conform to the plans and specifications as to quality and quantity and substantially as to time of delivery; and

(d) manage all warehouses used for receiving and storing such purchases.

Any department, office, or agency which requires any tangible personal property, shall not have the power to make any such purchases but shall requisition the purchasing bureau and shall be charged therefor. The purchasing bureau shall be guided by the budget document in making purchases in anticipation of the needs of all departments, agencies and offices. Council may establish by appropriation a revolving fund not in excess of $25,000.00 to be used by the purchasing bureau in anticipation of the need of supplies.

Section 1505. Bills for Real Estate Taxes. Real estate tax bills for the ensuing year shall be mailed by the department of finance before December fifteenth and the tax shall become due on the first day of January. However, council may provide for the payment of such taxes in several instalments.

ARTICLE XVI. DEPARTMENT OF CITY CONTROLLER

Section 1601. City Controller. There shall be a department of city controller of which the city controller shall be the head. He shall be elected and shall give bond as now provided by law, and shall hold office for four years and until his successor shall qualify.

Section 1602 Deputy Controller and Employes. The city controller shall appoint a first and a second deputy controller. The first deputy controller shall have power to administer oaths and affirmations in all matters relating to accounts against the city, and in the absence or incapacity of the city controller to act, or if there is a vacancy in his office, shall have the powers and perform the duties of the city controller until he returns or his incapacity is removed or a new city controller assumes office, as the case may be. The city controller shall appoint such other officers and employes as may be provided for by ordinance.

Section 1603. Powers of City Controller. The city controller, in addition to all other powers and duties prescribed by statute or ordinance, shall have the following powers and duties:

(a) He shall maintain a complete and modern system of accounting for all departments of the city and for all offices and agencies, the expenses of which are paid out of the city treasury. The accounting system shall at all times show clearly the financial condition of the city. The city controller shall have complete supervision and control over all accounting and financial records pertaining to such departments, offices, and agencies. He shall have the power to require such additional and supporting accounting or financial records to be kept and to be rendered to his department as may to him seem necessary, and shall prescribe the nature, form, and extent of all such records, and may prohibit the keeping of any accounting and financial records not approved by him. The accounting system shall include a separate account for each specific item of appropriation made by council and every warrant shall state specifically against which item it is drawn. Each appropriation account shall show in detail the several appropriations made by council, the amount drawn on each appropriation item, contracts chargeable against it, whether written or oral, formal or informal, and the balance standing to the credit of the appropriation item.

(b) He shall furnish a monthly statement of expenditures to the budget director for each item in the budget, and to each department head for each item affecting his department. Such statements shall be furnished within fifteen days after the end of each month and shall be in such form that the unencumbered balances available for expenditure may be readily determined. The city controller shall also prepare such special reports on the costs of operating the departments, offices or agencies as may be reasonably requested by the city manager, or by the budget director or any department head with respect to matters under his supervision. The controller shall permit the budget director, or a representative designated for the purpose, to inspect the accounts and records kept by the city controller pertaining to all matters under the supervision of the budget director.

(c) He shall have supervision over the manner of making all expenditures including control of the form of all vouchers and warrants and the manner of payment thereof. He shall not certify a warrant, commitment, or contract which will involve the payment of money out of the city treasury in the current year, unless there are funds available for that purpose from the specific item of appropriation made therefor and unless he has charged the amount of the warrant, commitment or contract payable in the current year to the specific item of appropriation. If he makes a certification in violation of this Section, the liability of the city on the warrant, commitment or contract shall be null and void. The city controller and his sureties shall be indiivdually liable to the holder of any warrant certified by the city controller in violation of this Section and if any such warrant is paid by the city, the city controller and his sureties shall be individually liable to the city for the amount of the warrant.

(d) Whenever a warrant or claim shall be presented to the city controller, he shall have power to require evidence that the amount stated therein is legally due, and for that purpose may summon before him any officer, agent, or employe of any department, office or agency or any other person and examine him upon oath or affirmation relative to such warrant or claim.

(e) He shall audit the account of all departments, offices, and agencies, including the accounts of any board of directors of city trusts and all accounts of any other agency or organization to which council makes an appropriation. He shall submit annually to council, in such manner as may by ordinance be directed, a report of the accounts of the city, verified by his oath or affirmation, exhibiting the assets, liabilities, and net worth of the city at the close of the preceding year, and the receipts and disbursements of the preceding year, including the sources from which the receipts were derived and the manner in which they were disbursed. This report shall be published in pamphlet or book form.

(f) He shall, at the end of each fiscal year or oftener if so required by council, and also upon the death, resignation, removal, or expiration of the term of any officer who is paid out of the city treasury, audit, examine, and settle the accounts of such officer; and if he shall be found indebted to the city, the city controller shall state an account, and file the same in a court of common pleas of the proper county, together with a copy of the official bond of the officer, and give notice thereof to him or his legal representatives, and, if any person or persons affected thereby shall be dissatisfied with such settlement, he or they may appeal therefrom. The appeal, with his or their exceptions to the account as stated, verified by the oath of the person or persons appealing, shall be filed in the office of the prothonotary of said court within ten days after service of notice. The appellant shall, within ten days, enter security, to be approved by the court, to prosecute the appeal with effect and pay the costs and the debt and interest which may appear by the judgment of the court to be due to the city. The balance of account, as shown by the settlement filed as aforesaid, shall constitute a lien on real estate of the officer so indebted and his sureties, from the date of the filing thereof, which lien shall continue for the period of five years from the date of filing. A writ of scire facias to enforce the lien shall be issued thereon within six months, which shall contain a clause warning the sureties or the executors or administrators of the officer or of his sureties to appear and make defense, and the case shall thereupon be proceeded with to final judgment according to law. Notice of the audit shall be given by the city controller to the officer or his legal representatives before the final statement of the account, and if desired by such officer or his legal representatives, opportunity shall be given for a hearing. A copy of such notice, with an affidavit of the proof of service thereof, shall be filed with the statement of account as evidence of service of notice.

(g) He shall, at the end of each fiscal year, audit all the accounts of firemen's pension funds of the city which receive appropriations from the Commonwealth.

(h) He shall approve or disapprove as provided herein all plans and specifications prepared by the purchasing bureau and shall have the power to test and sample all purchases made by the purchasing bureau.

(i) He shall prepare annually a certificate of revenue and liabilities for current budget purposes and a financial report for capital budget purposes, as provided herein. He shall also prepare from time to time a certificate as to indebtedness as provided herein.

Section 1604. Legal Counsel. The city solicitor shall be the counsel for the city controller as provided in this Act. However, the city controller may whenever he deems it necessary choose and appoint special legal counsel to represent him in any legal proceeding. The total compensation for all such special counsel during any fiscal year shall not exceed $2,500.00.

Section 1605. Independent Audit. Council from time to time may require an independent audit to be made of all or any part of the accounts of the departments of the city and of the offices and agencies, the expenses of which are paid out of the city treasury. Such an audit shall be made by qualified public accountants who have no personal interest in the accounts to be audited or in the affairs of the officer or officers handling such accounts. The results of any such audit shall be made available for public inspection immediately after its completion.

ARTICLE XVII. DEPARTMENT OF CITY TREASURER

Section 1701. City Treasurer. There shall be a department of city treasurer of which the city treasurer shall be the head. He shall be elected and given bond as now provided by law, and shall hold office for four years and until his successor shall qualify, but shall not be eligible for the term next succeeding the one for which he may be elected.

Section 1702. Assistant Treasurer and Employes. The city treasurer shall appoint an assistant treasurer, who, in the absence or incapacity of the city treasurer to act, or if there is a vacancy in his office, shall have the powers and perform the duties of the city treasurer until he returns or his incapacity is removed or a new city treasurer assumes office, as the case may be. The city treasurer shall appoint such other officers and employes as may be provided by ordinance.

Section 1703. Powers and Duties. The city treasurer, in addition to all other powers and duties prescribed by law or ordinance, shall have the following powers and duties:

(a) He shall daily demand and receive from all persons any money received by them for the city. The city treasurer shall daily deposit all such monies in the name of the city in the banks or institutions designated by council, which shall give security as provided by law.

(b) He shall pay all warrants duly issued and countersigned. No money shall be drawn from the city treasury except by due process of law, or upon warrants signed by the heads of the appropriate departments or by deputies authorized to sign by such department heads or by such other persons as may be designated by ordinance, and countersigned by the city controller. All such warrants shall state the consideration for the same and the particular funds or appropriations to which they are chargeable.

(c) He shall make detailed reports daily to the city controller of all receipts and deposits and of all monies withdrawn from the treasury, and shall present and verify his cash account in such manner and as often as may be required by the city controller.

ARTICLE XVIII. BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF CITY TRUSTS

Section 1801. Members of Board. There shall be a board of directors of city trusts to consist of the mayor and city manager, ex-officio, with the power to vote, and thirteen persons appointed by the judges of the courts of common pleas of the county in which the city is situated. Each appointment to the board shall be made for a term of five years, and no appointee shall be eligible to succeed himself. However, this Section shall not affect the tenure of office of any member of a board now existing which is charged with the handling of city trusts.

Section 1802. Function of Board. The board of directors of city trusts shall have charge of all trusts, the administration of which is or shall be vested in the city. It shall have the same powers and duties as may now be vested in any existing board in the city charged with the handling of such trusts.

ARTICLE XIX. ASSESSMENTS

Section 1901. Bureau of Assessments. There shall be in the department of finance a bureau of assessments, the purpose of which shall be to assess uniformly and equitably property within the city. The head of the bureau of assessments shall be the chief assessor who shall be appointed by the city manager.

Section 1902. System of Assessments. The chief assessor shall cause to be installed and maintained a system for making assessments of real property, which system shall include, in addition to other records, lot and block maps, land value maps and permanent record cards, which maps and cards shall be open to public inspection.

(a) The lot and block maps shall show the dimensions of each separately assessed parcel of land, suitably identified by lot and block numbers.

(b) The land value maps shall show the value per front foot of a standard unit of depth of all land abutting on roads, streets or highways. The land value maps shall also show the value per square foot of those tracts of land used primarily for industrial, as contrasted to mercantile or residential, purposes and shall also show the value per acre of rural land.

(c) The permanent record cards shall set forth separately the factors affecting the value of each assessed parcel of land and the factors affecting the value of any building or other improvements thereon. As to land, the cards shall show, in addition to other data, frontage, depth, corner influence and alley influence. As to buildings and other improvements, the cards shall show, in addition to other data, the nature of the improvement, age, reproduction cost, depreciation and obsolescence.

Section 1903. Specialization in Assessments. In order to effect specialization in the work of making assessments, the chief assessor shall classify all property on a functional or other suitable basis and shall designate deputy assessors to make assessments for the types of property for which they are particularly qualified as determined by civil service examinations.

Section 1904. Full Value Assessment. The system of assessments provided in this Act shall be used to assess, rate and value all real property in the city according to the full actual value thereof, and at such rates and prices for which the same would separately bona fide sell. Each assessment shall be recorded on a permanent record card so as to show separately the value of the parcel of land and the value of the building together with other improvements thereon. An assessment may be changed from time to time during any year up to the completion by the chief assessor of the assessment rolls for that year.

Section 1905. General Assessments. After the first general assessment has been made pursuant to this Article, general assessments, with re-examinations of the properties, shall be made when council shall make appropriation therefor. However, a general assessment shall not be made oftener than once every three years and shall be made at least once every ten years. After certification of the assessment rolls as hereinafter provided, the first assessment and general assessments thereafter shall be published in book form. The books shall be posted and made available for public inspection at convenient places. The books may also be sold in such manner and at such price as the chief assessor shall determine. The money received from such sales shall be paid into the city treasury.

Sectional 1906. Horizontal Assessment Changes. After a public hearing pursuant to public notice, the chief assessor may order for the entire city a uniform horizontal percentage increase or decrease in assessments prior to the preparation of the annual assessment rolls, if he finds such a change warranted by valuation circumstances, except that no such change shall be made within two years of a previous horizontal assessment change.

Section 1907. Assessment Rolls. The bureau of assessments shall in each year prepare assessment rolls of all real property within the city showing each separately assessed parcel of real estate and, as of April first of that year, the valuation placed upon the land and the valuation placed upon the building together with other improvements thereon. The assessment rolls shall be completed before July first and shall be open to the public for inspection to and including July twentieth.

Section 1908. Notice and Publication. Public notice of the right to inspect the assessment rolls and of the right to file a petition not later than July twentieth for a change in assessment shall be given as soon as the rolls are open for public inspection. A similar notice, together with a notice of the change in assessment, shall be mailed prior to July first of the last known address of each owner whose assessment has been increased or decreased for a reason other than a uniform horizontal percentage change.

Section 1909. Petition for Assessment Changes. During the first twenty days of July, any person claiming to be aggrieved by an assessment may file with the bureau of assessments in the form prescribed by the chief assesor a written petition which shall specify clearly the grounds of the objection to the assessment. The petition shall have stamped thereon the date of its receipt by the bureau and shall thereupon become a part of the official records of the bureau.

Section 1910. Hearings on Petitions. The chief assessor personally shall conduct hearings on petitions for changes in assessments and shall complete such hearings before August tenth. He may increase or decrease assessments except that no change shall be made because of any change in valuation after April first. The reason for any changes in assessments shall be recorded by the chief assessor upon the permanent record cards. Notice of the disposition of the petition, together with notice of the right to file a written appeal with the board of assessment appeals before September tenth, shall be sent by the bureau to the address of the petitioner as shown on the petition.

Section 1911. Certification of Assessment Rolls by Chief Assessor. Before August thirty-first the assessment rolls as changed by the chief assessor shall be signed and certified by him and shall be delivered to the board of assessment appeals. At the same time he shall forward to the city manager a certificate showing the aggregate valuation of taxable real property in the city.

Section 1912. Board of Assessment Appeals. There shall also be in the department of finance a board of assessment appeals to receive, hear and dispose of all appeals from the final rulings of the chief assessor on petitions for changes in assessments.

Section 1913. Members of the Board. The board of assessment appeals shall consist of five members appointed by the judges of the courts of common pleas of the county in which the city is situated. The board shall elect one of its members to serve as chairman. The chief assessor shall be the secretary of the board. Members of the board shall hold office for five years except that the term of the first five members shall be one, two, three, four and five years, respectively, as shall be indicated at the time of their appointment. No member shall hold any other public or political office or employment. During the period of active duty from September fifth to December fifteenth each member shall devote full time to his work as a member of the board. Each member shall receive as compensation a per diem of $25.00.

Section 1914. Personnel. The chief assessor shall act as secretary of the board and shall furnish to the board necessary clerical assistants. The chief assessor and the clerical assistants shall serve without additional compensation.

Section 1915. Filing Appeals. Any person who has filed a petition with the chief assessor for a change in assessment may appeal from an adverse final ruling of the chief assessor by filing with the board prior to September tenth a written appeal under oath on an appropriate form to be provided by the board. The oath to the appeal shall be taken only before the secretary of the board or any member of the board, who are hereby authorized to administer such oaths. On each appeal there shall be endorsed the date of filing, and thereupon the appeal shall become a part of the official records of the board.

Section 1916. Hearing Appeals. The board of assessment appeals shall hold regular hearings on appeals from September fifth to November fifteenth, inclusive. All hearings before the board shall be public and shall be conducted in accordance with regulations prescribed by the board. In every hearing the board shall keep a full and complete record including notes of testimony. Persons shall be entitled to be heard in person or by attorney. Any member of the board is authorized to swear or affirm any person in such proceedings. The chief assessor and such deputy assessors as the board designates shall attend all hearings and furnish such information as the board may desire. In all hearings the board shall not be required to follow established rules of evidence or court procedure, but shall seek all information and evidence bearing on the merits of the case. The assessment which appears on the assessment rolls shall be deemed the correct and valid assessment unless the contrary is shown by clear and convincing evidence. The decision of the board together with the reason therefor shall be in writing. A copy of the decision shall be mailed to the appellant at the address shown on the appeal. The board shall hand down decisions on the appeals on or before December fifteenth and shall receive no compensation after that date for services in connection with decisions on such appeals.

Section 1917. Certification of Assessment Rolls by Board. On or before December fifteenth the assessment rolls, with such changes thereon as have been made by the board pursuant to written decisions, shall be duly signed and certified by the board and shall be delivered to the director of finance.

Section 1918. Appeals to Court. Within fifteen days after the mailing of a decision by the board, an appeal may be taken therefrom to the court of common pleas by the person who filed the appeal, by the chief assessor or by any person who objected before the board to a change in the assessment. If an appeal is taken by the chief assessor, he shall be represented by the city solicitor and the person who objected to the assessment by the chief assessor shall be named as respondent. In all other appeals the board shall be named as respondent and shall be represented by the city solicitor. The appeal shall not prevent the collection of taxes upon the assessment, but in case the assessment shall be changed pursuant to proceedings provided for in this Section, the difference in the amount of the tax shall be returned to, or collected from, the person or persons who shall have paid the tax. The appeal shall be by way of petition setting forth specifically the error of the board of assessment appeals, which petition shall be accompanied by a copy of the notes of testimony before the board and of the decision of the board both duly certified by the secretary of the board. Certified copies shall be supplied by the secretary of the board at cost and the money received therefrom shall be paid into the city treasury except that no money need be paid in the event of an appeal by the chief assessor. No additional evidence of the valuation of the property shall be received at the hearing on the petition and the decision of the board shall not be vacated or set aside except for error of law or violation of constitutional rights. If any decision of the board is vacated or set aside, a new hearing shall be held by the board in conformity with the order of the court and the decision thereon shall be appealable in the same manner as an original decision. Appeals from the final orders of the court of common pleas can be taken by any party in the lower court to the Superior Court or to the Supreme Court in the same manner as appeals are taken in other cases to the Superior or Supreme Court.

Section 1919. Board of Assessment Appeals to Serve as Board of View. Whenever hereafter a petition shall be presented to any court, judge or judges of the Commonwealth praying the appointment of viewers, reviewers or re-reviewers, or of a jury of view, or of a road jury, or of commissioners of view, with regard to property located in the city, the board of view shall be appointed from among the members of the board of assessments appeals.

ARTICLE XX. CURRENT BUDGET

Section 2001. Fiscal Year. The fiscal year of the city shall be the calendar year.

Section 2002. Certificate by City Controller of Revenue and Liabilities. On or before September first of each year the city controller shall furnish to the city manager a certificate of revenue and liabilities containing:

(a) his detailed estimate of receipts from each existing source from which receipts will be derived in the ensuing fiscal year including without limiation, revenue, reimbursements, refunds and taxes other than real estate taxes which will become due in the ensuing year, but no estimate of revenue from a source which existed throughout the last complete fiscal year at the same rate shall exceed the amount actually received during that year from that source;

(b) his estimate of revenue in the ensuing year from each new source which is provided by statute or ordinance, but his estimate shall not include or form capital transactions;

(c) an estimate as to the percentage of real estate taxes levied for the ensuing year which he is of the opinion will be collected in the ensuing year, but such percentage shall not exceed the percentage of real estate taxes levied for the last complete fiscal year which were collected during that year;

(d) the liabilities of the city which are fixed in amount and will be due and payable in the ensuing year, other than obligations to be paid from sinking funds, from other special funds or from the proceeds of bond issues, including, without limitation, payments to any sinking fund, any other required payments with respect to loans except as above provided, rentals, obligations on contracts and amounts due on judgments whether evidenced by writs of mandamus execution or otherwise.

(e) his detailed estimate of obligations which are not fixed in amount and will become payable in the ensuing year, such estimate to be not less than the average amount of such obligations for the last five complete fiscal years, and to include, without limitation, all obligations for tort claims, demolition of unsafe buildings and pension funds; and

(f) the surplus or deficit at the end of the last complete fiscal year and his estimate of the surplus or deficit for the current fiscal year.

Section 2003. Supplemental Certificates. The city controller may not revise his certificate of revenue and liabilities after its submission to the city manager except that he may, until the passage of the budget ordinance, certify estimated revenue from sources of revenue made available after his last certification. After the passage of the budget ordinance the city controller shall not certify additional revenue except that he may certify for appropriation by council, receipts from a source not included in any of his certificates of revenue and revenue received in excess of his certification of total revenue for that fiscal year.

Section 2004. Submission of Budget Document by City Manager to Council. On or before September fifteenth the city manager shall transmit to council in such form as council may request a budget document which, in addition to such other information as council may request, shall consist of:

(a) the certificate of the city controller as to revenue and liabilities without any change therein;

(b) the certificate of the chief assessor as to the aggregate assessed valuation of taxable real property for the ensuing fiscal year;

(c) his detailed estimates of all proposed expenditures to be made out of the city treasury during the ensuing year, showing in addition for each item, the appropriation for the current fiscal year and the appropriation and expenditures for the last complete fiscal year; and

(d) his budget message outlining a proposed fiscal policy, describing therein the important features with reference both to proposed expenditures and to anticipated revenue.

Section 2005. Basis for Estimate of Expenditures. The estimate of proposed expenditures shall be made up by the city manager from information and requests submitted to him by all departments, offices, courts, boards, commissions, directors of trusts, committees and other agencies whose expenditures are to be paid in whole or in part out of the city treasury. Such information and requests shall list in addition to other expenses the amounts of each type of supplies to be purchased. The information and requests shall be submitted to the city manager before September first. The city manager may in his discretion revise such requests in submitting his estimate of expenditures to council.

Section 2006. Consideration of Budget. Immediately after the receipt of the budget document, council shall consider it in public sessions, affording a reasonable opportunity to any person to be heard thereon. Such sessions shall not extend beyond October first.

Section 2007. Adoption of Budget. On or before October fifteenth, council shall adopt a financial program for the ensuing year by passing a single budget ordinance in which council shall:

(a) appropriate sufficient funds to meet (1) the liabilities for the ensuing year as certified by the city controller; (2) the amount which the capital budget authorizes to be expended out of revenue in the ensuing year; and (3) the estimated expenditures to be made out of the city treasury for the ensuing year, the character and amount of such expenditures to be determined by council except that there shall be included an amount not less than $15,000.00 for emergency purchases; and

(b) fix a tax rate and levy a tax, the proceeds of which, on the basis of the assessment certificate of the chief assessor and on the basis of probable delinquencies in the payment of such tax as estimated by the city controller, shall be sufficient, together with the revenue from other sources as estimated by the city controller, to meet the deficit for the current fiscal year, if any, as estimated by the controller and the appropriations provided for above.

Section 2008. Restriction of Appropriations. Council shall not (1) appropriate for the payment of any obligation incurred in the absence of or in excess of an appropriation therefor except as provided in this Act with respect to contracts extending beyond the fiscal year in which they are made; (2) list separately in any appropriation the salaries for positions which are included in the existing classification plans provided for in this Act; and (3) except by the affirmative vote of two-thirds of the councilmen holding office, make an appropriation for any budget item in excess of the amount estimated by the city manager in the budget document.

Section 2009. Neglect to Fix Tax Rate. If council shall fail to adopt a financial program on or before October fifteenth as provided herein each councilman shall have deducted from his salary $50.00 for each day after October fifteenth until a financial program is adopted.

Section 2010. No Expenditures Until Adoption of Financial Program. Except for payments of interest or principal of loans, and of sinking fund requirements, the city controller shall not countersign any warrant for expenditures in any year unless a financial program as herein provided has been adopted for that year.

Section 2011. Monthly Allocation of Expenses. After the adoption of a financial program the budget director shall establish, subject to the approval of the city manager, monthly allocations of the appropriations for expenditures. No expenditures shall be made and no obligations shall be incurred in any month in excess of the allocation for that month, without the prior consent of the budget director and the city manager.

Section 2012. Transferred and Additional Appropriations. Council shall not transfer all or part of any appropriation from one item of appropriation to another. The unexpended balance of any appropriation may be placed by council in an account to be called the reserve account if council by the affirmative vote of two-thirds of its members holding office shall pass an ordinance stating that the purpose for which the appropriation was made has been carried out or stating why the purpose cannot be carried out. Council may at any time appropriate for any lawful purpose any part of funds certified by the controller as additional receipts as provided herein and any part of the balance in the reserve account.

Section 2013. No Liability for Payment in Absence of Appropriation. No payment shall be made on any contract, written or oral, formal or informal, unless an appropriation for such payment has been made before the contract was made. No contract or warrant shall be made, issued or approved by any officer for any item of expenditure by any department, office, court, board, commission, committee or other agency, in the absence of, or in excess of, an appropriation for the item. However, a contract which provides for payments in the fiscal and in subsequent years may bind the city if an appropriation has been made to pay for so much of the consideration as shall be furnished to the city within the fiscal year in which the contract is made

ARTICLE XXI. CAPITAL BUDGET

Section 2101. Preparation of Budget. The city man ager shall annually prepare a capital budget on the basis of a comprehensive and farsighted study of capital projects. The term "capital project" shall include any plan for the permanent physical improvement of the city together with preliminary studies, surveys, property of a permanent nature and original equipment which have been, or should be, acquired in connection with the project, but shall not include any project for repaving or any project of which at least half of the cost is to be paid from the proceeds of assessments for benefits. The planning board shall determine conclusively what is and what is not a capital project.

Section 2102. Data for Budget. In preparing the capital budget, the city manager shall consider, among other things:

(a) the master plan in the form last approved by council;

(b) the report of the city controller to be furnished annually on or before August fifteenth to the city manager and to the planning board setting forth (1) the amount and the nature of each obligation authorized on account of each uncompleted capital project, and of each obligation incurred in pursuance of such authority up to July first; (2) the financial condition of the city together with comments thereon; and (3) advice as to the maximum amount and the nature of the debt, which in the opinion of the city controller, the city will be able to incur for capital projects during each of the ten succeeding fiscal years; and

(c) a detailed estimate to be furnished annually on or before August fifteenth to the city manager and to the planning board by the head of each department, office and agency, the capital expenditures of which are paid out of the city treasury, with respect to each capital project which is uncompleted or which the head believes should be undertaken within the ten succeeding fiscal years.

Section 2103. Submission of Budget to Planning Board. On or before September first, the city manager shall transmit to the planning board the capital budget which shall set forth clearly:

(a) as to each proposed capital project: a brief description thereof, the department, office or agency for which it would be constructed, the total estimated cost, the estimated completion date, the estimated cost for the ensuing fiscal year. the estimated economic life, the source of funds to meet such costs together with the nature, terms and maximum amount of obligations which may be issued therefor, and the fiscal year in which the city manager recommends that the project be undertaken;

(b) as to each uncompleted capital project authorized by council: a brief description thereof, the original estimated cost, the date of authorization, the amounts of indebtedness authorized, of bonds and notes outstanding, of obligations issued, and of each other liability outstanding, and the unencumbered balances of authorizations on July first, the amount of each liability estimated to be incurred during the balance of the fiscal year and the estimated costs required for completion stated year by year;

(c) recommendations for changes or abandonment of previously approved capital projects;

(d) a brief description of each capital project recommended in the several department, office and agency estimates but not recommended by the city manager to be undertaken, with his reasons for not recommending it;

(e) the maximum expenditures which in the opinion of the city manager the city may soundly make for capital projects during the ensuing fiscal year together with the recommended sources for meeting such expenditures, and detailed comments on the financial condition of the city; and

(f) such other information as the planning board or council may have requested.

Section 2104. Submission of Budget to Council. On or before September fifteenth, the planning board shall submit to council its revision of the capital budget prepared by the city manager. The revised capital budget shall set forth the information and recommendations received by the planning board with such additional information and changes as the planning board may see fit, except that the aggregate amount of the proposed expenditures for capital projects recommended for the ensuing fiscal year shall not exceed the maximum expenditures which in the opinion of the city manager the city may soundly make for capital projects during the ensuing fiscal year.

Section 2105. Consideration of Budget. Immediately after the receipt of the capital budget, council shall consider the budget in public sessions affording a reasonable opportunity to all persons to be heard thereon. Such sessions shall not extend beyond October first.

Section 2106. Adoption of Budget. On or before October fifteenth, council shall adopt a capital budget. The capital budget submitted by the planning board may be adopted with or without modifications by the affirmative vote of a majority of the councilmen holding office, except that any increase in any item of the capital budget as submitted by the planning board shall require the affirmative vote of two-thirds of the councilmen holding office.

Section 2107. Changes in Budget. After the adoption of the capital budget it shall not be changed except that a change recommended by three-fourths of the members of the planning board may be adopted by council.

Section 2108. Effect of Capital Budget. The adoption of the capital budget shall be an authorization and shall constitute an appropriation of loan funds for carrying out the approved projects in the manner provided therein except that if funds for any project are to be derived from new debt or from an increase in indebtedness, the authorization shall not constitute an appropriation until the new debt or increase of indebtedness has been authorized in accordance with this Act. The current budget shall include an appropriation equal to the amount which the capital budget authorizes to be expended in that year out of revenue for capital projects. No contract or other obligation of the city in connection with the carrying out of any capital project shall be authorized unless the project is included in the capital budget as adopted by council and no contract or other obligation shall be binding unless and until an appropriation has been made therefor as provided in this Act.

Section 2109. Limitation on Loans for Projects. The amount of loans issued for capital projects included in the first capital budget adopted hereunder shall not exceed ninety-eight per centum of the amount authorized in the capital budget to be expended for the ensuing fiscal year. In each succeeding year the permissible percentage shall be reduced by two so that ultimately capital projects will be paid for wholly out of current revenue and no loans will be procured for capital projects. Notwithstanding the limitations in this Section, council may authorize indebtedness for all or part of the cost of any project which the planning board has estimated will cost more than $10,000,000.00 or of any self-liquidating project, and such costs shall be excluded in determining the amount of bonds which may be issued in financing the capital budget.

ARTICLE XXII. LOANS

Section 2201. Power to Incur or Increase Indebtedness. Subject to the limitations of the Constitution of this Commonwealth, the city may, from time to time, incur new debt or increase its indebtedness in such amount and in such manner as council may by ordinance authorize, but the passage of such an ordinance shall require the affirmative vote of two-thirds of the councilmen holding office.

Section 2202. Ordinance to Provide for Tax and to State Purpose. In any ordinance authorizing the city to incur new debt or to increase its indebtedness, except temporary loans in anticipation of revenue, council shall provide for the collection of an annual tax sufficient to pay the interest and also the principal thereof, as is now or may hereafter be required by the Constitution, and any such ordinance shall state the purpose for which the new debt or increase of indebtedness is authorized. If more than one purpose is stated, the ordinance shall specify the amount proposed for each purpose.

Section 2203. Councilmanic Loans. Subject to the limitation in amount provided by the Constitution, council may authorize by ordinance new debt to be incurred or the indebtedness to be increased, without the consent of the electors of the city. Public notice shall be given of any such ordinance before its passage, except an ordinance to authorize an emergency loan or a temporary loan in anticipation of revenue.

Section 2204. Electoral Loans. Council may in its discretion submit for the approval of the electors in the manner hereinafter provided, a proposal to incur or to increase the indebtedness of the city and any such new debt or increase of indebtedness approved by the electors shall be excluded in computing the amount of the indebtedness of the city incurred without the consent of the electors.

Section 2205. Procedure for Electoral Loans. In order to incur or to increase the indebtedness of the city with the consent of the electors whether such consent is necessary by law or deemed desirable by council, the following procedure shall be complied with:

(a) Certificate of City Controller. After the submission of a bill containing a proposal to incur or to increase the indebtedness, the city controller shall prepare and deliver to council his certificate showing the amount of indebtedness which the city has been authorized to incur, the amount of deductions therefrom allowed by law in computing the maximum indebtedness the city may incur, the resultant net indebtedness, the amount of the proposed new debt or increase of indebtedness and the amount of indebtedness which the city has not yet been authorized to incur but which it may be authorized to incur.

(b) Passage of Ordinance. The proposal to incur or to increase the indebtedness shall be passed as an ordinance as provided in this Article which ordinance, in addition, shall state that the proposal to incur or to increase the indebtedness shall not become an effective authorization until the electors shall consent thereto at a public election to be held on a date fixed in the ordinance.

(c) Fixing Date of Election. Council shall fix the date of the election which shall be the day of the next municipal, general or primary election unless there is insufficient time for the advertisement provided hereinafter or unless more than 90 days will intervene between the passage of the ordinance and such election.

(d) Notice. Council shall give public notice of the election once a week for four weeks. The notice shall contain a summary of the ordinance proposing the incurrence or increase of indebtedness and a copy of the certificate of the city controller.

(e) Election. The election shall be held at the places, during the hours, and under the regulations, provided by law for holding elections. All penalties for the violation of the said election laws shall apply to the electors and to the election authorities participating in the election. The question whether new debt shall be incurred or indebtedness increased as proposed in the ordinance shall be placed upon the ballot or voting machine in brief form, followed by the words "yes" and "no" with appropriate voting squares or vote indicators, and if the question shall be submitted at an election of public officers, it shall be placed below the groups of candidates or on a separate ballot.

(f) Election Returns. The returns of the election shall be made in the manner provided by law. If by the returns of the election it shall appear that majority of the electors voting thereon gave their consent to incurring new debt or to increasing the indebtedness as proposed in the ordinance, the ordinance shall ,as of the date of the certificate by the court of the result thereof, be effective to authorize the new debt to be incurred or the indebtedness to be increased. If, however, it shall appear that majority of the electors voting thereon did not give their consent, the ordinance shall be ineffective to authorize the new debt to be incurred or the indebtedness to be increased.

Section 2206. Change in Purpose of Indebtedness. No change shall be made in the purpose or purposes for which any new debt or increase of indebtedness has been or shall hereafter be authorized except by the affirmative vote of two-thirds of the councilmen holding office and, in the case of an electoral loan, by the consent of the electors obtained at an election to be held at the time and in the manner provided herein as to an election to incur or increase indebtedness. The notice of such an election shall contain a copy of the ordinance proposing the change of purpose and shall state the purpose for which the indebtedness was originally authorized.

Section 2207. Cancellation of Authorization of Debt. Whenever the city has been authorized to incur or increase its indebtedness, council by the affirmative vote of two-thirds of its members holding office may cancel the authority to incur or increase indebtedness and to the extent that the indebtedness has not actually been incurred or increased, the original authorization shall then be void.

Section 2208. Interim Loans Prior to Bond Issue. To meet payments as they become due in the course of construction of projects for which indebtedness has been authorized, council shall from time to time authorize the city treasurer to procure interim loans to be evidenced by notes or other forms of indebtedness which shall mature within two years after their execution and delivery. The treasurer shall procure the loans upon the best terms available after offering the opportunity to make the loan to every bank in the city and, in his discretion, to any other bank, financial institution, or other bidder. Such loans shall be payable at any time before maturity upon ten days' notice. They shall not be renewed. Before the completion of any project for which interim loans have been procured, bonds may be issued to pay interim loans and interest thereon. When any interim loan is about to mature, enough bonds shall be issued so that the proceeds will be sufficient to pay the loan and interest thereon. After the completion of the project, enough bonds shall be issued so that the proceeds will pay all unpaid bills, interim loans and interest incurred in connection with the project.

Section 2209. Authorization of Bond Issue. After the city has been impowered to incur or increase its indebtedness, bonds may be issued by its officers only pursuant to ordinance. Subject to the provisions of this Act, council may in any such ordinance fix the interest rate and the terms under which such bonds are to be issued.

Section 2210. Issuance of Bonds. Bonds shall not be issued by the city for less than par plus accrued interest thereon. Issues of bonds shall be sold only to the highest responsible bidder or bidders as determined by the city manager, city treasurer and city controller, after public notice given at least three weeks before the opening of bids, under such regulations as may be prescribed by ordinance. The city manager, city treasurer and city controller may reject all bids or any part of all bids if it shall be deemed for the best interest of the city so to do. The interest rate of bond issues offered for sale on any one date shall be named by the bidders in multiples of one-eighth of one per centum and need not be uniform for the entire issue, but must be uniform for any one maturity. Aftr the highest responsible bidder has been determined, so much of any issue of such bonds as the sinking fund commission has indicated at least two weeks before the opening of bids, that it may desire to purchase, shall be offered to the sinking fund commission at the same price. If the sinking fund commission does not accept the offer within three days the issue may then be sold to the highest responsible bidder or bidders. Every bond shall be given a date which shall not be more than six weeks after the date of sale nor more than six weeks before the date of sale.

Section 2211. Form, Execution and Terms of Bonds. The form of all bonds shall be prepared by the city solicitor. They shall be signed by the city treasurer and the city controller. Each issue of bonds shall be in serial form so as to mature in substantially equal annual or semi-annual installments, the last of which shall mature not later than fifty years from the date thereof, and not later than the estimated economic life of the improvement for which the bonds have been issued. The estimated economic life as determined and certified by the planning board shall be conclusive. The bonds, in the discretion of council, may provide that they are callable by the city at par on a date or dates stated therein. The city by the affirmative vote of a majority of the councilmen holding office may issue revenue bonds, and may issue refunding bonds the maturity of which shall not extend beyond the maturity of the bonds refunded.

Section 2212. Temporary Loans in Anticipation of Revenue. If cash shall be needed for the immediate requirements of the city before the receipt of revenue, council may authorize the city treasurer to procure temporary loans in the manner provided herein with reference to interim loans in an aggregate amount not exceeding at any time ten per centum of the receipts for that year other than from borrowings, as estimated by the controller. The loans shall be made upon notes maturing within that year and the notes shall not be renewable. Such loans may be procured only from January second to September first inclusive. No such loan shall be made from the loan funds or from trust funds or other special funds which may be created by the city. When such a loan is authorized, council shall provide for its repayment out of receipts in that year. The intention of this Section is that such loans shall be solely for the purpose of anticipating the receipt of revenue in the current year.

Section 2213. Emergency Loans. If the city manager certifies that there is an emergency necessitating additional appropriating power council by the affirmative vote of two-thirds of its members holding office may pass an ordinance stating specifically the nature of the emergency, making an appropriation to meet it and authorizing the city treasurer to procure one or more emergency loans in the manner provided herein as to interim loans. The aggregate amount of such loans remaining unpaid at any one time shall not exceed $2,000,000.00 Any such loan which will not be fully paid within the fiscal year in which it is procured shall be included by the city controller in his next certificate of liabilities and shall be paid out of the revenue of the year following such certification, before any expenses other than for debt service may be paid therefrom. No emergency loan shall be valid unless the provisions of this Section have been commplied with.

Section 2214. Sinking Funds. Whenever any debt shall be or shall have been created for which the Constitution of this Commonwealth requires a sinking fund to be established, the proceeds of the taxes levied for the payment of the principal and interest of such debt and all other money pledged or appropriated for the payment of the principal and interest of such debt shall be paid into the sinking funds of such city, and shall be inviolably reserved for, and applied exclusively to, the payment of the principal and interest of such debt.

Section 2215. Application and Investment of Sinking Funds. Whenever there shall be money in the sinking funds in respect to a particular debt in excess of the requirements for the payment, during the twelve months next ensuing, of principal maturing and interest due, such excess money shall be applied to the purchase and cancellation of such debt, but, if at any time it shall be impracticable or financially disadvantageous to purchase such debt, such excess money may be invested temporarily in bonds or other evidences of debt of the United States of America, to this Commonwealth, or of any county, city, borough, township, school district or other municipality or incorporated district of this Commonwealth.

Section 2216. Purchase of Outstanding Debt. Council may, at any time, authorize the purchase by the city of any of its outstanding debt, and any such debt so purchased shall be canceled.

Section 2217. Sinking Fund Commission. The sinking fund commission shall continue as now established by law.

ARTICLE XXIII. CONTRACTS

Section 2301. Contracts Only With Lowest Responsible Bidders. Except as provided herein with respect to emergency purchases, every contract providing for payments out of the city treasury or out of funds the expenditure of which is within the control of the city, shall be made under such regulations as may be prescribed by ordinance only with the lowest responsible bidder, after public notice if the payment is to be more than $300.00 and otherwise after reasonable notice. Bids shall not be invited until the plans and specifications have been approved by the city controller as provided in this Act. The city may reject all bids or any part of all bids if it shall be deemed for the best interest of the city so to do. The requirement as to the lowest responsible bidder shall not prohibit council from imposing conditions with reference to the terms under which the contract is to be performed. No contract shall be entered into or executed directly by council or by a committee thereof.

Section 2302. Emergency Purchases. An emergency purchase may be made only when authorized by the purchasing bureau. Such purchases may be made without requiring bids. A purchase shall be deemed an emergency purchase only if the purchase is immediately necessary to prevent loss of public property or to avoid serious inconvenience to the public. Council may by ordinance restrict or limit the power to make emergency purchases.

Section 2303. Form of Contracts. No contract shall bind the city unless it is in writing and prepared or approved by the city solicitor. Every contract shall contain a provision that it is subject to the provisions of this Act and that the liability of the city thereon, except as otherwise specifically provided in this Act, shall be limited to the amounts which have been appropriated to meet such liability. This Section shall not apply to contracts of employment with persons in the civil service of the city.

Section 2304. Term. No contract, except for a capital project, shall provide for any payment by the city, or for the furnishing of the consideration therefor, later than one year from the date of its execution. However, a lease may be made by the city as lessee for a term not in excess of five years from the date of execution of the lease.

Section 2305. Execution. All contracts shall be made in the name of the city and, except as may be otherwise provided by council, shall be signed and executed by the city manager or by an officer designated by him. No contract shall be valid or enforceable until endorsed by the city solicitor and certified by the city controller as provided in this Act.

Section 2306. Contracts With Officers and Employes Prohibited. No contract providing for any payment out of the city treasury shall be made with any councilman, officer or employe of the city or with any officer or employe whose salary is paid out of the city treasury or with any firm, partnership or association of which any such person is a member or with any corporation in which any such person has a substantial interest. Any such person who knowingly conceals his interest in such a contract or who knowingly acquires an interest in any contract to which the city is a party, shall forfeit his office or position.

Section 2307. Installment Purchasing Prohibited. No purchase or contract to purchase by the city shall be made on an installment plan. Any such purchase or contract to purchase shall be void and unenforceable.

Section 2308. Paving, Repairing, Cleaning of Streets, Etc. Except as hereinafter provided, the city shall with its own force pave, repair and clean the streets, collect ashes, waste, rubbish and garbage and dispose of street sweepings and of ashes, waste, rubbish and garbage. The city shall have the power to lease, acquire, construct or cause to be constructed, a plant or plants to be used for, or in connection with, any of the purposes mentioned in this Section, and to lease the same to any person, association or corporation which shall contract in the manner provided herein to perform such work for the city. The city may contract for the paving of streets and for the collection of garbage. The city, after the affirmative vote of the councilmen holding office, may contract for the repair and cleaning of streets and for the collection of ashes, waste and rubbish if it is to the best interests of the city. For the purpose of determining whether it is to the best interests of the city to authorize the performance or any such work by contract, bids shall be invited pursuant to resolution by council before July first next preceding the year in which the work is to be done. Public notice of the invitation of bids shall be given once a week from July fifteenth to August fifteenth. A summary of the bids shall be included by the city manager in the budget.

Section 2309. Contract Price for Public Improvements Not to Exceed Estimate. Before the letting of any contract in connection with a capital project an estimate of the costs of the various parts of the project shall be made by the department having charge of the construction. The aggregate estimated cost shall not exceed the total cost as provided in the capital budget. No bid for any part of the work in excess of the estimate of the cost thereof shall be accepted. Any estimate or contract as to a part of the project may be limited to any unit or units or any part or parts, and upon the making of a contract therefor, the work on such unit or units, part or parts, may proceed to the extent of the funds available for the purposes thereof.

Section 2310. City Not Liable for Assessed Improvements. In all contracts for improvements the cost of which is to be paid by assessment upon the property abutting or benefitted, the city shall not be liable on the contracts or for any claim for the amount to be collected from such assessment, but the contractor shall look to the assessment for his compensation.

ARTICLE XXIV. OFFICERS AND EMPLOYES IN GENERAL

Section 2401. Continuation in Office. Any person holding an office shall continue to hold the office until his successor has qualified.

Section 2402. Vacancies. A vacancy in any office, the term of which is fixed by this Act, shall be filled only for the unexpired portion of the term.

Section 2403. Persons to Hold Only One Office. No person shall hold more than one office or position of profit under the city government, and no person shall hold any office or position of profit under the city, or any department thereof, while holding any other office or position of profit in or under the government of the United States, of this Commonwealth, or of any political subdivision thereof. However, nothing in this Section shall apply to the offices of notary public or of commissioner of deeds, or to any office in the military or naval service of the United States or of this Commonwealth, and nothing in this Section shall prevent persons from holding office ex-officio.

Section 2404. Residence Requirement of Elective Officers elected by the qualified voters of the city shall be residents thereof at the time of their nomination and election, and shall reside therein during their term of service.

Section 2405. Duties of Persons Receiving City Money. Every officer or agent receiving money for the city or money payable into the city treasury shall give bond for the faithful performance of his duty, and shall be required to make return to the city controller, under oath or affirmation administered by him, of each item of the monies received by him, once in every week, or oftener if council shall so direct, and to pay the amounts in his hands to the city treasurer daily.

Section 2406. Compensation by Salary and Not by Fees. No officer or employe of the city shall collect any fees or perquisities for his own use, but all such fees or perquisities, collectible under the law, shall be paid into the city treasury. Each officer or employe whose salary is paid out of the city treasury shall be paid semi-monthly by check to his order.

Section 2407. Pension Funds. There shall continue to be pension funds for the employes of the city as now provided by law.

Section 2408. Impeachment, Suspension and Removal.

(a) Municipal officers shall be liable to impeachment, suspension, and removal from office, for any corrupt act or practice, malfeasance, mismanagement, mental incapacity, or incompetency for the proper performance of official duties, extortion, receiving any gift or present from any contractor or from any person seeking or engaged in any work for, or furnishing material to, the city, or from any incumbent or occupant of, or candidate or applicant for, any municipal office, and for wilfully concealing any fraud committed against the city.

(b) Complaint in writing may be made to a court of common pleas of the proper county by not less than twenty qualified electors of the city, of whom shall write his signature, charging any municipal officer with any offense, setting forth the facts on which the said charge is founded, supported by the oaths or affirmations of at least five of the complaints according to the best of their knowledge, information, and belief. If in the judgment of the court there appears to be reasonable ground for such proceedings, the court shall direct the complaint to be filed of record, and grant a rule upon the accused, returnable on a day certain to appear and answer the same.

(c) If on the return day of the rule the court shall find sufficient cause for further proceedings, it shall appoint a committee of five competent and reputable citizens to investigate the charges contained in the complaint, who, having been first severally sworn or affirmed to perform the duties of their appointment with fidelity, shall have full authority, for that purpose, to examine the books of the office held by accused and any papers, contracts, letters, or documents filed therein, and examine witnesses under oath or affirmation, whose attendance the court shall enforce, if necessary by subpoena and attachment.

(d) It shall be the duty of the committee to make a written report to the court of the facts found by it, which shall be filed of record, accompanied by the testimony taken within three weeks next after its appointment, unless the time shall be extended by the court upon its application. In any stage of the proceedings, if the public interest so require, the court may, by an order to be filed of record in the case, suspend the accused from office until he shall be tried and acquitted.

(e) If the committee, or any three members thereof, shall find that any charge made as aforesaid is well founded, it shall in its report so state in specific form, and in such case the court shall cause a certified copy of the whole record with the specifications of the charges against the accused, to be transmitted to council, which shall be assembled within ten days thereafter, in special and open session, as a court of impeachment, and the members other than a councilman who is the subject of the charges shall be severally sworn to try and decide the same according to the evidence. A copy of the specifications shall be served on the accused, or left at his last place of residence, at least five days before the commencement of the trial, and he shall be entitled to be heard thereon in person or by counsel and to produce evidence in his defense, and the prosecution before council shall be conducted by the committee or by counsel appointed by it. The compensation of counsel and the cost of investigation and prosecution by the committee shall be provided for by ordinance.

(f) The president judge of the said court of common pleas, or, in his absence, an associate judge, thereof, shall preside during the trial, and decide finally all question of law and evidence that may arise in the case. He shall have the power to issue subpoenas for witnesses, and compel their attendance by attachment and the production of books, papers, and documentary evidence required or called for by the said court of impeachment, and to punish witnesses and others for contempt, as fully as any court of this commonwealth may lawfully do in any case.

(g) The decision of the court of impeachment shall be entered upon the record of its proceedings, and certified by the clerk of the court in which the complaint was filed. If the accused shall be found guilty on any of the specifications the said court of common pleas shall enter judgment accordingly, and declare the said office vacant.

ARTICLE XXV. POWERS OF THE CITY

Setion 2501. Specific Powers. The city shall be a body corporate and politic with perpetual succession and shall have the following powers to be exercised as now or hereafter provided by law:

A. Corporate powers. The corporate powers shall include the power to

(2) require the owners of property to lay, set or repair sidewalks, footways and curbstones or to pay therefor;

(3) require the owners of property to pay for paving streets, laying sewers and other abutting improvements; and

(4) plant and maintain shade trees, and to compel the abutting owners to pay therefor.

F. Additional powers. The city shall have the additional power to

(1) organize and reorganize all agencies of the city;

(2) fix the number and compensation of all officers and employes to be paid out of the city treasury;

(3) maintain and improve public health, and for that purpose to regulate and license occupations and activities, inspect buildings, remove and compel the removal of nuisances and remove and dispose of ashes, rubbish, waste and garbage;

(4) participate in the establishment of and deal with municipal housing and other authorities;

(5) make reservations of land for future acquisition for public use;

(6) create and maintain pension funds for persons paid out of the city treasury;

(7) make contracts with mutual fire insurance companies; and

(8) appropriate money and provide meeting rooms to any organization, society or institution carrying on a public function in the city.

Section 2502. General Powers. In addition to the specific powers above stated, the city shall have the power of local self-government and to pass ordinances and resolutions applicable throughout the whole city or only to specified portions thereof, which are not inconsistent with the provisions of this Act or of the Constitution or laws of the United States or of this Commonwealth:

(a) for the good rule and government of the city;

(b) for the order, protection and government of persons and property;

(c) for the benefit and preservation of the health, comfort, peace, prosperity and general welfare of the city and its inhabitants;

(d) to effectuate the purposes and provisions of this Act or of any other laws relating to the city; and

(e) to provide (1) for the enforcement of ordinances and resolutions by legal or equitable proceedings, (2) that violations thereof shall constitute misdemeanors, and (3) for the punishment of violations thereof by forfeiture or by a fine not exceeding $100.00 for any one offense, recoverable with costs, together with judgment of imprisonment not exceeding thirty days, if the amount of the fines and costs shall not be paid within ten days from the date of the imposition thereof.

Section 2503. Other Powers Saved. All existing powers of the city shall continue, whether or not mentioned herein, except insofar as they are repealed by this Act.

ARTICLE XXVI. HOME RULE

Section 2601. Local Self-government. The city shall have the right and power to frame and adopt changes in this Act which shall be solely applicable to it and to exercise the powers and authority of local self-government, subject however, to such restrictions, limitations and regulations as are provided in this Article or as may hereafter be imposed by the legislature. The city may as provided in this Act change or supersede any law relating to the self-government of the city.

Section 2602 Changes by Council. Any bill introduced in council for the purpose of changing this Act, or any other act which relates to the self-government of the city, shall not be passed until a public hearing has been had thereon pursuant to public notice.

Section 2603. Approval of Electors. Any ordinance passed by council for the purpose of changing this Act shall be submitted for the approval of the electors at the next general, special or primary election to be held not less than sixty days after the passage thereof by council, except that no such approval shall be necessary for a bill which provides for changes in Articles IV to XII hereof, inclusive.

Section 2604. Approval of Legislature. An ordinance passed by council which under this Article requires the approval of the electors shall become effective upon the approval thereof by the electors, except that a change in Article I, II, XVI, XVII, XXII, XXV or XXVI hereof shall not become effective until thirty-one days after the adjournment of a pending, or the next, session of the General Assembly at which it was possible to consider legislation in regard thereto, and then only to the extent to which such ordinance shall not conflict with an act or acts enacted at such session.

ARTICLE XXVII. CONSTRUCTION OF THIS ACT

Section 2701. Liberal Construction. The provisions of this Act shall be construed liberally in order to effect the intent and purpose of the Act.

Section 2702. Inconsistent Specific Laws. No provisions of existing laws even though they be specific shall be effective insofar as they are inconsistent with the provisions of this Act.

ARTICLE XXVIII. SCHEDULE

Section 2801. Continuation of Officers and Employes. Each member of the art jury and of the board of plumbing supervision now in office shall continue in office until his term shall expire. Members of the zoning board of adjustment, board of prison inspectors, board of revision of taxes and city planning commission shall not continue in office. All other officers and employes of any department, office or agency the expenses of which are paid out of the city treasury shall continue in office or employment but shall be under the jurisdiction of the agency to which their functions are assigned by this Act until transferred, superseded or removed according to law.

Section 2802. Civil Service. Any employe who holds a position which is in the classified service as herein defined and which was in the competitive class under the law in force immediately preceding the effective date of this Act, shall, if he has successfully completed his probationary period, become a classified service employe under the provisions hereof and continue in that position unless separated therefrom as herein provided. Any such employe who has not completed such probationary period at the time this Act takes effect shall retain his status as a probationary employe until the expiration of that probationary period or until one month after the effective date of this Act, whichever period is longer. Any employe who holds a position which is in the classified service as herein defined and which was in the labor class under the law in force immediately preceding the effective date of this Act, shall become a classified service employe under the provisions hereof and continue in that position unless separated therefrom as herein provided. Any employe serving as a provisional or temporary appointee at the time this Act takes effect shall be regarded as a provisional or temporary appointee under this Act and shall be subject to the provisions thereof. Any other employe holding a position in the classified service as herein defined, may become a classified service employe upon passing such non-competitive tests as the personnel director may prescribe. Such non-competitive tests shall be given as soon as practicable but in any event within six months after the effective date of this Act.

Section 2803. Continuation of Ordinances and Regulations. All ordinances and all rules and regulations of departments, boards, commissions and other agencies, which are in force in the city and are not inconsistent with this Act, including those passed and adopted in pursuance of laws hereby repealed, shall continue in force until repealed or amended.

Section 2804. Continuation of Rights and Liabilities. All existing rights, liabilites, actions and prosecutions shall continue as if this Act had not been enacted.

ARTICLE XXIX. EFFECTIVE DATES

Section 2901. Approval of Electors. The Act shall be submitted to the electors of any city now of the first class on the fifth Tuesday following its enactment. In any city which in the future becomes a city of the first class, the Act shall be submitted to the electors at the first general, special or primary election which is held after it has become a city of the first class. The question shall be submitted to the electors in the following form:

"Do you approve the new charter?"

The election shall be conducted in the same manner as other municipal elections. If the Act is not approved by a majority of the electors voting thereon, it shall again be submitted to the electors at an election to be held four years after the previous election.

Section 2902. Nominations and Elections. The provisions of this Act as to the nomination and election of the new council shall become effective upon the approval of this Act by the electors. The repeal of the laws as to the nomination and election of a mayor, council and a receiver of taxes shall become effective upon the approval of this Act by the electors.

Section 2903. Current Budget. The Article of this Act relating to the current budget shall become effective upon the approval of this Act by the electors except that (a) until January first, next after such approval the references therein to the city manager shall be deemed to be references to the mayor; (b) the aggregate assessed valuation of taxable property shall be certified by the board of revision of taxes instead of the chief assessor, but if the records of the board are not complete an estimate of the aggregate assessed valuation shall be made and certified by the city controller; (c) the provisions prohibiting any appropriation or payment on any contract providing for payments in absence or excess of an appropriation before the contract was made, shall not apply to payments for material furnished or services rendered to January first next after the approval of the Act by the electors and such payment may be made according to ordinance approved by two-thirds of the councilmen holding office; (d) the liabilities in the certificate of revenue and liabilities to be furnished by the controller may be reduced to the extent that any law permits the existing deficiency to be allocated or funded over one or more years after the next ensuing year; and (e) the provision relating to the transfer of appropriations shall not go into effect until after one year after the January first next after the approval of the Act by the electors. The repeal of the provisions of law pertaining to the finances and the budget of the city shall become effective upon the effective date of the provision or provisions of this Act by which they are superseded.

Section 2904. General Effective Date. Except as expressly provided above, the Act shall become effective in the city on the first day of January following its submission to the electors of the city and its approval by a majority of those voting thereon.

ARTICLE XXX. REPEALER

The following acts and parts of acts are hereby repealed absolutely unless otherwise indicated. The repeal of the first section of an act shall not repeal the enacting clause. Any agency abolished by the provisions of this Act shall remain in existence to the extent necessary to liquidate its affairs.

(Specific reference to statutes will be added in official copy sumbitted to General Assembly).

Ancillary Bill Establishing Civil Service in the County Offices

AN ACT

Regulating and improving the civil service of counties of the first class; defining certain crimes; imposing penalties; and repealing all acts or parts of acts inconsistent with this Act.

The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby enacts as follows:

Section 1. Civil Service Commission. Counties of the first class shall have a civil service commission consisting of three persons known to be in sympathy with the application of the merit system and of other features of modern personnel practices in the public service. The commissioners shall be appointed by the tax levying body of the county and shall hold office for a term of four years. The commissioners shall elect from among their own number a chairman. Where, however, a county contains a city of the first class having a civil service commission, the tax levying body of the county shall appoint the city civil service commission to act also as the county civil service commission and said commissioners shall serve wthout receiving additional compensation.

Section 2. Personnel Director. A special board of examiners designated by the commission shall hold competitive tests and establish an employment list for the office of personnel director, in accordance with the testing procedure and principles prescribed in this Act. The commission shall appoint one of the three persons highest on the list as personnel director. Any person appointed as director shall, at the time of his appointment, be familiar with and known to be in sympathy with the application of the merit system in the public service. Where, however, a county contains a city of the first class having a personnel director for its civil service, the commission shall appoint said personnel director to act also as the personnel director of the civil service of the county and he shall so serve without receiving additional compensation.

Section 3. Meetings. The commission shall hold regular meetings as fixed by rule.

Section 4. Powers and Duties of Commission.

(a) The commission shall:

1. after public hearing, adopt or change rules for the administration and enforcement of this Act, which rules shall have the force and effect of law one week after their adoption;
2. after public hearing, approve, with or without modification, such classification plans as may be recommended by the director;

3. make investigations requested by the tax levying body of the county or may make investigations requested by an employe or by a citizen, or of its own motion, concerning the enforcement and effect of this Act;
4. transmit to the tax levying body the report of the director with comments, criticisms, or suggestions for the more effectual accomplishment of the purposes of this Act; and
5. keep complete and permanent records open to public inspections, of all action taken at its meetings and hearings.

(b) Each member of the commission, the director and any other employe or agent authorized by the commission, shall have the power to administer oaths in matters pertaining to the work of the commission. The commission shall have power to secure by subpoena the attendance of witnesses and the production of documents and other evidence. Any judge of a court of record may upon application by the commission compel the attendance of witnesses, the production of documents and other evidence and the giving of testimony before the commission by attachment for contempt or otherwise in the same manner as the production of evidence may be compelled before such court.

(c) The commission shall have the power to make arrangements and agreements with other public personnel agencies for the use and exchange of services.

Section 5. Public Hearings. The term "public hearing" when used in this Act shall be construed to mean an opportunity, given after public notice of at least five days for any citizen or party in interest to be heard in public at reasonable length.

Section 6. Powers and Duties of Director. The director shall:

(a) attend all meetings of the commission, act as its secretary and record its official actions;

(b) prepare and recommend to the commission rules and amendments thereto and administer the rules adopted by the commission;

(c) appoint under the provisions of this Act an assistant director and all other employes of the commission;

(d) establish and maintain in card or other suitable form, a roster of offices and employes of the county showing for each the title of his position, the rate of compensation and every change in his status, including increases, sick and annual leaves with or without pay and other facts which the director may consider pertinent:

(e) prepare a classification plan as provided in this Act:

(f) prepare a compensation plan as provided in this Act;

(g) pass upon the qualifications of applicants for appointment to, or promotion in, the classified service; establish and maintain employment and re-employment lists of the various classes of positions; devise, install and administer service rating systems; arrange for and pass upon transfer; administer rules of the commission as to annual, sick and special leaves of absence, reinstatements and attendance; and see that layoffs, demotions, suspensions, removals, resignations, retirements and other separations are made in accordance with this Act;

(h) check and certify payrolls as provided in this Act;

(i) make on or before March first of each year an annual report to the commission concerning the administrative work of his office; and

(j) investigate from time to time the effects of the administration of this Act and the rules made thereunder and report his findings to the commission.

Section 7. Division of Service. The civil service of the county is hereby divided into the unclassified and classified service.

A. The unclassified service shall comprise.

(1) all officers named in the Constitution,

(2) the chief clerk of the county commissioners and one employe to each of the other officers named in the Constitution.

B. The classified serivce shall include all positions now existing or hereafter created in the service of such counties not specifically included in the unclassified service. The classified service shall be divided into the labor division and the competitive division. The labor division shall comprse all positions the work of which can be satisfactorily performed by unskilled laborers. The competitive division shall include all positions in the classied service other than those in the labor division.

Section 8. Classification Plan. The director shall, after consulting the appointing authorities, ascertain and record the duties of positions in the classified service, and establish classes giving a complete description of each class. He shall submit the plan to the commission within twelve months after his appointment. Each class in the plan shall include all positions which are sufficiently similar in respect to the duties and responsibilities thereof so that the same descriptive title may be used for each of such positions; the same requirements as to education, experience, knowledge and ability are demanded of incumbents for the proper performance of their duties; the same tests of fitness may be used in choosing qualified appointees; and the same schedule of compensation may be made to apply with equity under like working conditions to all positions in the class.

Section 9. Adoption of Plan. After reasonable opportunity to be heard has been given to employes, appointing authorities, and the general public, and after incorporating any changes it deems advantageous, the commission shall adopt the classification plan within three months after its receipt from the director. Thereafter the class titles so established shall be used in all personnel, accounting, budget appropriation and financial records relating to payment for personal services.

Section 10. Amendments to Plan. Additional classes may be established and existing classes may be changed or abolished upon recommendation of the director and approval of the commission after public hearing. Except as otherwise provided by this Act, no person shall be appointed to or employed in any position until it has been properly classified as herein provided and an appropriate employment list has been established therefor.

Section 11. Allocation of Positions. After adoption of the classification plan the director shall allocate every position in the classified service to one of the classes established by the plan. Thereafter as new positions are created or additional classes are established or existing classes changed, the director shall make such allocations or reallocations of positions as are necessitated thereby; provided, however, that where an amendment to the classification plan requires the reallocation of an existing position, the employe holding such position shall have reasonable right to be heard before final action is taken.

Section 12. Compensation Plan. The director shall, as soon as practicable after the adoption of the classification plan, submit to the tax levying body of the county a proposed plan of compensation showing for each class of position in the classified service, minimum and maximum salary rates and such intermediate rates as he deems desirable. After a reasonable opportunity to be heard has been given to employes, appointing authorities and the general public, and after incorporating changes it considers desirable, the tax levying body shall adopt the plan with or without modification within three months after receiving it, and may at any time change the compensation plan, but only in accordance with the classification plan. The director may transmit to the tax levying body of the county proposed changes in compensation plans and the reasons therefor.

Section 13. Rates of Pay. After the adoption of a compensation plan or changes in the schedule of compensation for any class, the future appropriations shall be in accordance therewith. The rate of pay for any employe upon appointment to a position in the class, shall be the minimum rate prescribed for that class, provided, however, that where the appointee is already in the classified service, his compensation after appointment shall be the same rate as that which he received before appointment or if no such rate appears in the schedule for that class, then his compensation shall be at the next higher rate in the schedule. Increases in rates of pay shall be to the next higher rate for that class and shall be granted by the appointing authority pursuant to rules of the commission, except that the rate of pay of any employe shall not be increased unless the tax levying body of the county has appropriated funds from which the increase may lawfully be paid, nor shall the rate of any employe be increased beyond the maximum of the class.

Section 14. Selection of Employes. Except as otherwise provided in this Act, appointments of persons to the classified service or promotions therein shall be from employment lists established as the result of examinations which are competitive, free and open to all persons, subject, however, to such limitations as may be specified by the director as to age, sex, citizenship, residence, health, habits, and moral character, and subject to the prerequisite qualifications included in the classification plan. The commission may, upon recommendation of the director, limit competition in promotion examinations to employes in the classified service who have served in a designated class or classes.

Section 15. Re-employment Lists. For each class where such action is appropriate, the director shall cause to be maintained a re-employment list consisting of the names of persons who have: occupied positions in the class, and have been separated from the service without fault on their own part; taken leave of absence and are ready to return to duty when a position is open; resigned in good standing and, with the consent of the appointing authority and of the director, have withdrawn their resignations; been removed and by direction of the commission have been given an opportunity for re-employment in some unit other than that from which they have been dismissed. The names shall be arranged for each class in the order of the average service rating of the employes for the last six months of service in the class. In the absence of service ratings, the order shall be as provided by the rules of the commission. After a name has remained on a re-employment list for one year it shall be removed from the list unless retained by action of the commission before the expiration of the one-year period.

Section 16. Employment Lists. The director shall have charge of preparing and giving examinations to establish employment lists whenever he deems such employment lists necessary. An examination may consist of a written or oral test, a demonstration of skill, or of any combination of these, and shall be of such character as fairly to test and determine the qualifications, fitness, and ability of competitors to perform the duties of the class of positions to which they seek appointment. In such examinations credit may be given for experience and education. No question in any examination shall relate to the race, religion, politics or labor opinion or affiliation of the candidate. The director may call on other persons to draw up, conduct, or mark examinations and when such persons are officers or employes of the county, it shall be deemed a part of their official duty to render such assistance without extra compensation.

Section 17. Notice of Examinations. The director shall give public notice of all examinations at least two weeks in advance. The notice shall be posted on a bulletin board in or near the principal office of the director and in place accessible to the public during business hours. The examinations shall be given such other publicity as the director may determine. Notices of examinations shall contain such information as may be provided by the rules of the commission.

Section 18. Marking of Examinations. The final rating of each candidate in any examination shall be determined by weighted averages according to the weight of each test as published by the director in the notice of the examination. Honorably discharged soldiers, sailors, and marines, who have served as such in the Army, Navy, or Marine Corps of the United States, or in the National Guard of the Commonwealth, shall be given full credit for their experience gained in such service, having due regard to the position for which the examination is held. Each candidate shall be sent notice by mail of his final rating and of his relative standing or of his failure to attain a place upon the list and the reason therefor. From the report of the examiners, the director shall prepare an employment list containing the names of persons arranged in order of excellence, who have been given at least such minimum rating as may be fixed in advance for the whole examination and for any one or more of the tests which make up the examination, and who are otherwise qualified.

Section 19. Combination and Cancellation of Employment Lists. Each employment list shall continue in force for a period to be fixed by the rules of the commission. The period may vary for different classes of positions, but may not be less than one year for any class. Any period before its expiration may be extended by the commission upon recommendation of the director. A new employment list for any class shall be combined with the existing list, if any, but such combination shall not prevent the automatic cancellation of any portion of such combined lists at the end of the period fixed by such rules, unless held in force as above provided. In no case, however, shall a person continue on an employment list for a period longer than two years. The director shall examine any employment list, or any part of an employment list, which has been in effect for one year and shall take such steps as he may deem necessary to determine whether the persons on the list are still eligible and willing to accept appointment. The director with the approval of the commission may at any time correct clerical errors occurring in the preparation of any employment list, and revise the list accordingly; but no person who has been appointed as the result of certification shall be displaced by such action. The commission shall have the power at any time after a public hearing to cancel the whole or any part of an employment list on account of illegality, mistake or fraud.

Section 20. Tests for Labor Division. Tests for positions in the labor division shall as far as practicable conform to the tests for the competitive division, but the commission may by rule provide for the registration of ordinary, unskilled laborers following such medical, physical or other tests as may be prescribed. The commission shall by rule determine the order in which the names shall be placed on the employment list and the number of names which may be certified.

Section 21. Appointment in the Classified Service.

(a) Whenever a vacancy in a permanent position in the competitive division of the classified service is to be filled, the appointing authority shall notify the director in writing. The director shall certify the names of the three persons willing to accept employment who are highest on a list consisting of the re-employment list for that class followed by the employment list for that class. If this does not give three names to the appointing authority and if the appointing authority is not willing to choose from less than three names, the director shall promptly conduct an examination to form or add to an employment list.

(b) A position shall be deemed to be permanent when it is specifically provided for in the annual financial program or when it is established in an office or institution according to law, and is likely to be needed continuously for a period of six months or more.

Section 22. Provisional Appointments. If the director shall fail to certify, in the manner herein provided, for an existing vacancy within thirty days after receiving a request, the appointing authority may, if necessary to prevent the stoppage of public business, but not otherwise, appoint provisionally any qualified person with or without holding any test. In all such cases the provisional appointee shall, before beginning work, fill out and forward to the director an application form. Each such appointment shall be effective only until an appropriate list has been established. Such an appointment shall not in any event continue for a total of more than sixty days. Successive provisional appointments of the same or different persons shall not be made to the same position. No credit shall be given to anyone in any examination for experience gained during a provisional appointment.

Section 23. Appointment or Rejection of Eligibles. Unless it is found to be in the interest of the public service not to fill the vacant position, the appointing authority shall, within a reasonable time fixed by the rules of the commission, make an appointment from the names certified by the director. All appointments shall be reported to the director. After a name has been rejected three times by an appointing authority in favor of others on the same employment list, such name shall not again be certified to that appointing authority. If an eligible shall refuse an appointment offered to him, his name shall be removed from the re-employment or employment list, if in the opinion of the director such refusal was based on improper or insufficient reasons.

Section 24. Temporary Employes. When because of the pressure of work, a position in the classified service must be established for a period of less than six months, the appointing authority shall request the director in writing to certify the name of a qualified person. The appointing authority shall state the cause of the extra work, the probable length of employment, and, unless the position has been classified, the duties which the appointee is to perform. The director may certify a qualified person with or without holding a competitive examination, for a period of employment not exceeding three months. Such temporary appointments shall not be renewed more than once. No credit shall be given to anyone in any examination for experience gained during a temporary appointment.

Section 25. Emergency Employes. When an emergency arises such that in order to prevent loss of public property or avoid serious inconvenience to the public, one or more persons must be immediately employed without taking the time to secure proper authorization, any appointing authority or any subordinate authorized by him may appoint any qualified person during the emergency for a period not exceeding ten days. Persons thus appointed shall be known as "emergency employes." Any employment condition of which the appointing authority had prevoius knowledge or of which by the exercise of due diligence he might have had previous knowledge, shall not be considered an emergency. Appointing authorities shall forthwith report to the director all emergency appointments. Such appointments shall not be renewed nor shall credit be given in any examination for experience gained therefrom.

Section 26. Probationary Period. No appointment to a position in the classified service from the employment list shall be deemed complete until after the expiration of a probationary period. The probationary period for each class of position shall be prescribed in the rules of the commission and shall in no case be less than two months nor more than six months. At the end of two months and any time thereafter until the expiration of the probationary period the appointing authority may remove any probationary employe from his position if, in the opinion of the appointing authority, the employe has shown that he is unable or unwilling to do his duties satisfactorily; provided, however, that the appointing authority shall furnish the director a statement in writing of the cause of the dismissal. In no case shall the total probationary period of successive appointees to any one position extend beyond six months from the date of the first appointment.

Section 27. Present Employes. Any person holding a position in the classified service, as herein defined, at the time this Act takes effect may become a classified service employe upon passing such non-competitive tests as the director may prescribe. Such non-competitive tests shall be given as soon as practicable, but in any event within six months after the effective date of this Act.

Section 28. In-Service Training. The director shall devise plans for and co-operate with appointing authorities and other supervising officials in respect to the conduct of employe training programs to the end that the quality of service rendered by persons in the classified service may be continually improved.

Section 29. Service Ratings. The director shall as soon as practicable after this Act takes effect, establish standards of performance and a uniform system of service ratings for each class of position. Such standards shall, as far as practicable, be based upon the quantity and quality of work done, and upon the conduct of the employe at work. Service ratings shall constitute grounds of increases and decreases in rates of compensation, for demotions and removals, and for promotions. Supervising officials shall submit to the director, upon his request, the ratings of their employes, but in no case shall a supervising official be compelled to prepare or submit such ratings oftener than once in six months.

Section 30. Transfer of Employes. An appointing authority may at any time transfer any classified employe under his jurisdiction from one position to another position in the same class. In every such case the appointing authority shall give prior written notice of his action to the director. A transfer of an employe from one class to another class for which a higher maximum rate of compensation is prescribed, shall be a promotion and may be accomplished only as herein provided for promotions. No person shall ever be transferred from a position in the unclassified service to a position in the classified service without examination as herein provided. The transfer of an employe to a position in another class for which a lower maximum rate of compensation is prescribed or any transfer which involves a reduction in compensation shall be a demotion and may be accomplished only as herein provided for demotions. Such demotions may be made upon the recommendation of the appointing authority or upon the petition of the employe, supported by such evidence as the director may require to show that the employe is not performing satisfactorily in the position he is holding, but is able to perform the duties of the class to which it is recommended or petitioned that he be demoted.

Section 31. Leaves of Absence. The commission shall by rule provide for annual, sick and special leaves of absence to employes, with or without pay, or with reduced pay. No employe shall be granted leave of absence except pursuant to such rules.

Section 32. Layoffs. Where a reduction in force is necessary because of changes in organizations, or because of stoppage or lack of work, the employes having the lowest service rating in the unit and in the class affected shall be laid off. In the absence of service ratings, the order of layoff shall be established by rules of the commission. The appointing authority shall promptly report to the director the name and position of any employe laid off together with the effective date of the layoff. The name of said employe shall then be placed upon the re-employment list for the appropriate class as herein provided.

Section 33. Suspensions. An appointing authority may for good cause suspend a classified employe for disciplinary purposes without pay for not more than thirty working days in any twelve-month period. The commission shall state in its rules what shall constitute good cause for suspension, but no one shall be suspended for racial, religious or political reasons or for labor union affiliations. Every case of suspension together with the reasons therefor shall fortwith be reported to the commission in writing, and such report shall be made part of the public records of the commission.

Section 34. Dismissal During Probationary Period. An employe dismissed during probation shall be considered permanently separated from such position but the director may, if he considers such action appropriate, place the name of the person on the employment list of the appropriate class for future certification to other appointing authorities.

Section 35. Resignations. The rules of the commission shall state what shall constitute resignation. Absence from duty without notice to the appointing authority for a period of three working days may be regarded by the appointing authority, pursuant to rules of the commission, as an abandonment of a position and in effect a resignation. No person who has voluntarily resigned from service shall be reinstated within six months from the effective date of his resignation. No resignation of any person in the classified service shall be effective unless accepted within fifteen days after the actual date of the making thereof. No person in advance of or at the time of his appointment to any position in the civil service shall sign or execute a resignation, dated or undated. No resignation shall be made or shall be valid unless it bears the signature of the person resigning and the date of the resignation in his handwriting. Any person who leaves the classified service may request the commission in writing for a public hearing stating his reasons for such a request. If on investigation the commission finds that the employe has been forced to resign against his will and without just cause or that his separation from service has been involuntary and without just cause, the commission shall grant such person at the earliest opportunity a public hearing as hereinafter provided in the case of removal or demotion and shall treat the separation as though it were a removal.

Section 36. Dismissals and Demotions.

(a) No person in the classified service shall be dismissed, reduced in pay or demoted in position except for just cause. Race or religion, or political, or labor union affiliation shall not constitute just cause. No person shall be dismissed, reduced or demoted, except as otherwise herein specifically provided, until he shall have been furnished by the appointing authority with a written notice setting forth the reasons for such action and allowed at least ten days to file a written answer. In every case a copy of such reasons and of the answer thereto, if any, shall be promptly furnished to the commission and shall be part of its public records.

(b) Within thirty days after receiving such records, the commission may on its own initiative, and shall upon the request of the employe, if filed within ten days after his dismissal, reduction or demotion, make such investigation as it may deem advisable either sitting as a body or through one or more of its members or through the director. The investigation and any hearings on the charges shall be for the purpose of determining whether the employe involved, by reason of his act or acts as charged, and his record of service, merits continuance in the service or whether he should be dismissed, reduced or demoted or otherwise disciplined for the good of the service. In all hearings the commission shall not be required to follow established rules of evidence or court procedure, but shall seek all information and evidence bearing on the merits of the case. All such hearings shall be open to the public and the employe involved shall have opportunity to be heard in his own defense personally or through counsel. Within fifteen days after the completion of an investigation or hearing, the commission shall make its findings and render its decision, which shall forthwith be certified to the appointing authority and forthwith enforced by him. Charges against any employe in the classified service asking for his removal for a violation of law or for a cause stated in the rules may be filed before the commission by any taxpayer. Such charges shall be investigated, determined and enforced in the manner provided in this Section, unless the commission shall decide that the charges do not warrant investigation, in which case the decision of the commission shall be made part of its public records.

Section 37. Certification of Payrolls. No payroll check shall be issued or paid except upon warrant of the controller. The controller shall issue no warrant for services except upon payrolls containing the names, titles, periods for which payments are to be made and rates of pay of the persons to be paid and bearing the certificate of the director that the persons on the payroll have been appointed and employed in accordance with the provisions of this Act and the rules made thereunder, and also bearing the certificate of the director that the persons on the payroll have been present and working or have been on authorized leave with pay, for the period specified. Any sums paid contrary to the provisions of this Act and the rules thereunder may be recovered from the officer or employe who violates such provisions and rules or from their sureties. Actions for such recovery may be maintained by a taxpayer of such counties. All monies recovered in an action brought under this Section shall be paid into the county treasury, except that the plaintiff shall be entitled to receive taxable costs of such action.

Section 38. Misdemeanors. Any person who wilfully, by himself or in collusion with one or more persons, shall defeat, deceive or obstruct any person in respect to his right of examination, appointment or employment according to this Act or to any rules prescribed pursuant thereto, or who shall, wilfully or corruptly, falsely mark, grade, estimate or report upon the examination or proper standing of any person examined, or certified, pursuant to the provisions of this Act, or aid in so doing, or who shall wilfully make any false representation concerning the same or concerning the persons examined; or who shall wilfully or corruptly furnish to any person any special or secret information for the purpose of either improving or injuring the prospects or chances of any person so examined, or certified, or to be examined or certified; or who shall personate any other person, or permit or aid in any manner any other person to personate him, in connection with any examination or request to be examined or appointed; or who shall furnish any false information about himself or about any other person in connection with any application or request to be examined or appointed; or who shall make an appointment to office or select a person for employment contrary to the provisions of this Act; or who shall wilfully refuse to comply with or to perform any of the provisions of this Act; or who shall wilfully or through culpable negligence violate any of the provisions of this Act or of the rules made pursuant thereto; shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be punishable by a fine of not less than $50 nor more than $1,000 in the discretion of the court. Any person holding a public office or position who is convicted under this Section shall be deemed to have vacated the office or position and shall be incapable of holding public office for a period of five years after the date of such conviction.

Section 39. Prohibition of Political Activity. No county officer or employe other than those elected by the people shall be a member of, or delegate or alternate to, any political convention or participate at any such convention except in the performance of his official duties; or shall serve as a member of, or attend the meetings of any committee of any political party, or take active part in political management or in political campaigns. No application, memorandum or other document other than registration and election records shall in any way indicate the political affiliation of any applicant to, or member of, the classified service. No appointed or elected officer or employe shall use his office to influence political movements or influence the political action of any other officer or employe of the city; or shall interfere with the conduct of any election or the preparation therefor at the polling place, or with the election officers while counting the vote or returning the ballot boxes, books and papers to the place provided by law for the purpose, or be within any polling place save only for the purpose of voting as speedily as reasonably can be done, or be within fifty feet thereof, except for purposes of ordinary travel or residence, within one hour preceding the opening of the polls for holding such election and ending when the election officers have finished counting the votes and have left the polling place for the purpose of depositing the ballot boxes and papers in the place provided by law for that purpose, excepting only police officers, who may temporarily approach or enter the polling place in order to make any arrest permitted by law or for the purpose of preserving order, and in each such case only long enough to accomplish the duties aforesaid, after which the officers shall at once withdraw.

Section 40. Prohibition of Assessments. No person shall solicit pay, give or receive in any public building of such counties any money or valuable thing for any political purpose whatever. No person shall orally or by written or printed communication directly or indirectly demand, solicit, collect or receive; or be in any manner concerned in demanding, soliciting, collecting or receiving any money or valuable thing or any assessment, subscription or contribution, whether voluntary or involuntary, from any officer or employe in the classified service for any political purpose whatever. No person in the classified service shall orally or by written or printed communication directly or indirectly demand, solicit, collect or receive; or be in any manner concerned in demanding, soliciting, collecting or receiving any money or valuable thing for any political purpose whatever. No person in the classified service shall pay or give any money or valuable thing to make any subscription or contribution, whether voluntary or involuntary, for any political purpose whatever.

Section 41. Dismissal and Disqualification. Any person in the service of the county who violates any of the provisions of this Act or the rules made thereunder shall be immediately separated from the service. It shall be the duty of the appointing authority who employed the offending person to dismiss him at once. Any taxpayer may bring suit to restrain the payment of compensation or the issuing of warrants for the payment of compensation of any such officer or employe, and as an additional remedy, any taxpayer may also obtain a writ of mandamus to compel the dismissal of such offending officer or employe. Any person dismissed under this Section shall for a period of five years be ineligible for appointment to any position in the civil service.

Section 42. Effective Date. This Act shall become effective January 1, 1940.

Section 43. Repeal of Existing Law. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this Act are hereby repealed.

Ancillary Bill Abolishing the Registration Commission

An Act to amend sections three and eight of the act, approved the thirtieth day of March, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-seven (Pamphlet Laws, one hundred fifteen), entitled "An act to provide for the permanent personal registration of electors in cities of the first class as a condition of their right to vote at elections and primaries and their enrollment as members of political parties as a further condition of their right to vote at primaries; prescribing certain procedure for the conduct of elections and primaries and the challenge and proof of qualifications of electors; and prescribing the powers and duties of citizens, parties, bodies of electors, registration commissions, commissioners, registrars, inspectors of registration, and other appointees of registration commission, election officers, municipal officers, departments and bureaus, police officers, courts, judges, prothonotaries, sheriffs, county commissioners, peace officers, county treasurers, county controllers, registrars of vital statistics, real estate brokers, rental agents, certain public service companies, persons, firms, and corporations operating vehicles for moving furniture and household goods, and boards, and boards of school directors; and imposing penalties," by providing that the registration commission is to consist of the county commissioners instead of appointed commissioners and by providing that appropriations to carry out the act are to be made in the same manner as other appropriations are made.

The General Assembly of the Commonwealth hereby enacts as follows:

Section 1. Sections three and eight of the act approved the thirtieth day of March, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-seven (Pamphlet Laws, one hundred fifteen), entitled "An Act to provide for the permanent personal registration of electors in cities of the first class as a condition of their right to vote at elections and primaries, and their enrollment as members of political parties as a further condition of their right to vote at primaries; prescribing certain procedure for the conduct of elections and primaries and the challenge and proof of qualifications of electors; and prescribing the powers and duties of citizens, parties, bodies of electors, registration commissions, commissioners, registrars, inspectors of registration and other appointees of registration commission, election officers, municipal officers, departments and bureaus, police officers, courts, judges, prothonotaries, sheriffs, county commissioners, peace officers, county treasurers, county controllers, registrars of vital statistics, real estate brokers, rental agents, certain public service companies, persons, firms and corporations operating vehicles for moving furniture and household goods, and boards of school directors; and imposing penalties," are hereby amended to read as follows:

Section 3. Registration Commission; Membership [, Bipartisan; Term of Office; Vacancies; Removal; Compensation; Chairman, Secretary]; Action by Vote of Majority of Members; Record of Proceedings [; Annual Report],—

(a) There shall be a registration commission [in and for each city of the first class], consisting of the county commissioners in each county in which there is located a city of the first class, which commission shall have jurisdiction over the registration of electors of such city under the provisions of this act.

[(b) The registration commission shall consist of five commissioners, who shall be qualified electors of the city, not more than three of whom shall be enrolled members of the same political party, who shall be appointed by the Governor, with the advice and consent of the Senate, and shall hold office for terms of four years, or until their successors qualify, unless sooner removed or otherwise disqualified: Provided however, That the terms of office of the commissioners, first appointed by the Governor under this act, shall commence upon the date of their appointment, and shall expire on the first Monday of January, one thousand nine hundred and forty-one. Upon the appointment by the Governor of the registration commission for any such city, the terms of office of the existing registration commission or commissioners of any such city shall terminate.

(c) The Governor shall fill any vacancy in any such commisison within ten days after the vacancy shall occur by appointing a qualified elector of the city to hold office during the remainder of the term of the commissioner whose place shall have become vacant.

(d) The Governor may, at any time, remove any commissioner for cause, and may appoint a duly qualified elector of the city as his successor for the remainder of his term.

(e) Each commissioner shall receive compensation at the rate of six thousand dollars per annum, except the chairman who shall receive six thousand five hundred dollars per annum.

(f) As soon after their appointment as may be, the members of each commission shall take the oath of office required by the Constitution of this Commonwealth, and shall organize by selecting from their number a chairman and a secretary, who shall not be members of the same political party.]

[(g)] (b) All actions of a commission shall be decided by a majority of all members, except as may be otherwise provided herein.

[(h)] (c) Each commission shall keep a record, in permanent form of all its proceedings [, and shall make an annual written report to the Governor].

(d) The commisisoners shall receive no compensation in addition to their compensation as county commissioners.

Section 8. Appropriations [; Unexpended Balances of Appropriations].—(a) The appropriating authorities of the city shall [appropriate annually, and from time to time, the funds that shall be necessary] make appropriations in the same manner as other appropriations are made, for the maintenance and operation of the commission and the carrying out of the provisions of this act [, therein including the payment of the compensation of the commissioners, counsel, and a sufficient number of registrars, inspectors of registration and other assistants and employes, and the fees of witnesses, as herein provided, and likewise for preparing in accordance with the direction of the commission, securing and distributing, or receiving and preserving, all street lists, registration cards, affidavits, vouchers, notices, account books, stationery and other supplies which the commission shall consider necessary for the purpose of this act, and for all other necessary expenses].

(b) The appropriating authorities of the city shall provide the commission thereof with suitable and adequate offices, properly furnished, for keeping its records, holding its public sessions, and otherwise performing its duties [, and upon failure to do so within sixty days after the effective date of this act, the commission may lease such office space as is reasonably required for the performance of the functions and duties under this act].

[(c) Any unexpended balances of any appropriations heretofore made by the appropriating authorities of the city for the purpose of carrying out any provision of any existing registration act, or the amendments thereto, shall be transferred to and made available for the commission hereby created or constituted, for the expense of carrying out the provisions of this act, and all monies required in addition to any original appropriation in the current year, or any other year, if it shall appear that extra sums are needed.]

Section 2. This Act shall become effective immediately upon its final enactment.

PART IV

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS AND INDEX

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

The Commission's task was to formulate a new government for the City and County of Philadelphia to serve best and most economically the people. Limited in its resources, it sought to set an example of economy while at the same time performing its complicated mission in a thorough, comprehensive, and conclusive manner. It is pleased to report that the work has been done at a cost of less than one-half that of a possibly less extensive project in the preparation of the new charter of our sister City of New York, adopted by the people and embodying, it may be noted, at the mandate of a great popular majority the P. R. system of voting for council.

The Commission could not have so thoroughly covered the ground and lived within its means had it not received the co-operation and assistance of several agencies of government, civic, educational and business organizations and public spirited individuals. The thanks of the Commission and it most hearty appreciation for the generous, unstinted and invaluable aid of all of these contributors, who have made this report possible, is hereby publicly expressed and officially recorded. Great service to the public weal has been rendered and such recognition as the Commission can express of the vital part so contributed to its work it mostly gladly records—

To the Board of Education of the School District of Philadelphia the Commission is indebted for its working and meeting quarters and for innumerable services and courtesies during the entire period of the Commission's activities. Without this contribution the work would have been necessarily substantially curtailed due to costs for quarters and services which the Board of Education has contributed to an official enterprise without undue burden to itself but effecting a substantial saving to the public pocketbook.

To Dr. Thomas S. Gates, President of the University of Pennsylvania, to Dr. Joseph H. Willits, Dean of the Wharton School, to Dr. Stephen B. Sweeney, Director of the Institute of Local and State Government, and to members of the faculty and staff of the University and especially of its Institute of Local and State Government, thanks and appreciation are expressed for their contributions of time, research and interest without stint, and for the loan to the Commission of a great part of the time of Mr. Rollin B. Posey, Executive Secretary of the Commission, whose valuable services would otherwise not have been availed of by the Commission. Very special mention must be made of the contribution to our work at every stage of it by Mr. Richard H. Lansburgh, of the Philadelphia Committee of the Pennsylvania Economy League. Through his long experience and thorough, detailed knowledge of the government of Philadelphia, he was able to help the Commission in a way which could not have been paralleled. His penetrating power of analysis and wise counsel, freely contributed to the Commission, have been invaluable. We express our appreciation with thanks.

To Dr. Justus M. Hull, Assistant to Mr. Posey on our staff, we likewise must render special thanks for fine, thorough and enthusiastic performance of his important duties. Also we express our appreciation of the competent and devoted work done by Israel Packel, Esq., and Murray H. Shusterman, Esq., of the Philadelphia Bar, in the drafting of the laws submitted under direction of our counsel, Mr. Shippen Lewis.

The Commission has met with such hearty response to requests for co-operation, advice and counsel, that it would find it would have to go to unfitting length in this document to give due credit to all those who have so generously and unselfishly contributed to its work, as for instance the Bureau of Municipal Research, from whose records, compiled at great cost through many years, we have freely drawn through its most capable staff headed by Dr. William C. Beyer, its Director. However, to all those listed below, to whom we are deeply indebted, we express our sincere thanks and appreciation, and point out their joint and several contributions as deserving public recognition and gratitude.

VALUATION OF PUBLIC UTILITY REAL ESTATE EXEMPT FROM TAXATION

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania,
Department of Internal Affairs

Harrisburg, March 29, 1939.

To the General Assembly,
Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Gentlemen:

Pursuant to House Resolution No. 29, of the Special Session of 1938, I herewith submit tabulation of real estate owned in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania by public utility companies, at present exempt from local real estate taxation.

This tabulation is based on valuations reported by municipal units, and contains the following information:

Valuation by Counties
Taxes for County purposes
Taxes for Poor purposes
Taxes for City, Borough and Township purposes
Taxes for School purposes

Sheet No. 1—A shows the amount of taxes for all purposes, on real estate situated in Borough and Townships.

Sheet No. 1—B shows the amount of taxes for all purposes, on real estate situated in Cities of each County.

Very truly yours,
THOMAS A. LOGUE
Secretary of Internal Affairs.

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania
Department of Internal Affairs
Bureau of Statistics

REPORT OF CONDITIONS UNDERLYING THE CRESSON STATE SANATORIUM

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania
Department of Mines

Harrisburg, April 19, 1939.

Hon. Ellwood J. Turner,
Speaker of the House,
House of Representatives,
Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

Dear Mr. Turner:

Pursuant to a resolution adopted by the House of Representatives on the 23rd day of March, 1939, I submit herewith a report of conditions underlying the Cresson State Sanatorium, located in Cresson Township, Cambria County, Pennsylvania.

The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania acquired, through deeds, all rights and title in and to the coal, remaining at time of purchase, in the E (or Upper Freeport) seam and underlying 43.82 acres, upon which the institution's principal buildings and improvements are erected, excepting and reserving unto the Argyle Coal Company, its successors and assigns, the free and uninterrupted use of certain haulageways for transportation in, through and along the E seam of coal.

The E (or Upper Freeport) seam has a thickness of about 4 feet and lies at a depth of about 170 feet below the surface. At some points beneath the institution's land and within the areas in which the Commonwealth possesses mineral rights the coal is intact; at other points it is about 55% mined; and at still other points it is completely removed. These latter areas will aggregate about 7 acres. None of the completely mined out territories, however, lie directly beneath the institution's important buildings. Reference is made here only to the Upper Freeport seam. The Commonwealth does not own any of the B (or Lower Kittanning) seam.

The mining was carried on by the Taylor & McCoy Coal & Coke Company and the Argyle Coal Company. It is my understanding that several years have elapsed since the final mining heretofore referred to was completed. Therefore, it is reasonable to assume that any further surface subsidence will be slow and of little consequence.

It should be understood, however, that I would not recommend the erection of a tall stack on the affected lands, nor would I recommend the erection of unusually large buildings which might extend partly over completely mined out territory, although locations may be found overlying the partially mined out areas where buildings may be erected with reasonable assurance that they will not be disturbed, provided sufficient coal is left unmined in the B (or Lower Kittanning) seam.

The B (or Lower Kittanning) seam is the next mineable coal seam below the Upper Freeport. It has a thickness of about 3 feet and lies at a depth of about 350 feet below the surface. The Lilly Coal Company is operating in the B seam and the coal is owned by C. A. Hughes & Company.

In order to afford a substantial foundation and avoid the possibility of disturbing the property of the institution, the coal underlying the said property in the B (or Lower Kittanning) seam, or as much as may be deemed necessary, should be purchased by the Commonwealth.

It is reasonable to assume that the broken strata overlying the robbed out portion of the E (or Upper Freeport) seam is now compressed to a point where its resistance is equal, or nearly so, to the weight of the overlying surface. To disturb this situation by the removal of B seam coal might result in a serious situation.

During 1912 ex-Governor John K. Tener appointed a commission, consisting of mining engineers, to study the mine cave question, with the view of devising some plan to prevent surface subsidence in the anthracite region. The commission, having access to a large amount of available data, included in its report several descriptions of what actually took place at a number of mining operations where the coal had been entirely removed. Some of these are here quoted:

> "Slushing seems to be the only satisfactory method yet adopted for surface support. In a case where this method was adopted the surface settled 5% of the seam thickness. The depth of the seam was 1,000 feet. Under like conditions the surface settled 15% of the seam thickness where the voids had been rock packed by hand. In cases where neither slushing nor rock packing was practiced, the surface settled as much as 65% of the seam thickness."

When the removal of pillars in a mine is started, local roof falls, consisting of slabs from a few inches to several feet in thickness, take place. As more pillar coal is removed other such falls take place and fill the space from which the coal had been extracted with loosely packed rock. Finally, as the removal of pillars goes on sufficiently, the overlying strata breaks to the surface and rests upon the loose rock beneath. From this point the surface subsidence will be slow and will continue until the loose rock here referred to is crushed to the extent that its resistance is equal to the weight of the overlying strata. This may require several years.

Considering the importance and character of the work carried on by the institution and the value of the property connected therewith, I submit herewith answers to the four questions contained in your resolution of March 23, 1939.

1. About 50% of the E seam coal, underlying 43.82 acres of the Cresson State Sanatorium grounds, has been removed. This is the area upon which the important buildings are erected. Underlying the remaining surface owned by the Commonwealth, which consists of approximately 396 acres, and to which the Commonwealth does not possess mineral rights, all of the E seam coal has been removed, excepting some pillars within an area of about 12 acres, which are yet to be mined.

2. The removal of coal up to this time has not endangered any of the buildings comprising the plant. Two of the smaller and least important buildings constructed over a completely mined out area show slight evidence of disturbance.

3. There are a few sites available on the property where the remaining pillars in the E seam are owned by the Commonwealth and where it would be safe to erect heavy buildings, provided sufficient B seam coal, to which the Commonwealth does not hold title, is left unmined.

4. In order to insure the future safety of the Cresson Sanatorium plant, it is, in my opinion, advisable that additional coal underlying the land of the institution be purchased by the Commonwealth. Just what portion of the remaining coal should be purchased is a question for consideration. The purchase of all the B seam coal underlying the acreage in which the Commonwealth is now in possession of mineral rights in the E seam would, of course, offer the greatest security without further concern. 50% of the B seam coal here referred to, if properly distributed in pillars, would be sufficient to afford ample surface protection. In this latter case, however, the State would be obliged to supervise and direct the mining in accordance with any agreement that might be entered into between the Commonwealth and the operator.

Very truly yours,

JOHN IRA THOMAS,
Secretary of Mines.

REPORT OF DEPARTMENT OF HIGHWAYS ON COAL AND CINDERS AS ANTI-SKID MATERIALS

Investigation of the Relative Effectiveness of Bituminous Slack Coal, and Anthracite Culm Coal as an Anti-skid Material in Comparison with Cinders

The investigation specified in the resolution adopted by the Senate of Pennsylvania on November 30, 1938, and concurred in by the House of Representatives on November 30, 1938, requesting the Department of Highways to make an investigation for the purpose of determining the advisability of purchasing bituminous slack coal and anthracite culm coal as an anti-skid materal to be used for highway purposes in time of sleet and snow, has been completed with the following data, analysis and test results being obtained.

In order to determine the relative effectiveness of Bituminous and Anthracite coal as anti-skid agents, skid tests were made in order to place the coal in comparison with the Departments' recognized anti-skid material, namely, cinders. The skid tests were conducted in the following manner. Ice was created by spraying water on the pavement with a distributor and allowing same to freeze. The coal and cinders which were previously treated with a light treatment of calcium chloride flakes, were applied independently of each other to the ice coated pavements by means of a mechanical cinder spreader. After the skid test was conducted on one type of material the test section of pavement was cleaned and new ice created for the test on the other type of material. Passenger cars and trucks of different makes and weights were driven over the test secions at variable speeds prior to applying their brakes. Measurements were taken of the distance the cars and trucks skidded forward and lateral. At the completion of the skid tests, water was applied to the treated icy surfaces, for the purpose of determining if the material floated, and also for determining the relative splashing of the material under traffic.

The information, data, analysis, and skid test results obtained on the two classess of coal comparison with cinders will be dealt with under separate headings.

Bituminous Coal Versus Cinders

The skid test made on the slack coal in comparison with cinders, was conducted on the abadoned section of concrete pavement located on Route 314, Cambria County, between Station 25+00 and Station 45+00. This section of pavement is located on an 8.68% grade.

The Bituminous slack coal used in the investigation was secured from the Nanty-Glo mine of the Springfield Coal Company. It is the product derived at time of mining, handling, and screening of the coal at the tipple, which consists of all particles passing a 1/2 inch square mesh screen. It is a marketable product, being used in blower type furnaces. The cost of this size coal in the vicinity of where the test was conducted, is approximately $2.00 per ton at the mine tipple.

The cinders used in the investigation were secured from the Gallitzin round house of the Pennsylvania Railroad. The cinders are donated to the Department by the railroad company free of charge.

The skid tests on the slack coal were conducted on the morning of February 1, 1939, which was a clear sunshiny day with an air temperature of 30° F. Prior to conducting the test. snow had to be removed from the pavement the day previous with a blade grader. Water was then applied, which froze and produced an ice coating of a milky color. The ice coating was very slippery with difficulty being encountered in controlling the cars when descending or ascending the test section. Slack coal was applied to the icy surface in one application, a trial skid test was made with the heavy car in which case it was found that the one application did not provide sufficient anti-skid properties, therefore a second application of coal was applied prior to making the skid tests.

The skid tests on the cinders were conducted on the morning of February 9, which was a cloudy day with a temperature of 26° F. Prior to creating the icy coating, the pavement was swept clean of all slack coal with a mechanical broom. The road was so slippery that difficulty was encountered in controlling the cars traveling at a moderate speed when descending the test section. The cars were unable to negotiate the up-grade climb. The cinders were applied to the icy surface in one application for the skid tests. The following comparative skid results were obtained:

Conclusion

The relative value of the bituminous slack coal as an anti-skid material can be summed up as follows:

1. The cinders are of less density, therefore are handled and hauled more easily.
2. The cinders flow out of the truck and spreader more evenly. One trip was required to spread the cinders, whereas two trips were required to spread approximately the same amount of coal.
3. The cinders were practically free of dust, while the coal was very dusty. If bituminous coal were to be used as an anti-skid material, the spreading crews would need respirators, and it would be almost impossible for approaching traffic to see the highway or pass the spreading crew.
4. The coal crushes under traffic more readily than cinders.
5. The coal floated on the icy road surface when water was applied with the distributor after the completion of the skid tests. When the water came in contact with the coal, an oily condition was produced which seemed to create an additional hazardous slippery condition. This oily condition permitted the cars from obtaining traction in ascending the test section.
6. The coal splashed under traffic more than cinders.
7. The cars and trucks skidded less on the cinders.
8. The coal does not have the power to imbed itself in the ice as cinders.
9. The coal would be more expensive than cinders as an anti-skid material. The cost of coal being approximately $2.00 per ton at the mine, whereas cinders are obtained at varying cost ranging from being free to approximately 25 cents per ton.

Anthracite Coal Versus Cinders

The skid test made on the culm coal in comparison with cinders, was conducted on the concrete pavement located on Route 550, Carbon County, between Station 149+19 to Station 162+61. This section of pavement is located on an 0.0 per cent grade decreasing to a 4.0 per cent grade. In making the skid tests the cars obtained their speed on the 8 per cent grade section with their brakes being applied on the 4 per cent grade section.

The anthracite culm coal used in the investigation, consisted of a combination of culm from the Hauto mine and the Arlington mine of the Lehigh Navigation Coal Company, Lansford, Pennsylvania. The culm was taken from banks which had been stocked a good many years ago, at a time when the Anthracite industry did not prepare coal finer than buckwheat size. The cost of the culm in stock is approximately 60 cents per ton, and at the pressen time very little of it is marketed.

The use of freshly mined coal, nearing the grading size of the culm, or near the grading size of cinders used in this investigation, would be approximately $2.00 per ton at the mines.

The cinders used in the investigation were secured from the Hauto plant of the Pennsylvania Power and Light Company. The cinders are donated to the Department by the power company free of charge.

The skid test on the cinders, was conducted on the morning of January 24, which was a cloudy day with the air temperature of 28° F. A light snow began falling after the ice coating was created which presented an appearance indicating that the test section was not slippery. The snow on the ice created a hazardous condition which made it very difficult in controlling the cars when descending or ascending the test section. The cinders were applied to the ice coated pavement in two applications for the skid test.

The skid test on the culm was conducted in the afternoon of January 25 which was a clear day with an air temperature of 18° F. The pavement was swept clean of the cinders from the previous days' test prior to creating the ice coating for this test. The ice coating created on the pavement was very slippery causing difficulty in controlling the cars when descending or ascending the test section. The culm was applied to the icy surface in three applications for the skid test. The three applications were necessary due to the culm clinging together in clumps, thereby clogging the mechanical spreader, which resulted in uneven distribution.

A skid test on the culm coal was repeated on the morning of February 24, which was a cloudy day with a light snow falling and an air temperature of 20° F. The snow began during the time the ice coating was being created on the pavement which presented a milky colored ice. The ice coating created was very slippery with difficulty being encountered in controlling the cars when descending or ascending the test section. The culm coal was applied to the ice coated pavement in two applications.

Conclusion

The relative value of the Anthracite culm coal as an anti-skid material can be summed up as follows:

1. The cinders are of less density, therefore are handled and hauled more easily.

2. The cinders flow out of the truck and spreader more evenly. The coal stuck together and came out in clumps during spreading.

3. The coal and cinders contained about the same amount of dust particles.

4. The coal crushes a trifle more under traffic than cinders.

5. The coal does not splash under traffic any more than cinders.

6. The coal does not have the power to imbed itself into the ice as readily as cinders.

7. The cars and trucks skidded less on the cinders.

8. The culm coal or freshly mined coal would be more expensive than cinders.

General Conclusions

As previous mentioned the cost of coal would be much more in excess of the price of cinders, or stone grit which is now used by the Department as anti-skid material

In using coal, it would have to be located in small stockpiles at strategic points along the highways, and at various locations in much larger storage piles similar to other abrasive materials. Since the coal would be of steam sizes, the question arises to just how long the coal would remain in stock before being stolen.

The results obtained indicates that the coal does not have the power to imbed or stick to the ice in order to provide sufficient traction necessary to prevent a great amount of skidding; more especially the Bituminous coal, when in contact with water produces an oily surface. Even a heavy coating of coal, if loose and unanchored would not make an ice coated pavement skid-proof. In fact, on hard ice in low temperatures, the coal may even have the same action as marbles and constitute a hazard instead of a help, and of course it is obvious that an excess amount of material would be blown by wind or whipped into the ditches by traffic.

In making this investigation it was kept in mind, that any benefits derived from the use of coal as anti-skid material, would not only be beneficial to the Department but would to some extent in a small way help to rehabilitate the mining industry.

The information and data obtained in this investigation proves conclusively that the coal is not as effective or as economic as cinders for anti-skid purposes.

Attached are sketches showing locations where the skid tests were conducted, along with comparative skid tests results, also a complied sheet showing the skid results obtained on both types of coal in comparison with cinders.

In order to exhibit the icy condition of the pavements prior to conducting the skid tests, and also to exhibit the action of the cars and trucks during the skid tests, moving pictures were taken.

REPORT FROM SECRETARY OF FORESTS AND WATERS ON VARIOUS ANGLES OF FLOOD CONTROL

May 17, 1939.

To the Honorable The House of Representatives:

In compliance with House Resolution No. 42 that the Secretary of Forests and Waters provide a report on various angles of Flood Control, the following is most respectfully submitted:

1. Your resolution stated that the General Assembly appropriated $5,000,000 for flood control and clothed the Department of Forests and Waters with broad authority in the use of this money;

2. That almost two years have elapsed and no substantial progress has been made in flood control;

3. That almost $2,000,000 of this fund is reported to have been spent or committed;

4. That there is a sincere public interest in the subject of flood control and an equally sincere interest in the proper use of the money appropriated for such an important purpose;

5. That it is reported that there is a conflict between the State and Federal Government with respect to impounding reservoirs now being built and to be built;

6. And that a recent change in the Federal Control Act is reported to have a serious effect on the interests of the Commonwealth.

7. Inviting comment on these statements you specifically asked for a comprehensive report on the condition of Flood Control funds;

8. Of accomplishment;

9. Of the effect of the operation of the amended Federal Flood Control Act on Pennsylvania's present and future interests and of such other related matters as will afford useful information.

The several matters referred to will be taken up in their order and be identified by the number preceding the foregoing paragraphs.

Item 1.

THE FUND. In all, $5,150,000 was appropriated to the Fund. The administration agent was the Water and Power Resources Board and it was clothed with broad powers, however under such restrictive provisions as should have protected the fund.

Item 2.

PROGRESS MADE. Undeniably, some progress has been made, although it has been toward the objective, rather than in control. (See report under Item 7—Accomplishments.)

Item 3.

EXPENDITURES. As of April 1, 1939, $1,033,247.54 had been spent. More than 30 per cent of this huge sum went for salaries, less than 15 per cent for wages, and more than 30 per cent for land purchases (almost all for dam sites and reservoir basin lands at Tionesta and Crooked Creek Dams. Fees accounted for $13,228.59. Automobile purchases cost $21,163.84. Traveling expenses of salaried personnel totaled $37,150.20, motor vehicle expenses $8,058.90 and miscellaneous equipment and furniture $37,140.74.

Following is given a table of expenditures by objects from time of organization of the Flood Control Bureau, following passage of the Appropriation and Flood Control Act, until April 1, 1939.

Note that the figures are given as of end of periods with the totals cumulative. (For commitments see report under Item 8.)

Item 3.

Commitments. Unpaid commitments on the Controller's books total $152,513.13, this being the contract price of the radio installation referred to under Flood Warning Plans—Item 8.

However, additional obligations and commitments totaling $521,965.00 are of record, $322.000.00 of this being committed on the Kingston-Edwardsville project and $158,000.00 on the Hanover Township project. The Board contemplates the need of $112,000.00 in the Wilkes-Barre district. Estimated requirements for salaries and expenses to June 1, 1939 are $30,000.00.

In all, $704,478.13 appears to be committed on flood control projects under way.

In addition, the Flood Control Fund appears to be involved to the extent of $850,376.00 for land purchases ostensibly for watershed protection as a means of flood control.

Land purchase agreements covering 251,657 acres, more or less, have been executed and delivered to private land owners.

The validity of such purchases and agreements is open to question.

First, because while the Flood Control Act authorizes the purchase of land for watershed protection, it has been held that—

"The extent to which land may be acquired, developed and utilized for watershed protection will depend upon whether or not such lands are adaptable and efficient for such purposes. This is a matter which is within the sound judgment and determination of the Water and Power Resources Board predicated upon advises from its engineers and other accredited sources."

Second, It has been held that—

"lands for watershed protection can only be acquired within the limits of a flood control district created by the Water and Power Resources Board as prescribed by the Flood Control Act and payments for such land can only be made out of funds allocated to that particular flood control district."

In my humble judgment no adequate engineering advices were procured upon which to predicate a purchase and no engineering report is of record in connection with any of the purchase agreements.

Further, of the one hundred or more such purchase agreements entered into, few if any, are in duly created flood control districts, therefor no monies are available for consummation of contracts.

Nevertheless, until these matters are cleared up, the Fund is involved to the extent of $850,376.00 as aforesaid.

It is significant—to say the least—that all of these purchase agreements, approximately one hundred in number, were executed within ten days of the advent of the James Administration. Indeed, some were hastily executed the very day before the January 17, 1939 Inauguration.

Thus, on the very evening of its regime, the Earle Administration executed almost a million dollars worth of land purchase agreements.

Further, These contemplated land purchases were scattered over a wide area, no parcel continguous with another, with no possible contribution to the protection of any one watershed or flood control district as contemplated in the Flood Control Act. Rather, the parcels are scattered over the entire central, south-central, north and north-central parts of the State.

SUMMARY:

$1,033,247.54	spent
704,478.13	committed
850,376.00	involved
$2,588,101.67	Total

Item 4.

PUBLIC INTEREST. There is, properly and with good reason, public interest in flood control.

Out of our experience of March 17, 1936, it would be quite impossible to discuss anything even remotely related to flood control from any but a very sympathetic and understanding standpoint. Misery loves company and I assure you that I shivered and hungered on that memorable occasion. Financially, I was nicked for damages equaling, at least, 25 per cent of the physical value of my newspaper plant equipment. Physically, I was marooned in my home, two families and two dogs huddled together in one room, the only one where there was any heat at all, from late Tuesday evening until Thursday morning. Food gave out except for a peck of onions. Fuel was exhausted and, from time to time, I had to wade three feet of chilly water outside gathering driftwood as it floated by on the errant river currents. A doghouse and our summer lawn furniture were consigned to the fireplace which was both heating unit and cook stove.

All communication was cut off and our children, away from home, were frantic at not being able to get any news. For one long day and a longer night, although the place of my business was only a little over a mile distant from my home, I had no news and pondered the terrifying thought that my efforts of a lifetime had been swept away.

Now, with this background, I am not reporting to you as an unsympathic stranger. My own city—Clearfield—was, and is, in as much danger as you. Indeed, fully two-thirds of our city was under water in the '36 Flood. All of Clearfield is in the valley while Pittsburgh has great areas on the hills. We'll not quarrel about this. I mention it only to impress the fact that my position is not one lightly taken, or taken because I do not know about floods.

Mingled with any prayer that we shall not be so afflicted and scourged again, and my hope that we may eventually gain a measure of relief from floods, is a determination that we shall not, out of sentiment, perversity and fear, wake up to find that we have paid a price we did not realize was in the contract.

In whatever we have done, or shall do, in this and other matters, please keep in mind that the great obligation of the Governor of this Commonwealth, Arthur H. James, and mine as well, as his Secretary of Forests and Waters, is that we shall protect the interests, rights and resources of this great State, and we cannot be expected to be a party to a surrender of any of these things which are valuable and which must be preserved for posterity as well as for ourselves. To do otherwise we should betray the trust reposed in us.

Our interest in proper use of appropriated monies should be no less than in flood control, and in other portions of this report I have given sufficient reasons for stopping unnecessary spending.

Conservation of monies, no matter in what fund, makes a direct contribution to the solution of present problems. Meeting of present problems fits us to better cope with problems of the future.

It is not too much to say that continued spending of the Flood Control Fund on the plan and scope in vogue on January 1st, would have exhausted the fund with no commensurate accomplishments.

Item 5.

FEDERAL RELATIONS. To date, as between the present State Administration and the Federal Government, there has been no actual conflict, no matter having come before the new Water and Power Resources Board for decision on points which might be controversial. Your State Government has, however, expressed its unwillingness to give up ownership and control of impounded waters in connection with Federal built dams and reservoirs. These expressions have been interpreted by Federal spokesmen, notably Congressman J. Buell Snyder of Pennsylvania, as a failure to cooperate on flood control. Congressman Snyder is Chairman of the National House Rivers, Harbors and Flood Control Appropriation Sub-Committee.

Following this effort to interpret our position to the disadvantage of Pennsylvania, the Congress of the United States has, in utter disregard of it, made its appropriation to Pennsylvania flood control projects.

Furthermore, an "Associated Press" news dispatch from Washington, date May 10, 1939, said:

> "Army engineers, with a tentative $18,676,000 Pennsylvania flood control budget for 1940 fiscal year, reported today they had heard nothing to indicate the State would interfere with the work program.
> "We haven't heard a thing' said an Engineer Corps officer, 'indicating that we can't go ahead, and until we do we are going ahead'."
> He added 'Before engineers would stop work there would have to be some step on their (the State's) part preventing us from going ahead. We have heard nothing at all on that' Engineers prepared a tentative Pennsylvania budget of $17,126,000 for the year starting July 1, based on a minimum appropriation of $110,000,000—the budget estimate and amount recommended by House Appropriations Committee. Engineers submitted to House committeemen a secondary list of expenditures they proposed making in the event Congress added $20,000,000 to the budget estimate.
> Pennsylvania was tentatively budgeted for an additional $1,550,000 on the secondary list or an aggregate of $18,676,000 . The secondary list carried $450,000, for work at Williamsport $250,000 for Plymouth, $200,000 for Franch Creek Reservoir, and supplemental amounts for projects on the priority list."

Items 6 and 9.

PENNSYLVANIA'S INTERESTS. The fundamental difference between the former Federal Flood Control Act and the Act as amended June 28, 1938.

Under the original plan the Federal Government would undertake and pay for the actual construction of flood control works, while the State and local communities were to provide necessary lands, easements and rights-of-way, to take care of damages, and to relocate railroads, highways, pipelines, buildings, and other facilities. It was on this plan that the huge State Flood Control organization was erected. It was the abandonment of this plan, by Federal law amendment, which made the dismantling of the State's Flood Control Unit advisable. Under the amended or changed Federal law, the Federal Government would pay the entire cost of all flood control works except dyke projects, in which cases the terms of the former Act would apply.

The original plan contemplated ownership of the dam or reservoir basin land, and therefore, ownership and control of the impounded waters, by the Commonwealth, whereas the Federal Act as amended contemplates ownership of such lands by the Federal Government.

Herein, a fundamental issue develops. If ownership and control of impounded waters follows ownership of the land under the waters, then in return for flood control we are giving up all interest in one of Western Pennsylvania's most valuable natural resources—all the water in the Allegheny River Watershed.

Under the amended Federal Act, the State may be reimbursed for all monies spent in dam flood control works such as Tionesta Creek and Crooked Creek, (probably $250,000) but only provided the State transfer title to all land in connection with such projects.

It is my impression that this Department is without authority to make such a transfer unless it is expressly authorized or directed to do so by the Legislature. And, indeed, I would reluctant to take such a step—forfeiting a natural resource—except with the consent of the people through their elected representatives. However, these matters are for the consideration of the Water and Power Resources Board. (see letter to Congressman Snyder.)

The Federal Government's insistance on ownership of reservoir basin lands is indicative of a power development angle to flood control. Probable development of hydro-electric power in the Pittsburgh chain of dams can only be interpreted as a threat to the jobs of thousands of coal miners of Wester Pennsylvania, therefore, Pennsylvania must retain such control over the impounded waters as will prevent their being used to the detriment of her coal miners.

The general status of State-Federal flood control relations, and the position we have taken is more clearly set forth in the following letter:

Harrisburg, May 1, 1939.

Honorable J. Buell Snyder, House Office Building,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Congressman Snyder:

My attention has been called to United Press story of April 29th., Uniontown, Pa., dateline, wherein you are reported to have said, "Pennsylvania stands to lose its 16 million dollar share of flood control money in 1940 because of its refusal to cooperate with the Federal Government."

I am amazed at such an assertion. It is not supported by the facts.

As you know, two dams—Crooked Creek and Tionesta—were under construction when Governor James took office. They are still under construction and the work has not been and is not being hampered in any way by the Pennsylvania State Government.

As you know, another dam has been placed under contract and under construction since the change of administration in Pennsylvania, and this project has not, in any way, been hindered by the Pennsylvania State Government.

What applies in Pittsburgh applies for the entire State. Not a single construction project has been stopped and not a single effort has been made to stop any contemplated construction.

Further, in the news story you are reported to have said the testimony of Secretary of Forests and Waters, G. Albert Stewart, before your committee "must be interpreted to mean that the State of Pennsylvania is not going along with the Federal flood control acts."

No basis exists for such an interpretation, indeed for such a conclusion. Determination of such problems as are presented in flood control works rests with the Water and Power Resources Board, as I pointed out in my testimony at Washington, and until that Board speaks, my majority action, I question the propriety of inferences being drawn because I, as the sworn protector of our State's most valuable natural resource, dare to speak out in protection of our mutual interests.

My dear Congressman, the most valuable natural resource of western Pennsylvania is her waters, all or practically all of which is in the Allegheny River and its tributaries. It is these waters it is planned to impound for flood control in a series of dams or reservoirs. To this plan, in principle, I have no objection. And, to this plan, in principle, I should imagine the Water and Power Resources Board will have no objection, save for such considerations as might be due communities which are called upon to make a sacrafice in order that Pittsburgh might gain benefits.

I am sure you, a Pennsylvanian, realize that the waters of the Allegheny River and its tributaries are the priceless possessions of our Commonwealth. Mark this well:—Pennsylvania wants only to retain what is hers by every right. There is every reason to believe that the Federal law contemplates a seizure of a state's natural resources under the benefaction of flood control. Surely you will not stand idly by and see your State penalized—Pittsburgh especially—because one of your State's public officials does his plain duty.

At the Washington hearing a great deal was said about title to land. Permit me to recall, in part, the testimony:—

"Mr. Terry. You spoke about the policy of the Water and Power Resources Board, which has not been formulated as to whether they would be willing to pass title to the Federal Government in order to be reimbursed. . . . .

You, as an individual member of that board, probably know what your attitude would be on that. Are you in favor of that or against it?

Mr. Stewart. . . That will depend on what can be worked out with respect to retaining ownership and control by Pennsylvania of the waters to be impounded in these dams. We consider that these waters are a natural resource of Pennsylvania.

Mr. Terry. If you have to release control of that to the Federal Government you would be opposed to turning over the title?

Mr. Stewart. Yes, I would. I have made this statement before, that I am not willing to transfer the title to that land to the Federal Government. I have not said I will refuse to do it, but I have said that I am not willing to do it, but I am hoping that in any subsequent relations with the Federal Government a way will be found whereby we will be given assurance that we do not forfeit any rights in our natural resources, that we retain control of the waters, no matter who owns the land or the dams."

Following considerable questioning I reaffirmed my position stating:—"The reservation we ask is that Pennsylvania retain control and ownership of the waters, except for flood control and navigation."

Surely the asking of a reservation is not to be considered an absence of co-operation, or, to put it bluntly, are you willing, Mr. Snyder, to say to all of Pennsylvania "turn all control and ownership of your waters over to Washington or we'll let you drown in floods"?

In order that you may more fully understand our position it may be said with a great degree of certainty that Pennsylvania will place no insurmountable obstacles in the path of primary and bona fide flood control projects. Such reservations as we may ask will not affect or hamper flood control in the least, but will be only such as will protect what we conceive to be the interests of the people of our Commonwealth.

I want Pennsylvania to own and control her waters so that when the time comes that Pittsburgh needs a water supply for either human or industrial needs, Pittsburgh can get it without going to Washington.

I want Pennsylvania to own and control her waters so that when the time comes that Pittsburgh needs power, Pittsburgh can get it without the necessity of going to the Federal Government.

I want Pennsylvania to own and control her waters so that when the time comes that these waters are needed by other states—and that time is not so far distant, as we have learned in eastern Pennsylvania—Pennsylvania, and Pittsburgh too, will profit thereby or at least have a voice in the distribution.

Protection and preservation of Pennsylvania's, including Pittsburgh's interests will not be interpreted as a refusal to co-operate on flood control by any fair minded Congress.

Sincerely,

G. ALBERT STEWART

Item 8.

ACCOMPLISHMENTS. Since the State Flood Control appropriation the Water and Power Resources Board has created the following Flood Control Districts:

	Districts	Date of Creation
I	Johnstown	April 14, 1937
II	York	March 10, 1937
III	Wilkes-Barre—Hanover	May 18, 1937
IV	Edwardsville—Kingston	May 18, 1937
V	Crooked Creek	July 14, 1937
VI	Tionesta Creek	July 14, 1937
VII	Juniata River	July 14, 1937
VIII	Lock Haven	May 11, 1938
IX	Turtle Creek	September 14, 1938
X	Plymouth	September 14, 1938
XI	Darby Creek	December 14, 1938

In connection with the establishment of a district the Act provides for making the necessary surveys and the preparation of suitable plans, and after said plans have been prepared, for their adoption as official plans. Such surveys have been made and official plans adopted for Johnstown, Wilkes-Barre—Hanover, Edwardsville—Kingston, Crooked Creek, and Tionesta Creek.

At the time of the adoption of these official plans the State and Federal laws provided in general that the Federal Government would undertake and pay for the actual construction of flood control works, while the State and local communities were expected to purchase the necessary lands, easements and rights-of-way, to take care of damages, and to relocate railroads, highways, pipe lines, buildings, and other facilities. The Board accordingly proceeded to carry out the Flood Control program in cooperation with the War Department until the Federal Act was amended on June 28, 1938.

This amended Federal Act provided that all the Federal Government would pay the entire cost of all flood control works except those involving the construction of dykes, in which case the terms of the former Act would apply. Accordingly the Commonwealth withdrew its activities and cooperation in connection with all projects under way or contemplated after the passage of this amendment except for the dykes being built along the Susquehanna River opposite Wilkes-Barre and Kingston.

District No. 1—Johnstown. The Board was prepared to cooperate with the City of Johnstown in sharing the costs for lands and damages on an equal basis with the City and the County of Cambria. An office was established and the Board's engineers made studies leading to the adoption of an official plan for improvement of the river channel and also for the construction of flood control reservoirs above the City. Its land agents made appraisals and negotiated for the purchase of the necessary lands. Before any lands were actually purchased, the Federal amendment was passed and the Board withdrew.

District No. 2—York. The Board's engineer cooperated with the engineers of the War Department in making studies leading to the adoption of a comprehensive plan for channel improvement of Codorus Creek in York and for the construction of retarding basins above the City. However this work was discontinued in July of 1938, and the War Department has not yet submitted its official plan nor started construction of this project.

District No. 3.—Wilkes-Barre-Hanover. Dykes along the east side of the Susquehanna River at Wilkes-Barre and Hanover Township were started several years ago as a WPA project, sponsored by the City and Township. After the passage of the Federal Flood Control Act in 1937 the work was taken over by the Government and for a time continued as a WPA project and later on was continued with War Department funds. Necessary assurances under the Federal Act covering the cost of lands and damages were made by Wilkes-Barre and Hanover. After the passage of the State Flood Control Act the City petitioned the Water and Power Resources Board to create a district and asked the Board to cooperate financially by sharing the land and damage costs. This the Board agreed to do on a fifty-fifty basis, and to this end it has executed an agreement with Hanover Township. The agreement with the City of Wilkes-Barre has not yet been executed. The Board has established an office in Wilkes-Barre and its engineers are cooperating with the War Department in making studies and preparing plans covering various phases of the work. Its land agents are making appraisals of land in Hanover Township and negotiations have been entered into relative to utility damages and the reconstruction of pipe lines, etc.

District No. 4—Edwardsville-Kingston. The situation in Kingston-Edwardsville is very similar to that on the opposite side of the river. The Board has entered into agreements with these municipalities through which the cost of the acquisition of lands and the payment of damages will be shared equally by the Commonwealth and the Boroughs. The Board's engineers, appraisers, and land agents have cooperated with the Federal Government and the local interests, and the work is about completed except for the final construction of the Toby Creek Pressure Conduit and Intake and the construction of the necessary pumping stations. Appraisals and negotiations for the purchase of the necessary lands are handled by agents of the Board and much of the property has already been acquired. The Board has also entered into agreements with the railroad companies and other utilities covering the matter of damages and relocation of facilities. A study is also being made in connection with providing support for structures underlain with coal.

District No. 5—Crooked Creek. Engineers of the Board made a general survey and report upon the Crooked Creek Project as a result of which an official plan was adopted, following which an office was established at Kittanning. In order that the War Department might start actual construction, it was necessary for the State to acquire lands in the construction area. Such lands were appraised and purchased and are now owned by the Commonwealth. Following this acquisition of lands, the Federal Government let a contract for the construction and the work is now well under way. Prior to this the Board had also entered into agreements with the Peoples Natural Gas Company and the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company covering the relocation of the gas lines and pumping stations in the construction and reservoir areas. A similar agreement was entered into with the American Telephone and Telegraph Company covering the relocation of its lines. The Board's agents also made appraisals of the lands within the reservoir area and of the timber covering the area. It made surveys and studies and prepared plans for relocating roads and highways. In July, 1938, this work was taken over by the Federal Government and all information in the Board's possession was furnished to the War Department.

District No. 6—Tionesta Creek. The situation at Tionesta Creek is very familiar to that in the Crooked Creek District. The Board acquired the necessary lands upon which to build a dam and these lands are now owned by the Commonwealth. Construction has been started and is well under way. It was not necessary at this location to relocate oil and gas lines. However, owing to the fact that a concrete highway parallels Tionesta Creek, it was necessary to rebuild and relocate certain rural routes in order to provide adequate detours during the construction period. This work was undertaken and has been completed through an agreement with the State Highway Department. All of the appraisals, title work, and other work in connection with the purchase of lands in the reservoir basin, as well as the reports and plans prepared in connection with the relocation of highways, was furnished to the War Department when it took over the entire project in July, 1938.

District No. 7—Juniata River. Upon the creation of the Juniata River District the Board authorized a survey and investigation for the purpose of developing a general plan for flood control in the Juniata River Valley. Its engineers made a general reconnaissance of the entire River, primarily for the purpose of determining where flood control reservoirs might be possible and economically feasible. Several detailed topographic surveys were made of the dam site and reservoir basin on the Raystown branch of the Juniata River just above its mouth, and the maps of this area have recently been completed.

District No. 8—Lock Haven. Paper reconnaissance surveys were made for possible dam sites on the West branch of the Susquehanna River above the City of Lock Haven. Actual surveys have been completed and plans partially made of the flooded areas of proposed reservoir sites on Bald Eagle Creek and on the west branch of the Susquehanna River above Keating.

District No. 9—Turtle Creek. The Turtle Creek District was created upon petition of the municipalities bordering that stream. At the same time a request was made to the Federal Government to assist in developing a flood control project for the area. It was agreed that the Army engineers would make this survey at Federal expense and that the engineers of the Board would cooperate and assist in developing the plans. An official plan has not yet been submitted and neither Federal nor State funds are at this time available for the project.

District No. 10 — Plymouth. An engineer from the Wilkes-Barre office was assigned to the Plymouth District to work with the Army engineers in developing a plan involving the construction of a dyke to protect this community. Although the official plan has not yet been finally adopted, some surveys and partial plans have been made covering the acquisition of necessary properties. Representatives of the Board made a complete survey of damages in the Borough.

District No. 11—Darby Creek. A preliminary report upon this project was submitted to the Board by its engineers and some surveys and partial plans made. However, this project at this time has been discontinued.

In addition to the work in the various flood control districts created by the Board certain projects have been studied by the War Department and official plans submitted to the Board with the request that it indicate the attitude of the Commonwealth concerning these proposed projects. Although State approval is not required under the Federal law for such projects undertaken at the sole expense of the Federal Government, nevertheless the Chief of Engineers under the present ruling will not proceed with such construction without State consent. Official requests were accordingly received from the War Department covering the flood control projects on Redbank Creek, Mahoning Creek, and Loyalhanna Creek, all tributaries of the Allegheny River above the City of Pittsburgh.

Redbank Creek Project. This project involves the construction of a reservoir on Redbank Creek below the Borough of Summerville. Inasmuch as this reservoir would have practically destroyed this town with a large brick plant therein, and due to the fact that there was considerable local opposition to it, the Board's engineers made a careful survey to determine whether it would be possible to modify the plan and at the same time achieve the same degree of flood protection. To this end it studied an alternate plan for the construction of a lower reservoir on Redbank Creek and three additional reservoirs on tributaries of the Creek. After study the Board suggested to the War Department that more detailed studies be made with respect to this alternate project. Pending a final determination as to the relative merits and costs of the alternative plans, the Board has refused to give its consent to the original project submitted by the War Department.

Mahoning Creek Project. This project involves the construction of a single reservoir on Mahoning Creek. After careful investigations the Board advised the War Department that it favored the proposed project on this stream. A contract has been let by the War Department and construction work is now in progress. The total expense will be borne by the Federal Government.

Loyalhanna Creek Project. After investigation the Board notified the War Department that it favored a flood control reservoir on this stream and was satisfied with the preliminary plan, subject to the approval of final plans after they were prepared. Work on this dam has not been started.

French Creek Project. Although official plans for the French Creek Flood Control Project have not been submitted by the War Department to the Board for review and approval, nevertheless the Board's engineers have made investigations for the purpose of determining the advisability of an alternate plan to that tentatively under consideration by the War Department. This work was done primarily for the reason that a reservoir was proposed below the Borough of Cambridge Springs to which there was considerable local opposition. The results of the Board's studies have been made available to the Army Engineers in Pittsburgh as it appeared possible that Alternate sites, affording a greater degree of protection, might be secured at no greater cost. The proposed system for flood control above the City of Pittsburgh also includes reservoirs in the Allegheny River above the City of Warren, the Conemaugh River, and the Youghiegheny River. Although the official plans for these various projects have not been submitted to the Board by the War Department, the Board's engineers are familiar with the projects in a general way and considerable preliminary work and studies have been undertaken in the Pittsburgh District office.

The engineering division of the Board has also made miscellaneous studies for flood control works in other communities, principally in the Susquehanna River Valley. Preliminary studies and review of plans were made for flood control in the Schuylkill River and Lehigh River Valleys. Considerable work was also done in reviewing the plans prepared by the War Department involving the construction of dykes in the City of Williamsport. A survey was made of the damages incurred in that community during the 1936 flood.

FLOOD WARNING PLANS. No system of flood control either by the construction of storage reservoirs or dykes can be effective unless the works are operated in combination with a system for accurately predicting the height and time of arrival of a flood, following heavy precipitation or thaws over the watershed. Such predictions are necessary in order to determine when the gates in flood control reservoirs should be closed and when and at what rates water should be released. In almost any system of dykes, gaps left in the embankment for accommodating railroads and highways must be closed at the proper time with gates, sand bags, or mud boxes. This requires knowledge of the flood crest to be expected.

In addition to the operation of flood control works, flood warning service is a useful and vital service to affected communities by giving the general public advance notice of the time of arrival of floods and the expected stage, so that necessary measures may be taken to safeguard life and property. Inaccurate predictions may sometimes be worse than none at all. It is generally conceded that no greater return can be secured through the use of flood control funds than through expenditures for setting up and operating an accurate flood warning service. A single comparatively small flood control reservoir would cost more than the operation of the flood warning service over the entire State for twenty-five years or more.

COOPERATIVE ADVANCE. Following the great flood of March, 1936, the Department of Forests and Waters set up a plan for extending and improving the flood warning service in this State. To this end a three-way cooperative agreement was entered into between the Pennsylvania Water and Power Resources Board, the U. S. Weather Bureau, and the U. S. Geological Survey. The purpose of this agreement, sponsored by the Commonwealth, may be explained in brief by quoting in part from the original agreement—

"1. Through the cooperating agencies to provide means of inaugurating a modern, scientific river forecasting service through the Commonwealth.
2. To establish new sources of hydrologic data which are necessary to the program for forecasting and which are indispensable to the design and operation of flood control works.
3. To make available to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania basic data regarding its surface waters upon which Federal, State and private interests may be coordinated."

RAIN GAUGES INSTALLED. At the time this agreement was signed there were only eight automatic rain gauges in the entire State, six of which were operated by the Weather Bureau, and two by private concerns. In accordance with the terms of the agreement the State purchased and installed ninety-four additional automatic rain gauges throughout the State. Considerable work was also done toward the refinement of river forecasts and the extension of the service so as to eventually include forecasts for many more Pennsylvania communities subject to flood overflow. A small organization of expert hydrologic engineers was set up in Harrisburg for the purpose of developing an adequate, scientific method for determining rates of runoff both from information received through rainfall observation and stream flow stations in the headwaters of the major drainage systems This study has now been completed and the necessary organization is being effected so as to put the actual flood warning service in operation.

RADIO SYSTEM BEING INSTALLED. In the cases of major floods during past years, one of the principal difficulties in obtaining data for the preparation and dissemination of forecasts has been the failure of communication. To prevent a repetition of this in the future the Water and Power Resources Board is now installing a fully automatic ultra high frequency radio set-up for the transmission of vital hydrologic data during times of flood over the Susquehanna River Basin, with the ultimate expectation of continuing this service in the Ohio and Delaware Basins. Upon the completion of this radio network information will be received at the main forecasting stations in each basin immediately upon the start of the storm. The operation of the system will not be affected by high water, power or telephone or telegraph failure.

CONCLUSIONS. By reference to Item 3—Expenditures—it will readily be seen that salaries and expenses appeared to be entirely out of line with necessities, in view of the fact that the Federal Flood Control Act had been changed making dam and reservoir types of flood control works the entire financial responsibility of the Federal Government.

Accordingly, the Secretary of Forests and Waters promptly effected a wholesale disbanding of the Flood Control unit, retaining only those required for necessary work in connection with works under construction and a few field crews whose work it was deemed advisable to continue until their immediate objectives were reached.

This summary and decisive action gave rise to the reports and rumors that flood control had been stopped. The fact is. no projects under construction were then stopped, nor have any been stopped since. Only, what then appeared to be and still appears to be, useless spending was stopped.

The effect of this action, by way of conserving money is apparent by a comparison of figures.

Average monthly Flood Control expenditures for the nine months period preceding March 1939 was about $13,000. Our March salary account was $7,391.10 whereas the monthly average, before, was $14,890. April 1939 nwill be even less. Travel expenses were reduced from an average of $1,423 per month to $351.00 for March 1939. April and May will reveal further savings. Meanwhile, no authorized or adopted flood control project has been stopped or hindered in any way.

With the immediate demands on the Commonwealth so pressing, especially for relief, surely it was better to conserve these funds and thus, perhaps, make them available for present emergencies, than to continue spending to no immediate purpose.

The Flood Control Bureau was organized and its huge engineering personnel engaged under a Federal Flood Control Act which called for approximately fifty-fifty participation by the State. However, in recent months the Federal Act was changed with the Federal Government assuming all costs on dam and reservoir works. Subsequent to this change in the Federal law, the expensive engineering personnel turned its attention to "checking" the Federal or United States Army Engineers, doing parallel work, so to speak. For what purpose it has never been made clear, especially since the Army Engineers have a decidedly good reputation for ability and accuracy.

There has been some suspicion of a hidden motive in the liberality of the new Federal Flood Control Act and the argument has been advanced that this alleged hidden motive might be revealed by an engineering check on types of dams. Such a check was being made in our Pittsburgh office at a cost of $25,000 per year.

We need not hunt for that which is apparent.

But we need to take a firm stand declaring the waters impounded in flood control dams and reservoirs are natural resources, and the property of the Commonwealth, and therefore the Commonwealth should retain jurisdiction and control over them, except for flood control and such other uses as are properly recognized as within the Federal Domain.

Respectfully submitted
G. ALBERT STEWART,
Secretary
Department of Forests and Waters.

SURVEY OF SERVICE CHARGES ON DEPOSITS

Made by Department of Banking
In Accordance With Resolution No. 65
Adopted by the House of Representatives
April 19, 1937

RESOLUTION No. 65

Whereas, during the past few years it has become prevalent for banking institutions to make charges for services in respect to deposits made by their customers including charging for services in connection with checks cashed or deposits made and otherwise; and

Whereas, the bases upon which service charges are made are varied throughout the Commonwealth; and

Whereas, it is not clear that the practice of, or the bases for making service charges, as aforesaid, are conducive to the welfare of those dealing with banking institutions; now, therefore be it

Resolved, That the Department of Banking be and is hereby directed to make a study of the bases, practices and procedure in respect to charges for services in connection with deposits made with banking institutions and make a report thereon to the next regular session of the House of Representatives together with its recommendations, if any, which are deemed appropriate under the circumstances.

Adopted by the House of Representatives
April 19, 1937

The 1930's brought with them many changes in banking theory, practices, procedures and technique. Undoubtedly the rapidity with which such changes came into being has made it difficult to avoid confusion. It is not strange that such chaotic conditions as were witnessed during the early 1930's should in themselves be the source from which the changes grew.

One of these has been the inauguration of the imposition of service charges upon various types of bank deposit activities. It is somewhat paradoxical in retrospect to observe that there was very little if any, public reaction to the reduction in rates of interest paid upon savings deposits, while at the same time there was considerable reaction against service charges. It would be more accurate to say that public reaction against service charges was not universal but, such opposition as there was, was intense. It is somewhat difficult to avoid the conclusion that the most bitter opposition to service charges came from those patrons of banking institutions who had enjoyed a service without any compensation or remuneration to the banking institutions therefor.

Before going into the question of service charges itself, it is well to look into the past and briefly outline the fundamental changes in banking itself.

There are those of us today who can recall those bankers or banking institutions to whom depositors actually paid a fee for the safekeeping of their monies and who did not look to the banker or banking institution to pay them back any increment based upon the use of the money by the banker or banking institution. Although this type of banking goes back to antiquity it is not so many years ago that it gave way to the foundation for present day banking theory.

During the early days of the present banking system banking institutions were rather well divided into two types, the commercial banking institution and the savings institution, whether it be the mutual or stock type. As time went on and perhaps through competition or a desire to avoid the establishment of more banking institutions, the commercial type of banking institutions entered into the savings field. Perhaps this is more the case in Pennsylvania than in many other states. Out of a total of 1,070 banks there are only 8 so-called savings banks. The balance in varying degrees indulge in both commercial banking and savings banking.

It is difficult to distinguish, in most cases, between commercial banking and savings banking. Peculiarly, the identity lies in the type of lending in which an institution engages, not in the source from which deposits are received

We can all recall the intense competition between banking institutions in the 1920's for new deposit accounts.

It would be very interesting indeed to catalogue the various inducements and premiums which were offered by banking institutions for new accounts. They ranged from the simple souvenir pencil to the more appealing gratuity of the initial deposit of $1.00 to $5.00 and. in some cases, outright bonuses. Not the least attraction was what today would be termed handsome rates of interest upon both checking and savings accounts.

Vieing for business as they did, and in the effort to obtain more and more deposit volume even though in small dribs and drabs, the banking institutions were largely responsible for making Mr. John Doe bank conscious, not only in a single direction but in the dual direction of thrift accumulation and facility or convenience as represented by checking account service. The higher interest rates which banking institutions could command for funds supplied the wherewithal to absorb the additional costs which no one was eager to segregate or compute. Everything was going rather well and no pinch was felt.

With the turn of the 1930's banking institutions were faced abruptly with the need for taking inventory of their practices to determine what to do about them.

Bankers were hard hit from at least two directions; the depression's effect upon many of the customers had created irrecoverable losses in loans and public hysteria, which demanded withdrawals of balances, forced liquidation of assets in the depressed market. Income of banking institutions was sharply cut by lower rates of interest in the money market.

All through the years from 1927 to 1938 income from investment securities remained very close to the $500,000,000 mark but not so income from loans. From $1,250,000,000 in 1927 this type of income increased to $1,600,- 000,000 in 1929, but from then on it dropped to a low mark slightly below $500,000,000 in 1935 and now is not much above that level.

Regardless of the reasons therefor we find that more than nine-tenths of the bills in this country are paid by checks drawn on bank deposits. Gone, to a great extent, are the pay envelopes containing cash. Salaries are paid by check. Currency is no longer the principal means used by people in paying for what they buy. In fact, as the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System put it "It is the small change of business. Most people keep only such money in their pockets as they require for their day-to-day needs, such as carfare, lunches, gasoline and other items and what they do not need they deposit at the bank."

Thus it is not difficult to visualize the great expansion of work which has been forced upon the banking institutions in order to handle the constant flow of checks and the flow is two-fold—charging the account of the depositor who made the payment by check and crediting the account of the recipient of those checks. Perhaps the old adage, i.e. 10% of the people have 90% of the wealth, has some application here. To put it a little differently, a large majority of the banks' customers have but a small proportion of the funds deposited.

While the charge for service in respect to deposit activities seems to be coming into more and more favor with banking institutions, it cannot be said that this is universally accepted.

We have not overlooked that banking institutions are in the nature of quasi-public institutions and are to a great extent protected from competition by government and in many communities constitute a semi-monopoly on bank services in their own territory. But is this sufficient reason to justify the demand of Mr. John Doe for free service at the expense of some one else? Very few persons indeed have indicated that a banking institution is expected to supply this type of gratuity.

Surveys and investigations into this old question of service charges is not new. The American Bankers Association has made three surveys; one in 1933, one in 1935 and one in 1938. Quoting from its bulletin on the 1938 survey we give the following excerpts.

"The merchandise of some corporations is shoes; of others automobiles. The merchandise of banks is service rendered to its depositors and extension of credit. The service provided by banks is undoubtedly one of the most widely used commodities in this country, being of inestimable importance in facilitating and increasing commercial activities.

"Based on the premise that any corporation organized for profit must operate profitably to operate soundly, a bank if it expects to continue in business must recover the cost of its product plus a reasonable profit. Banking service has an actual monetary value, just as does the product of any other corporation. A charge for the service performed by banks, then, is a first essential to safe and sound banking.

"An extremely valuable service is rendered by every bank to every commercial depositor. It is one which the depositor would find thoroughly inconvenient to do without. Furnished with a safe depository for his money and with the tools necessary to transact his banking business, the depositor sitting at his own desk is enabled to pay his bills by check in his own town or anywhere in the country and to have a valid receipt for the transaction.

"Fundamentally, the service charge on checking accounts is the cost of that definite and tangible service which the bank performs for its depositors in handling their accounts."

There is considerable confusion in the efforts to reach an understanding of what the service charge actually means to an institution. Many believe that it is a source of profit to the bank. If this is true it is for the most part accidental and infinitesimal. The service charge should more appropriately be labeled as reimbursement to the banking institution for the cost of handling the particular transaction for which the service charge was made. Some have described it as representing the difference between what the bank earns on a depositor's balance and what it costs the bank to handle the service to the account. The American Bankers Association has said:

"If the depositor maintains a sufficient balance in his account to compensate the bank for the expense involved in serving him, he is paying an adequate service charge.

"However, if his balance is small, causing the bank to earn nothing on his balance but to operate it at a loss the depositor is under obligation to the bank for this service and, in the same manner, that he ordinarily pays for any merchandise or service purchased, it is mandatory that he pay for the service rendered on his checking account."

There are notably three types of systems for making charges for deposit account service; (1) the flat service charge; (2) the measured or metered service charge; and (3) the analyzed service charge.

Since the inauguration of the service charge system there has been a substantial trend away from the flat charge to the measured or metered charge and to a lesser degree, to the analyzed charge.

In respect to these three types of charges the American Bankers Association, as the result of its 1938 survey, reports as follows:

"The earliest system of making charges for services rendered on checking accounts was the flat service charge which provided for assessing a flat monthly charge against accounts where the average balance fell below a certain level. Prior to 1930 this type of plan was in effect in most of the banks which had installed service charges. While the flat charge is a simple and easy method to operate, it has a serious weakness in that it does not take into consideration the varying activity of the accounts which is an important factor in the costs. For instance, if the balance is below the minimum required, the same charge is made whether many checks are drawn and deposited, or only a few. It therefore works unfairly as between depositors."

"As the inequities of the flat charge became apparent, the measured service charge was developed. This charge, which is a combination of a basic charge plus a charge for excess activity, is based on cost analysis and a per item charge. Its purpose is to compensate the bank for the actual amount of service rendered in relation to the balance of the account.

"The current survey further reveals that there is a trend from both the flat and the measured service charge systems toward an analysis service charge plan which places all accounts, both large and small, under either a detailed or simplified plan based on essential analysis factors. Where the bank's own costs are known accurately, this method will work. Care, however, is necessary in order to be sure that costs are not increased thereby.

"The dividing point between accounts coming under a measured or flat service charge plan and those subject to a detailed analysis is the activity of the account, based on float or on the number of deposits, as given by the largest number of responding clearing-houses."

A tabulation showing the results of the questionnaires addressed to Clearing House Associations throughout the United States by the American Bankers Association is reproduced on the following page, from the 1938 survey of the American Bankers Association. It will be observed that the tabulation includes only 249 of the 1,070 banks in Pennsylvania.

The service charge survey, which was concluded by the Department of Banking in 1938, is based on questionnaires which were sent to slightly less than 1100 state banking institutions and national banking associations. Replies were received from 992 of these institutions, 371 of them being state banking institutions and 621 being national banking associations.

Of the 992 institutions which replied to the questionnaires, 592 reported that charges for service in deposit account activities were made. 400 reported that no service charge was imposed. We should not overlook the fact, however, that many of those reporting as making no service charges do make a charge for "N. S. F." items. This practice has been of such long standing that most institutions are prone to consider it separate and apart from the service charge field.

An analysis of the 592 institutions which reported existing service charge schedules shows the extent to which concerted action was taken. The information revealed by the analysis is as follows:

1. Independent action of individual institutions.

State	National	Total
99	115	214

2. By action of institutions in the communities.

State	National	Total
56	79	135

3. By clearing house action.

State	National	Total
55	71	126

4. By county group action.

State	National	Total
22	75	97

5. By other group action.

State	National	Total
4	16	20

Uniformity of service charges reaches a high degree where the schedule is the result of group action. But even in such cases there are individual variations. Where service charge schedules were imposed by independent action of institutions, more variations will be found, even to the extent of partial use of the three major types of plans. It is virtually impossible to classify various service charge plans into a few groups. The following schedules, however, will give some insight into the types of charges which are made and the bases therefor.

In dealing with the question of service charges we should not overlook the fact that schedules of charges do not apply only to activities in deposit accounts; charges are established for services given to those who are not customers of the banking institutions. We believe that many institutions failed to report on this question accurately but of the 125 which did report this type of charge, only 8 make a charge for cashing checks on local banks for non-depositors, 79 make a charge for cashing checks for non-depositors when the checks are drawn on institutions outside of local communities or clearing house associations and 30 others reported a charge for cashing checks for non-depositors without further explanation. The charges range from 5c to 15c.

Some complaints have been filed with the Department of Banking against institutions who have made charges for service of the type discussed immediately above but the complaints have been predominately from the recipients of various classes of assistance and relief checks. A study of the survey made by the Department of Banking indicates that most institutions make an exemption from the service charge in the case of these types of checks. The complaints which have been filed with the Department of Banking in this respect are sporadic. Some of the institutions which make charges for cashing this type of checks for non-depositors are forced to do so because they are located in areas where the volume of this type of checks would make the cost of free service prohibitive.

SCHEDULE OF MINIMUM CHARGES

On Balances from $25.00 to $500 00 a graduated scale of Item costs is in effect in	77	155	232

In addition to above minimum charges these institutions are charging from $.02 to $.05 for items exceeding a specific number ranging from 3 to 15.

33 institutions (3 state—30 National) make an item charge only; 13 having such charge in effect only on balances over $50.00, 2 over $100.00. 18 are making straight item charge.

ACCOUNT ANALYSIS

218 institutions, including a number of those that have a flat charge and a graduated scale to $500.00, are making an analysis of deposit accounts and charging on the basis of such analysis.

Of this number 18 State—24 National— 42 Total—are applying analysis to all accounts

Of this number 64 State—93 National—157 Total—are applying analysis to accounts with balances from over $25.00 to over $500.00

Of this number 4 State— 4 National— 8 Total—are applying analysis to business accounts only

Of this number 6 State— 5 National— 11 Total—are applying analysis to accounts showing unusual activity

At least 22 institutions have some special plan which differs in most respects from those reported in foregoing schedules.

Accounts in which no activity has taken place, Municipal State, County, Local Charities, and Religious Organizations, usually are not subject to service charges.

CHARGES FOR CASHING CHECKS

125 institutions are making charges for handling local and foreign items of depositors and non-depositors as scheduled below:

No. of Institutions				Local Items
State	National	Total		Depositors	Non-Depositors
2	3	5	make a charge to	x
7	1	8	" " " "		x

No. of Institutions				Foreign Items

3	-	3	make a charge to	x
27	52	79	" " " "		x

No of Institutions				Other Items*
State	National	Total		Depositors	Non-Depositors
14	16	30	make a charge to		x

* This is made up of those institutions which did not indicate whether charges for cashing checks applied to Local or Foreign Items.

The charges made range from $.05 to $.15.

Items usually excepted are Relief, Welfare, W. P. A. and kindred types.

The American Bankers Association bulletin in the service charge survey of 1938 states with respect to inactive accounts:

"The survey reveals that a majority of responding clearing houses do not make charges on inactive accounts where balances are under the minimum required by service charge schedules. Fifty-six per cent replied definitely that service charges are not made on this type of account, while 20 per cent made no reply to this question. Several clearinghouses stated that the practice had been in effect among their banks, but that it had been discontinued.

"However, in approximately one-fourth of the clearinghouses responding, readiness-to-serve charges are made on inactive accounts having less than the required minimum balance. Among these clearinghouses, the period of time as to when accounts are considered inactive is from six months to one year in the greater number of banks. Other periods of time reported were three months, eighteen months, two years, three years, and five years. The charges made on inactive accounts for service or maintenance ranged from 25 cents, 50 cents or $1.00 per month. 50 cents or $1.00 semi-annually, to 50 cents or $1.00 per year."

It is interesting to review the experience of one institution as the result of the inauguration of a schedule of service charges. This institution reported as follows:

"In 1935 we had 1,394 check accounts with average balances of $399. On December 31, 1935, five months after the service charge had been installed, we had 810 depositors with average balances of $902. We closed out 811 accounts with average balances of $25. If there is a man here who can show me a profit on balances with an average of $25, I will vote him a wizard of finance.

"Let's take for example the 811 accounts with average balances of $25, that gave a total of $20,080.24. The average cost per account was ninety-nine cents; the average earning was six cents, which left a net loss of ninety-three cents, or an average loss per account per year of $11.16, making a total yearly loss of $9,150.76. At the earning rate of 1½ per cent on your savings accounts this would take $610,051 from your interest department to support these unprofitable accounts."

It does not appear that there is cause for governmental regulation of this type of banking business. It would be strange indeed to prohibit by law the recoupment for actual loss suffered by anyone in making available service to the public and this would not seem to be at all different when considered primarily from the viewpoint of the service made available by banking institutions to its depositors or non-depositors. Independent action by the state of Pennsylvania would be ineffective and damaging to state banking institutions. Any law passed in this regard by the General Assembly could apply only to state banking institutions and not to national banking associations which are governed by the enactments of Congress in this regard. It is therefore the conclusion of the Department of Banking that this subject does not call for any legislative remedy and it recommends accoringly.

Respectfully submitted,

R. W. DOTY
Secretary of Banking

Pennsylvania Laws 1937 Session

No. 35

AN ACT

Relating to interstate cooperation; creating the Pennsylvania Commission on Interstate Cooperation, as well as committees on interstate cooperation of the Senate and of the House of Representatives; defining the powers and duties of said commission and of said committees; and imposing duties on the Governor and the Secretary of the Commonwealth.

Section 1. Be it enacted, &c., That there is hereby established the Pennsylvania Commission on Interstate Cooperation, which shall encourage and arrange conferences with officials of other states and of other units of government, carry forward the participation of this State as a member of the Council of State Governments both regionally and nationally and formulate proposals for cooperation between this State and other states.

Section 2. There is hereby established a Committee on Interstate Cooperation of the Senate to consist of five senators. The members and chairman of this committee shall be designated in the same manner as is customary in the case of the members and chairman of standing committees of the Senate. The Lieutenant Governor may serve as one of the five members of this committee.

Section 3. There is hereby established a similar Committee on Interstate Cooperation of the House of Representatives , also to consit of five members, and the members and chairman of this committee shall be designated in the same manner as is customary in the case of the members and chairmen of standing committees of the House of Representatives.

Section 4. The said Commission on Interstate Cooperation shall be composed of fifteen members, namely:

The five members of the Committee on Interstate Cooperation of the Senate;

The five members of the Committee on Interstate Cooperation of the House of Representatives; and

Five officials of the State government named by the Governor, one of whom shall be designated by him as the chairman of the commission;

The Governor shall be an honorary member of the commission.

Section 5. The commission shall establish such committees, as it deems advisable, to conduct conferences and to formulate proposals concerning subjects of intergovernmental cooperation. Subject to the approval of the commission, the members of every such committee shall be appointed by the chairman of the commission. State officials who are not members of the Commission on Interstate Cooperation, may be appointed as members of any such committee, but at least one member of the commission shall be a member of every such committee. The commission may provide such rules as it considers appropriate concerning the membership and the functioning of any committee which it establishes. The commission may provide for advisory boards for itself and for its various committees and for the service of private citizens on such boards.

Section 6. The commission shall report to the Governor and to the Legislature within fifteen days after the convening of each regular legislative session, and at such other times as it deems appropriate. Its members and the members of all committees, which it establishes, shall serve without compensation, but they shall be paid their necessary expenses in carrying out their obligations under this act. The commission may employ a secretary and a stenographer; it may incur such other expenses as may be necessary for the proper performance of its duties and it may by contributions to the Council of State Governments participate with other states in maintaining the said Council's regional and central secretariates and its other governmental services.

Section 7. The said committee of the Senate and the said committee of the House of Representatives shall function during the regular sessions of the Legislature, and also during the interim periods between such sessions, their members shall serve until their successors are designated and they shall respectively constitute the Senate and House Executive Committees of the American Legislators' Association for this State. The term of each administrative member of the commission shall extend until the next gubernatorial inauguration, and thereafter until his successor is appointed.

Section 8. The Secretary of the Commonwealth shall forthwith communicate the text of this measure to the Governor, to the Senate, and to the House of Representatives of each of the other states of the union, and memorialize each legislature, which has not already done so, to enact a law similar to this measure, thus establishing a similar commission with like duties and powers, and thus joining with this State in the common cause of reducing the burdens which are imposed upon the citizens of every state by governmental confusion, competition, and conflict.

Section 9. This act shall take effect immediately upon final enactment.

Approved—The 24th day of March, A. D. 1937.

INTRODUCTION

This Commission was originally established as the Joint Legislative Commission on Interstate Cooperation by concurrent resolution introduced in the Senate, March 25. 1935, approved by both houses of the legislature, and signed by the Governor on May 29, 1935. In the 1937 session, the legislature recognized the value of the movement toward interstate and intergovernmental cooperation and of Pennsylvania's continued participation in it. The Commission was made permanent by statute and its name was changed to the Pennsylvania Commission on Interstate Cooperation.

The purpose of this Commission is to facilitate and carry out the cooperation of this date with other states and other governmental units in seeking solutions to their common problems, both regionally and nationally. To this end the Commission has participated with other cooperation commissions in meetings concerned with a variety of problems.

It is significant to note the rapidity with which this movement has grown. It was only slightly more than three years ago that the first Commission on Interstate Cooperation was established in New Jersey. At present forty-one states have created Commissions or Committees similar to this one, and through them are participating in the functions of the Council of State Governments. There is evidence that similar Commissions will be established in additional states this year. The Council is a centralizing agency and coordinates the activities of the Commissions. It also serves as the secretariat for the Governors' Conference, the National Association of Attorneys General, the National Association of Secretaries of State. and the American Legislators' Association, and acts as a clearing house for the Legislative Reference Bureaus of the various states.

In carrying out its functions this Commission affords Pennsylvania legislators and administrators the opportunity to view problems in the broad light of their regional or national aspects. In the post war period the scope and the functions of all levels of government have expanded at an accelerated rate. Perhaps it is because the operations of the federal government have grown proportionately more rapidly than the states that the cry of "states' rights" has been heard so frequently in recent years. This Commission has taken the viewpoint that one of the mandates given it by the legislature was to demonstrate the "states' adequacy" to perform certain functions and that only upon such a foundation should a "states' right" to certain powers and functions be based. The need for the states to harmonize their own affairs has become increasingly more urgent and the Commissions on Interstate Cooperation have been created to facilitate this concord.

At its Third General Assembly held in January 1937, the Council of State Governments created a Commission on Council Development to develop further and perfect the machinery of the Council. This state was honored when Hon. Ellwood J. Turner, a member of the Pennsylvania Commission on Interstate Cooperation, was made chairman of this Interstate Commission.

In October, 1937, the Commission met in Washington and formulated a three point program to that end:

1. It recommended that an adequate appropriation be made by the states for the support of the central secretariat and the various services of the Council of State Governments and that this total annual levy should be distributed among the states upon the basis of their percentage of the national wealth, national income, and registered voters.

2. It determined to push the establishment of Commissions on Interstate Cooperation in those states where they do not now exist.

3. It planned to seek the development in each of the eleven districts in the country of secretariats similar to that now functioning in District No. 2 in which Pennsylvania is included. During each of the past two years, this state has appropriated $1,000 for the support of this District Secretariat in New York City.

The development of the Council has progressed at an increasing pace. At the Fourth General Assembly of the Council of State Governments in Washington, January 18-21, 1939, the delegates urged the states to give fuller financial support to their Commissions on Interstate Cooperation and to the Council of State Governments. In addition to the dozen or more states which have appropriated funds to the Council during the past biennium, appropriations have been received or promised from at least twelve additional states during the next two years. Your Commission was represented at the Fourth General Assembly by Senator George Woodward, a member of the Board of Managers of the Council, Speaker Ellwood J. Turner, Vice-President of the Council, Hon. E. Kent Kane, Hon. Thomas B. Stockham, Senator Anthony J. DiSilvestro, Hon. Roy E. Furman, and Mr. F. A. Pitkin, Director of the State Planning Board.

Recently the major attention of the Council and of the Cooperation Commission has been directed toward curbing the development of trade barriers to commerce among the states. These have been pointed to with alarm by officials and citizens from all parts of the country. The danger which threatens if they are allowed to continue is, as Governor Herbert R. O'Conor of Maryland says, that the states will "Balkanize" the country. The U. S. Supreme Court as early as 1824[1] said "If there is any one object riding over every other in the adoption of the Constitution, it was to keep commercial intercourse among the states free from all invidious and partial restraints."

At the Fourth General Assembly, the states asked the Council to study legislation and policies which tend to create trade barriers and to call a nationwide conference on this subject to take steps necessary for their elimination. In accordance with this request, the National Conference on Interstate Trade Barriers was held in Chicago on April 5, 6, and 7, 1939. The Pennsylvania Commission on Interstate Cooperation endorses these cooperative efforts and pledges its assistance in eliminating discriminatory practices in this state.

During the past biennium this Commission has directed a large part of its efforts to the development of the Interstate Commission on the Delaware River Basin. It efforts have been successful in bringing about an agreement of the four states concerned for elimination of pollution in this river. This and other activities of that Commission are more fully described in the section of this report entitled "Interstate Commission on the Delaware River Basin."

Two new activities in which this Commission is interested are the Interstate Commission on the Ohio Basin and the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River which are discussed in the chapters by those titles.

Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti, who was chairman of this Commission, retired from office early in 1938 and for the remainder of the year the Commission was without a chairman.

The Pennsylvania Cooperation Commission cannot neglect to mention that the active leadership of one of its members, Hon. Ellwood J. Turner, has been a potent factor in the progress made by the cooperative movement among the states, not only in this region but throughout the country. He was elected to the chairmanship of the Interstate Commission on the Delaware River Basin in July, 1938, and was to a large extent responsible for the advances which that Commission has made. He is a member of the Board of Managers of the Council of State Governments, chairman of its Commission on Council Development, and on December 16, 1938, was made Vice-president of the Council.

Attention also should be called to the important part which another member of this Commission has played in the development of this movement. Senator George Woodward, a "charter" member of the American Legislators' Association, has been on its Board of Managers and that of the Council of State Governments from their inception. He has always been actively interested in the improvement and expansion of these organizations and this Commission is proud of his work in this field.

In October, 1938, the founder of the Council of State Governments and leader of the cooperative movement among the states, Senator Henry W. Toll, resigned from his position as Executive Director of the Council after more than thirteen years of devoted effort to the work. In recognition of his contribution to the states the Board of Managers of the Council made him Honorary President of the Council. The Board elected as Executive Director of the Council, Mr. Frank Bane, who resigned as Director of the Social Security Board to accept the Council position. This Commission wishes to express its appreciation to Senator Toll for his fine work and to welcome and pledge its full cooperation to the Council's new Director, Mr. Bane.

The Pennsylvania Commission on Interstate Cooperation is encouraged by the increasing interest and activity of the states and cooperation commissioners in other sections of the country. They are now beginning to make effective use of their interstate machinery and the movement may look forward to still greater development.

BANKING AND SECURITIES

During each of the past two years, members of this Commission and of the State Banking and Securities Departments have attended Regional conferences on banking and securities practices sponsored by the New York Joint Legislative Committee on Interstate Cooperation. The Second Regional Conference on Uniform Banking Practices was held in New York City on December 17, 1937; the Third Regional Conference on Uniform Banking and Securities Practices was held in New York City on December 10, 1938. These conferences were attended by state banking officials, representatives of the Federal Reserve Board, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, the American and State bankers' associations, and legislators from Connecticut, Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. The latter conference was also attended by state securities commissioners and representatives of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The need for further uniformity in banking and securities practices and laws has been frequently expressed by bankers, federal and state banking officials, and by corporation executives and securities commissioners. Indicative of the desirability of more standard banking practices is the fact that both the National Association of Supervisors of State Banks and the American Bankers Association have created committees on uniform state legislation. Similar necessity in the regulation of securities has been none the less imperative. Your Commission believes these conferences to be valuable in bringing about this objective.

As a result of the studies and recommendations of the first conference, this commission believes that there is no necessity for the extension of branch banking across state lines and that the matter of branch banking should be regulated by the individual state within its own borders. We approve the proposed establishment of a reciprocal procedure between federal and state bank supervising authorities whereby each system should be advised and consulted on the establishment of new branches by banks in either the state or federal system. Such a procedure should be put into effect as soon as practicable.

While many bankers agree that there is need for greater uniformity and clarity in the earnings reports of banks, it appears that little will be done to bring this about until one of the supervisory authorities takes steps to prescribe a uniform standard public report for banks. The present standard form of earnings report which the Federal Reserve Bank requires and which is uniform for both state and national banks might serve as a basis for drafting a uniform call report form that would be satisfactory to all federal and state officials to whom reports must be submitted. Consultation between the federal officials and representatives of the National Association of Supervisors of State Banks should be utilized to bring about the desired uniformity.

Uniform Laws

This Commission recommends the enactment of the Uniform Trust Receipts Act* as prepared by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws. The purpose of this law is to make the present common law policy with regard to the use of trust receipts fairer to all parties concerned by clarifying conflicting law among the states and uncertain law within the states. When this act is given consideration, however, it should follow the wording of the original uniform act and care should be used that no chattel mortgage clause is included for this tends to defeat the purpose of the act.

Another law for which a uniform draft has been prepared which we feel should be considered for enactment is that which would require banks and other financial institutions to carry adequate insurance on the fidelity of their employees.*

Minimum Uniform Standards

In general, bankers recognize the desirability of having certain minimum standards with regard to chartering requirements, investment policies, loans and other bank operations. It will readily be understood that it is difficult to determine what may be adequate minimum standards for making loans and for chartering requirements, and perhaps well-nigh impossible to set minimum sound investment standards. For these things careful and intensive research is required. The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation and the American Bankers Association are engaged in the basic research necessary to obtain a clear picture of the present status of some of these problems. The attainment of a degree of uniformity in the various state laws governing the operation of banks will be a long range program in which the cooperation of the bankers, federal and state bank supervisors, and such other interested agencies as the Council of State Governments will be required. Absolute uniformity is neither desirable nor attainable but some phases of the problem to which attention should be directed include: (1) the fixing of reasonable minimum capital and chartering requirements for new banks; (2) limitation of payment of dividends of banks which are below minimum capital standards; (3) more uniform examining policies; (4) limitation of amount permitted to be loaned to an individual or corporation; (5) restrictions on borrowing by officers, directors and their interests; and (6) limitation of amount of public deposits in individual banks.

Uniform Mortgage Act

At both conferences, the subject of mortgage legislation was discussed. Mortgage foreclosure proceedings differ in each state and any clarification and simplification of existing laws would work to the benefit of real estate owners and would tend to open up investments in the mortgage field. The problem is admittedly exceedingly complex and the advent of the federal government into the business of home financing and mortgage lending five years ago has brought it into sharp focus. The subcommittee on Law and Legislation of the Central Housing Committee, consisting of officers of federal agencies having to do with governmental activities in the field of real property mortgages, has drafted a proposed Uniform Real Property Mortgage Act. The proposed act is being studied by the Real Property Probate and Trust Section of the American Bar Association and by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws. If and when it is finally approved it will be submitted to the state legislatures for consideration. Your Commission feels that no action should be taken on this important problem until the final draft resulting from these studies is completed.

* See Appendix.

Securities

At the December, 1938, meeting, three important problems concerned with security regulation were discussed. The first of these was the type of law for security regulation. Pennsylvania requires only the registration of dealers in securities depending on the honesty of the dealer or the threat of revocation of his license to prevent sale of fraudulent securities. It is felt that the legislature should give consideration to legislation which would also require that the securities themselves should be approved before they could be sold and would give the administrative agency power to use the injunction or an administrative order to prohibit the further sale of any suspected or definitely fraudulent issues being sold.

The second principal point of discussion involved the possibility of securing greater uniformity in security registration forms. It was felt that in order to help corporations registering securities. the state supervisory authorities might permit the filing of a copy of the federal registration form to constitute a registration with the state provided it was supplemented with whatever additional local information the state might require. We believe such simplification to be desirable and urge that proper steps be taken to facilitate it as much as possible.

Thirdly, discussion centered around the need for effective regulation of long time investment trusts, thrift fund plans and other security purchase plans. The operation of these companies has been filled with many evils and almost every state has records of numerous instances in which persons, often of moderate or low income, turned over money for investment and from which, as a result of fraudulent claims or misrepresented possibilities of return, they received back only a small fraction of their money and in some cases received no money in return. The National Association of Securities Commissioners has had committees studying the problem for several years. The Securities and Exchange Commission has been collecting information and figures on the operations of these companies and probably will recommend federal legislation. But the problem is one for state action also. It is recommended that earnest consideration be given to any information, data or suggestions which the securities agency of this state may have toward a reasonable solution of this problem.

CRIME

Since the 1937 report of this Commission, marked progress has been made in interstate crime control. The four model bills which were recommended by the Interstate Commission on Crime to curb the interstate criminal were approved by the 1937 Legislature. They would make uniform the law on fresh pursuit across state lines, on interstate extradition procedure, on securing the attendance of out-of-state witnesses in criminal proceedings, and they would permit the states to enter into a compact for mutual helpfulness in supervising persons on parole or probation. Up to the first of this year, these bills had been enacted into law 114 times in 40 of the states. Under these laws Pennsylvania is now in a better position to control crimes in which other states are involved and the passage is a forward step.

The Interstate Commission on Crime, at its annual meeting in Kansas City, Missouri, September 23-25, 1937, secured the ratification by 25 states of the Compact for the Supervision of Out-of-State Parolees and Probationers. By January 1, 1929, 25 states were signatories to this compact and it is expected that as the 1939 legislatures pass the necessary enabling legislation additional states will join the compact. The rules, regulations and forms necessary to facilitate and carry out the operations of the states under this compact have been prepared and are included in the Handbook on Interstate Crime Control published by the Crime Commission in 1939. This Handbook also contains drafts of other legislation and is available at its headquarters in Newark, New Jersey.

In addition to these four model bills, the Interstate Commission on Crime has recently turned its attention to two other important problems in crime control. These are marihuana and firearms. It is well known that marihuana is a dangerous narcotic, the continuous use of which leads to insanity, and which is the more dangerous because it is found in practically every state in the Union. In 1932 the Commissioners on Uniform State Laws completed the preparation of the Uniform Narcotics Act which was presented to the states, received widespread support and was enacted in 38 states. The act did not, however, contain provisions for the control of marihuana and the Crime Commission is sponsoring the uniform act with an amendment to cover this drug. We recommend an amendment to No. 282 of the Pennsylvania Laws of 1917 as amended by No. 163 of the Laws of 1933 to include a definition of "cannabis," the marihuana plant, and to include other provisions necessary for its control. The definition approved by the Interstate Commission on Crime is as follows:

> "'Cannabis' includes all parts of the plant cannabis sativa L., whether growing or not; the seeds thereof: the resin extracted from any part of such plant; and every compound, manufacture, salt, derivative, mixture, or preparation of such plant, its seeds, or resin; but shall not include the mature stalks of such plant, fiber produced from such stalks, oil or cake made from the seeds of such plant, any other compound, manufacture, salt, derivative, mixture, or preparation of such mature stalks (except the resin extracted therefrom), fibre, oil, or cake, or the sterilized seed of such plant which is incapable of germination."

The Uniform Firearms Act approved by the Commissioners on Uniform State Laws in 1926 has been enacted in whole or in part by five states and the District of Columbia and has served as the basis for similar legislation in several other states. Pennsylvania is one of those five states. Several developments since that act was drafted led the Interstate Commission on Crime to make a special study of the problem and, as a result of that study, to draft the uniform pistol act. The uniform Pistol Act is based on the firearms act of the Commissioners on Uniform State Laws but attempts to meet some of the objections to the latter and the changes are commended to the legislature for consideration.

In March, 1938, the Interstate Commission on Crime and the Council of State Governments served relationships. There continue to be many overlapping memberships in the two groups in the states, and it is hoped they will continue their part in the cooperative efforts among states.

THE INTERSTATE COMMISSION ON THE DELAWARE RIVER BASIN

There has been no phase of this Commission's work more important than its concern with the Delaware River and the operation of the Interstate Commission on the Delaware River Basin. The Delaware River forms a boundary between the states of New York and Pennsylvania, Pennsylvania and New Jersey, and New Jersey and Delaware. It has for many years served as a source of water supply and a means of sewage and waste disposal to many of the five million people living within the 12,000 square miles of its basin. To diminish the pollution caused by industrial and domestic wastes and to equitably distribute the abundance of its water are only part of the problem involved in the wise management of this river. Its navigation interests must be protected, fish life preserved, recreational facilities developed, and flood control and conservation possibilities explored.

The Interstate Commission on the Delaware River Basin, frequently known as "Incodel," was organized in 1936 by the Commissions and Committees on Interstate Cooperation of Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York, and representatives of the state of Delaware. During its 1939 legislative session, Delaware established a Commission on Interstate Cooperation and through it will have formal membership and participation in the activities of the Interstate Commission of the Delaware River Basin in the future. Since its establishment, Incodel has had as its objective the formulation and execution of a coordinated program for the better development and utilization of the resources of the entire basin. It is trying to add to the long history of disputes with which the river has been surrounded a more cooperative approach which will bring a constructive solution to those problems. Although Incodel is a joint governmental agency established operated and maintained by the states of Delaware, New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania, its function is primarily to serve as a coordinating medium and its supplements rather than supersedes in any way, existing state boards and departments.

It has been the desire of the Commission and of representatives of the states involved to develop a program looking to the wisest possible use of the river basin. Consequently, its activities have been centered in three general fields: improvement of the quality of water by abatement of pollution; settlement of the problem of water allocation among the states; and planning for the conservation and utilization of the human and natural resources of the basin. Advisory committees have been appointed by the Commission to collect and analyze information and present ideas on the problems of their fields Four such committees made up of experienced officials in their particular field from each state have been active during the past two years. They have dealt with quality of water, quantity of water, planning aspects of the basin, and the collection of information and research.

Quality of Water

No interstate aspect of the Delaware River is of greater concern to Pennsylvania than improving the quality of water. The Delaware River and its tributaries have become the natural depository for wastes of all kinds. It is able, by diluting processes, to absorb large volumes of domestic and industrial wastes. But the growth of population and industry in the valley has produced too large a load for the river to assimilate. While the volume of flow has remained almost unchanged over the years except for the water diverted entirely out of the basin for domestic consumption, the waste load has steadily increased.

Along with the increase in population and the expansion of industry has gone a mounting demand for a relatively pure water supply. On the other hand, the necessity for using the river as a drainage system for waste water has progressively decreased the quality of the supply. Granting that a flowing water supply is a necessity to urban life, a sanitary method of disposing of that water, after use, is essential to protect the quality of the supply.

The magnitude of Pennsylvania's interest in the relative purity of the water is measured by the fact that Philadelphia, and other southeastern cities of the state depend on the river for their municipal water supply. At the same time, this area is the worst offender from a pollution standpoint. The pollution problem, therefore, was the most serious of the water-use problems of the basin and at the same time it offered prospects for immediate action in its solution. For this reason the formulation and pursuit of a program for improving the quality of water was made the first objective of the Interstate Commission on the Delaware River Basin.

Its Advisory Committee on the Quality of Water, composed of the Chief Engineers of the four state Health Departments, after a long series of meetings formulated a reciprocal administrative agreement for the correction and control of pollution. This agreement was ratified by Incodel and put into effect by the four state agencies. In order to give added strength to the purpose of the agreement, legislation embodying the standards there set forth has been introduced in each of the four state legislatures. This Commission recommends the enactment of legislation for this purpose as set forth in the Appendix of this report. The agreement will take care of half of the incodel pollution program, the prevention of further future pollution of the waters of the Delaware. New municipal sewage disposal plants must produce an effluent at least equal to the minimum requirements and any new industries locating within the basin will be required to comply with the standards adopted in the treatment of their wastes.

The other half of the pollution abatement program is to improve the quality of the effluent now going into the river from established sewage systems and industries. To this end a supplement to the standards of purity set up in the agreement has been prepared which establishes a time limit for each municipality now discharging domestic wastes into the river within which the construction of necessary sewage disposal facilities must be completed. The program for cleaning up domestic pollution is to be accompanied by industrial abatement as well. A directory of all industries discharging waste products or other deleterious substances into the Delaware is being compiled and it has been agreed that each industry shall comply with the standards set for municipalities.

Considerable progress has already been made toward abating existing pollution. Cities in the large metropolitan area around Philadelphia had formerly hesitated to construct sewage treatment plants until definite action was taken by Philadelphia, the worst offender. Since 1905 Pennsylvania has had legislation giving the State Health Department power to compel cities to erect sewage treatment works and in the Pure Stream Law of 1937 similar powers were granted with regard to industrial wastes. The primary difficulty in forcing cities to construct sewage treatment plants has been financial and while Philadelphia has developed a comprehensive plan of sewage treatment and disposal it has been unable to effectuate it because the expenditures involved were beyond its borrowing power under existing legal limitations.

In its 1937 session, the Legislature of this state amended its Municipal Authorities Act of 1935, empowering the municipalities of various classes, either singly or jointly to acquire, construct, maintain and operate self-liquidating public works and issue non-debt revenue bonds whose security was pledged, in whole or in part, by annual sewer rentals. Under this act the city of Philadelphia and two groups of Delaware County municipalities have set up authorities empowered to construct sewage treatment systems.

Two court cases, brought on original jurisdiction to the Supreme Court of this state in 1938, tested the validity of the state laws and of the authorities set up thereunder. The Interstate Commission on the Delaware River Basin, being extremely interested in these cases, appeared as amicus curiae and presented a brief to the court, outlining the importance of the question to the whole problem of pollution in the Delaware and to the four-state program for its abatement. The decision of the court upheld the constitutionality of the act, recognizing that the treatment of sewage is as much a public service as is the furnishing of water for domestic or industrial uses. This decision of the court clears the financial path for the development of an adequate sewage treatment program by the cities of this state and paves the way for a positive solution of the pollution problem in the Delaware.

The maximum time limit set under the four state agreement for the completion of municipal sewage disposal systems is ten years, a relatively short time for an accomplishment of this kind, in view of past experience.

Quantity of Water

The Advisory Committee on the Quantity of Water consists of men who represent the chief water supply agencies in the Delaware River Basin. This Committee was formed because the Interstate Commission on the Delaware River Basin felt it necessary to inventory and organize the tremendous volume of facts, opinion and experience which these individuals and their agencies had accumulated or had at their disposal. The Commission felt that they would best be able to present a picture of the present and probable future water supply needs of each of the four states.

This Committee was given the task of determining the basis upon which a sound and equitable allocation of the water of the river could be made. It has long been evident that the metropolitan areas of these four states would have to depend on the waters of the Delaware as one of their chief sources of supply. The long history of disputes over the equitable apportionment of the potable waters of the river is an indication that the solution is not easy.

In the famous Delaware River case of 1931, in which New Jersey contested the right of New York to divert water from the upper tributaries of the Delaware, the United States Supreme Court clearly set forth the right of each state to an "equitably apportioned" share. New York was given the right to divert, provided she opened her reservoirs whenever the river dropped blow a fixed amount of flow, thus insuring that she would not substantially injure the interests of the other states.

Since that time the water supply problem of northern New Jersey municipalities and of Philadelphia has become pressing. All plans that have been formulated for these areas have contemplated tapping the Delaware for this purpose. The imminence of those needs was brought to the forefront when, at the beginning of 1939, Governor A. Harry Moore of New Jersey announced a plan for tapping the Delaware River for future water for north Jersey communities.

The plan immediately raised protests in that it vitally affected both New York and this state. The plan of Governor Moore made no arrangement for compulsory releases of water similar to those imposed upon New York by the Supreme Court decision. This would have meant that at low stage New York City would have to release waters from its upper basin reservoirs to maintain the level fixed by the Supreme Court in the face of withdrawals of water by New Jersey. It was natural that Pennsylvania should fear that the action of New Jersey would have the effect of decreasing the fresh water flow at low stage thus increasing the salinity of the lower river so as to imperil industries dependent upon the river for supplies of fresh water and that further demands upon the water supply of the Delaware would decrease the dilution of river pollution. In this situation was the genesis of another interstate controversy before the Supreme Court which might again involve the states in expensive ligitation. The existence of the Interstate Commission on the Delaware River Basin, however, made possible immediate interstate efforts to reach an agreement. The machinery of cooperation was established and the former delays in beginning negotiations were obviated.

From existing state agencies. essential information has been pooled and new data—basic to the question—prepared. The task is now entering the stage where an authoriative report of the situation will emerge. Incodel hopes to crystallize this information and negotiate an interstate agreement prescribing an equitable allocation of the waters of the interstate Delaware River.

Planning

A third important field of operation has been that of planning for the future of the Delaware River Basin. The chairmen and the directors of the State Planning Boards in the basin have organized a joint program which will ultimately lead to the preparation of a comprehensive plan of development for the basin and its rources, both human and physical. For the presentation of the physical facts about conditions as they now exist within the basin, for the showing of interstate improvement proposals originating jointly with the several state planning agencies, and for special basin study, it has seemed of first importance to prepare a series of maps for the basin. The Commission's drafting staff, therefore assisted by draftsmen loaned for part-time work by the State Planning Boards, has been principally engaged during the past year in preparing such a series of base maps.

These record maps, completed or in process, deal with water use and control, population and industrial movements, soil potentialities and other natural resources; present and probable future use of land, recreational facilities and requirements, and the various forms of transportation, existing or required.

In addition to this broader field of comprehensive planning, work is now under way by the members of this Committee in laying out a broad program of conservation for that portion of the basin comprising the Upper Valley. The opportunity is here presented to the members of the Planning Committee to recommend preventive measures rather than those of a corrective or remedial nature. To begin the work of translating those recommendations into actuality the Commission has engaged the services of a field man for the promotion of the activties of local governments and citizens groups in preserving the natural beatuies of the basin.

Information and Research

Following considerable discussion by the Commission, it was decided in March, 1938, that an effort should be made to establish Incodel as a clearing house of information on the resources of the Delaware River Basin. As a step in this direction, an Advisory Committee on Information and Research was created, composed of representatives from leading educational institutions within the Basin, together with a limited number of technicians.

Upon the advice of the members of this committee, a movement was begun toward the building up of an adequate bibliography of the literature concerning the Delaware River Basin. As an essential requirement to the compilation of a bibliography, it was necessary to prepare a systematic classification, properly symbolized, to cover all subject matter in which Incodel might become interested.

Another experimental approach to the clearing house media has been made. A questionnaire regarding the adequacy and inadequacy of hydrologic data—a field which some call H² Omissions— has been prepared for Incodel by the National Resources Committee. This questionnaire covering, largely, current and proposed hydrologic research in the Delaware River Basin, has been circulated among all the public and private agencies in this four-state area. The returns are now being compiled and a later analysis and report will be prepared thereon for Incodel by a hydrologist furnished by the National Resources Committee.

Conclusion

In the Upper Delaware Valley, the combination of land, water and people has undergone little change in recent decades. As an area of great scenic beauty and charm, recreation has become its major industry. A contrasting pattern is found in the lower basin where an increasing population is massed in a series of highly industralized metropolitan districts. Comprehensive planning is required if the whole basin is to be developed so that all of the human and natural resources will have their proper places and development in relation to each other. Incodel has as it objective the balance of these resources and their development in harmony with the interests of the whole people. Pennsylvania's representatives on the Interstate Commission on the Delaware River Basin are proud of its accomplishments to date and heartily recommend the support of its program to the citizens and officials of this state.

FISHERIES

Since our report of two years ago, the necessity of and possible steps for conserving our fisheries have been brought forcibly to the attention of this Commission and to the Commissioner of Fisheries. Two portions of Pennsylvania's boundary lie on interstate waters which contain food fisheries of sufficient importance to be of commercial value. These are Lake Erie and the Delaware River.

The serious depletion which exists on Lake Erie because of lack of adequate regulation has resulted in unemployment in our lake towns. Proper control of seasons, legal size of fish, mesh, and related problems is a matter of cooperative action among the states and the Province of Ontario since the lake comes under their several jurisdictions.

During the last several decades numerous attempts at common action have been made but all have failed for one reason or another. Lake Erie has for years been the most productive of the Great Lakes but because of overfishing and inadequate control its normal annual production of approximately fifty million pounds now is only slightly better than thirty million pounds. Production of two of its most important species have declined as follows: for sturgeon, the 1880-1903 average annual catch of 1,750,000 pounds was reduced in 1930-34 to an annual catch of 15,000 pounds, or a 97.2% decrease. Cisco, which had an average annual catch from 1900-10 of 19,000,000 pounds fell to 135,000 pounds average for 1933-36. Both species are now practically non-existent. Similar pictures could be painted for other species. Pennsylvania has a vital stake in this matter and the need for action is imperative.

On September 10, 1937, members of this Commission and representatives of the Commissioner of Fisheries attended a conference called by the New York Joint Legislative Committee on Interstate Cooperation for a preliminary discussion of the problem of fisheries depletion in the Great Lakes, on the Atlantic Coast and in our interstate rivers. Fisheries officials and Cooperation Commissioners from Connecticut, Delaware, Massachusetts, New Jersey, New York and Rhode Island were also in attendance as were representatives of the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries. That discussion resulted in a Great Lakes Fisheries Conference in Detroit, February 25-26, 1938 which was participated in by representatives of the eight lake states, the Province of Ontario, and several federal agencies. Conclusions of that conference were that the desired coodinated action on the lakes could best be secured through establishment of an International Board of Inquiry set up by treaty. Such action as might be taken under the treaty should be supplemented by separate compacts among the states for each individual lake. It is probable that some time during the next year one of the individual Cooperation Commissions or the Council of State Governments at their request, will call a meeting of states bordering on Lake Erie to determine the specific steps to be taken to preserve or restore this valuable fish industry. Your Commission urges that this State participate in that meeting and that whatever recommendations come from the meeting be given serious consideration.

On the Delaware River our problem is quite different. Polution has been largely responsible for the destruction of the Delaware Bay shad fishery which the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries estimates as an annual loss of at least $200,000. Steps which have been taken by New York and New Jersey, at the instigation of their Cooperation Commissions, with regard to shad regulation on the Hudson River seem to point the way for the Delaware. One of the resolutions adopted by the Eastern States Conservation Conference of November, 1938, reads as follows:

> "Resolved that this conference urge the Atlantic seaboard states to adopt, for the regulation of their shad fisheries, regulations similar to those of New York State in the Hudson River, which provide for: (1) the protection of spawning areas; and (2) an escapement period of two full days a week, extending from Friday sunset to Monday sunrise, during the open season."
> "Be It Further Resolved that these Conferees seek the enactment of such regulations in their respective states."

On the Hudson, the spawning areas were protected and nets were required to be lifted from one hour after sunset on Friday to one hour before sunrise the following Monday morning during the open season in order to allow a period of escapment as the fish up the river to spawn. This type of protection resulted in an increase in the annual catch in New York waters from 24,000 pounds in 1915 to 1,000,000 pounds in 1937 and approximately one and one third million pounds in the New Jersey portion of the Hudson in 1937.

There are few shad in the Delaware River at the present time, but if the suggested protective action is taken now by the states concerned, when our present efforts at pollution abatement succeed, there will be no impediment to the return of shad to the Delaware.

HIGHWAY SAFETY AND MOTOR VEHICLES

Three highway safety conferences have been held under the auspices of the New York Joint Legislative Committee on Interstate Cooperation since our report of two years ago. They were known as the Second, Third and Fourth Regional Highway Safety conferences and were held in New York City on March 12-13, 1937, March 4, 1938, and February 24-25, 1939, respectively. Legislators, motor vehicle commisisoners, superintendents of state pol and highway engineers of eight or nine northeastern ates and representatives of various related federal and civic agencies have attended each of these meetings. The Pennsylvania Commission on Interstate Cooperation and the Bureau of Motor Vehicles and the State Police have been represented at each meeting.

The discussions have included such subjects as speeding, traffic law enforcement, compulsory periodic inspections of motor vehicles, the examination and reexamination of drivers, hours of service of commercial drivers, rules of the road and the uniform motor vehicle code, uniform equipment standards, used cars, the federal motor carrier act, safety education, pedestrian accidents, house trailers and reciprocal reporting of motor vehicle violations between states.

Many of the recommendations of these conferences on the particular subjects have already been put into effect in Pennsylvania including the fifty mile speed limit, speed zoning, periodic inspection, safety education in the schools, and the reciprocal reporting of motor vehicle violations between states. But there are others which Pennsylvania does not have and which this Commission recommends for consideration as conducive to greater highway safety and further uniformity of state motor vehicle laws.

This Commission recommends a regulation by the state of the maximum number of hours of service of commercial drivers. They should be required to keep and carry a driver's log similar in form to that required by the Interstate Commerce Commission as a record of their hours and these should be kept in duplicate.

In order to bring about uniformity in the laws regulating the operation and use of house coaches and trailers, your Commission recommends adoption of all those sections that can be made applicable of the Uniform Trailer Code which was drafted after considerable study by the Advisory Committee on Uniform Trailer Legislation of the 1937 Highway Safety Conference. This draft of a model trailer code and the report upon which it is based are being used in all parts of the country to eliminate conflicting local ordinances and state laws in this new motor vehicle field. Reciprocity among the states is desirable and one of the objectives of this code.

In view of the abuses in the used car field where cars from out of the state are frequently sold under fraudulent registration, we recommend legislation* which would require persons bringing used cars into the state for sale to present proof of the title thereto and freedom from liens thereon.

The pedestrian accident situation is one of the most serious in this field since in many states pedestrians constitute more than fifty percent of traffic fatalities. The Fourth Regional Highway Safety Conference held in February, 1939, recognized, however, the difficulty of protecting the pedestrian from his own folly by compelling him to give strict observance to traffic signals and rules. But it felt that every effort should be made to secure greater pedestrian safety. All in attendance were strongly in favor of the continuance of the reciprocal reporting among the states of convictions for violations of motor vehicle laws of another state. The conferees also felt that the motor vehicle administrator should have power to reexamine drivers whenever he had good reason to believe their driving efficiency was impaired.

The longer the states delay taking proper steps to bring about uniformity in their motor vehicle laws, the greater is the possibility of the federal government entering the field through legislation and additional conditions to their grants-in-aid on highways. In view of the vital necessity of securing minimum uniformity among the states in such laws, we again commend adherence to the Uniform Motor Vehicle Code as a means of attaining it.

RESOLUTIONS
ADOPTED AT
FOURTH REGIONAL CONFERENCE ON HIGHWAY SAFETY & MOTOR VEHICLE PROBLEMS

New York Joint Legislative Committee on Interstate Cooperation

Hotel Roosevelt New York City February 24-25, 1939

Presiding Officer
Hon. Harold C. Ostertag, Chairman
New York Joint Legislative Committee on Interstate Cooperation

Associate Chairmen
Hon. Lawrence C. Jones, Chairman
Vermont Interstate Cooperation Commission
Judge Richard Hartshorne, Chairman
New Jersey Interstate Cooperation Commission

Equipment Standards and Periodic Inspection

RESOLVED that this conference endorses the work of the American Assocaition of Motor Vehicle Administrators in their cooperation with the Automobile Manufacturers Association in endeavoring to secure more uniform equipment standards on motor vehicles.

Rear Bumpers:

RESOLVED that this conference recommends rear bumpers of a uniform height for every type of vehicle where it is practicable.

Marker Lights on Buses and Trucks:

RESOLVED that this conference recommends that national uniformity is desirable with regard to the use of marker lights on buses and trucks.

Compulsory Periodic Inspection of Motor Vehicles:

RESOLVED that this conference endorses a properly conducted system of compulsory periodic motor vehicle inspection as essential to a progressive motor vehicle administration.

Highway Traffic, Rules of the Road, and Highway Improvements

Speeding:

RESOLVED that speed limits should be absolute, that there should be a lower limit for night driving, and that scientific speed zoning by a competent state agency should be encouraged.

Pedestrians:

RESOLVED that in view of the pedestrian accident problem, attention should be given to the development of a definite program directed toward the prevention of pedestrian accidents, including the reasonable enforcement of pedestrian traffic rules.

Bicycles:

RESOLVED that when bicycles are ridden in the street, their riders should be required to observe the same rules of the road as motor drivers, except those rules which by their nature would not specifically apply.

Vending of Goods:

RESOLVED that all vending should be prohibited within the right of way of state highways.

Highway Improvements:

RESOLVED that highway lighting is recommended where night accident records warrant and when economically justified; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that further study should be given to the development of roadside reflectors.

Law Enforcement

Fresh Pursuit:

WHEREAS the uniform act on fresh pursuit now relates to felonies,

BE IT RESOLVED that the advisability of extending the act to cover misdeameanors or jail offenses be recommended for consideration by the Interstate Commission on Crime.

Reciprocal Reporting of Serious Motor Vehicle Violations:

WHEREAS it is recognized that reciprocal reporting of serious motor vehicle violations between states is helpful in reducing motor vehicle accidents,

BE IT RESOLVED that this Conference recommends the adoption of legislation in all states requiring motor vehicle administrators to report all serious motor vehicle violations by out-of-state vehicles to the administrator of the issuing state in accordance with the rule and regulations adopted by such state.

State System of Traffic Courts:

WHEREAS it is recognized that in some states the establishment of a state system of traffic courts is a problem worthy of consideration,

BE IT RESOLVED that this Conference recommends such states study their local conditions and enact legislation for any correction which may be found necessary.

Maintenance of 24 Hour Information Service:

BE IT RESOLVED that this Conference recognize the importance of 24-hour service for the issuance of information pertaining to motor vehicle matters and recommends that the motor vehicle departments of all states make available this information of law enforcement agencies 24 hours of each day.

Hours of Service and Examination of Drivers

Standard Intoxication Examination:

WHEREAS while it is desirable that there be a standard medical examination of persons charged with intoxication or driving while intoxicated, it is the sense of this conference that no such standard examination has been devised and that only when such an examination has been determined by the proper medical authorities should its adoption be considered by motor vehicle officials.

Periodic Re-examination of Drivers:

RESOLVED that the periodic re-examination of motor vehicle drivers is desirable where the accident frequency or severity indicates the necessity, whether because of age or otherwise.

Examination of Drivers:

WHEREAS it appears that fitness to operate is the paramount factor in determining whether or not licenses for driving should be issued,

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED that licensing authorities should not be prohibited from granting original licenses or renewals because of the age of the applicant; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that an objective test sufficiently broad in scope and designed to determine the ability of the person to operate safely a motor vehicle is the best basis for determining the issuance of licenses.

Hours of Service:

RESOLVED that the states that have enacted adequate hours of service laws should continue their enforcement in the interest of highway safety and that those states not having such laws should proceed with the enactment of such legislation.

Safety Education

1. RESOLVED that this conference suggests that the states in this region, where possible, be urged to make compulsory the teaching of safety education in both the elementary and secondary schools. Where such courses are being taught that meet with the approval of the duly authorized licensing authority, a certificate of the successful completion of such courses might be issued to the student at the discretion of such duly authorized licensing authority for future acceptance in lieu of further examination, except for the physical examination and road test.

2. RESOLVED that this conference compliments New York University on the founding of the National Center for Safety Education, which provides the facilities for preparing teachers to carry on the program of safety education.

3. RESOLVED that this conference, recognizing the seriousness of the pedestrian problem, urges that more emphasis be placed on education of pedestrians and that all civic groups cooperate with their local public officials to promote safety in all of its phases.

And that this conference appreciates the cooperation of the following agencies whose facilities have been helpful in effecting the 20% reduction in traffic fatalities in 1938, and urges their continued cooperation to the end that further reduction may be made: (1) newspapers and periodicals; (2) radio; (3) outdoor advertising associations; (4) the motion picture industry; and (5) civic groups.

LIQUOR CONTROL

Even though Pennsylvania is a "monopoly" state in the control of alcoholic beverages it has almost as many interstate problems in this field as states which license private stores. Discriminatory practices among the states affect us as adversely as they do other states. While there are many interstate aspects to liquor control, a number of which will be discussed here, discrimination between states and against out-of-state products has come to be the most serious.

Because the 21st Amendment placed most of the responsibility for liquor control directly in the hands of the states, each state is a sovereignty in its own right in the liquor control field. The Supreme Court has interpreted the Amendment to negate the very purpose of the commerce clause of the Constitution so far as liquor control is concerned.

The equal protection clause is also superseded by the 21st Amendment in matters of liquor control and the states may regulate or even prohibt the importation of liquors across their boundaries.

In the case of State Board of Equalization of Cailfornia vs. Young's Market Co.[1] it was held that the exaction of a $500 license fee for the privilege of importing beer into the State of California was not a violation of the Commerce Clause or the Equal Protection Clause of the Constitution in view of the 21st Amendment. Said the Court: The 21st Amendment "abrogated the right to import free, so far as concerns intoxicating liquors. The words used are apt to confer upon the state the power to forbid all importations which do not comply with the conditions which it prescribes." The Court went on to say that the state could adopt a lesser degree of regulation than that of total prohibition.

In the case of Mahoney vs. Joseph Triner Corporation,[2] the Supreme Court reversed a decision of the District Court of Minnesota holding unconstitutional a provision of the Minnesota Control Act. The sections invalidated by the District Court decision would have prohibited importation of liquor unless the brands were registered in the U. S. Patent Office. The District Court had held that the provisions denied the citizens of foreign states equal protection of the laws in violation of the Fourteenth Amendment and were therefore unconstitutional. The District Court had also held that the Twenty-first Amendment did not intend that liquor should be excepted from the provisions of the commerce clause.

Many feel that the Supreme Court is going beyond the intention of the framers of the Twenty-first Amendment by ruling that the states can enact laws discriminating against out-of-state liquor in favor of local interests but the court says that to interpret the law otherwise would "involve not a construction of the amendment, but a rewriting of it."

In spite of efforts of the Federal Alcohol Administration and the National Conference of State Liquor Administrators to develop further uniformity in laws and regulations and to prevent discriminatory practices, this evil has continued to spread. In October, 1938, the Council of State Governments published a study entitled "Preliminary Report on Interstate Cooperation in Liquor Regulations." This points out some of the steps that are being taken to bring state laws into greater harmony and the fields in which the most work is needed. In order to outline the specific problems more clearly, the New York Joint Legislative Committee on Interstate Cooperation called a Second Regional Conference on Liquor Control in New York City on November 18, 1938.

Representatives of the states of Connecticut, Delaware, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Vermont, and New York and officials of the Federal Alcohol Administration attended that meeting. Many industry representatives were also present. The phases of liquor control administration that were discussed included: the extension of credit by wholesalers to retailers; advertising standards and practices; need for interstate reciprocity and possible methods of obtaining it; regulation of the sale of liquor warehouse receipts; fair trade practices in the industry and who should enforce them; and taxation problems.

With regard to advertising regulations, the Conference expressed the belief that greater uniformity among the states and with the Federal Government was desirable. It may be possible in some instances for the states to adopt the Federal Alcohol Administration regulations as a set of minimum standards for intrastate advertising.

The discussion concerning the regulation of the sale of liquor warehouse receipts was of particular interest to Pennsylvania. Warehouse receipts for liquor have frequently been sold under misrepresentation practically amounting to fraud, and people have bought them in the belief that they were buying liquor. The situation needs correction and the commission believes that the bill recommended at this conference would solve it. The model bill would place the sale of warehouse receipts under the supervision of the state liquor commission and is based on the New Jersey law. This commission recommends to the consideration of the legislature, a bill similar in purpose to the one appended to this section of the report.

Most interesting discussion centered around the proposal that an interstate compact* might be used as a means of promoting uniformity and preventing the erection of interstate barriers in the liquor field. Such a compact would provide that the signatory states would not tax alcoholic beverages from outside the state or license persons from outside the state who were not selling alcoholic beverages at a higher rate or fee than similar products or persons from within the state were taxed or licensed. At the suggestion of the conference. a committee was appointed by Chairman Ostertag to prepare a draft of a compact designed to achieve this end. It is probable that this draft will be completed during the forthcoming year and be ready for submission to the legislatures at their next sessions. Discussion to date reveals a concenus of opinion on the point that the compact should be simple in terminology and as broad as possible in order to increase its scope and effectiveness. It may well be that this will be the means of ending the liquor trade wars among the states. For, while the Court has held that the equal protection and interstate commerce clauses of the constitution have been nullified, so far as liquor is concerned, by the Twenty-first Amendment, such a compact would afford the protection of the obligations-of-contract clause to the states entering therein. Your Commission recommends the compact to your earnest consideration.

THE SECOND REGIONAL LIQUOR CONTROL CONFERENCE Called by The
New York Joint Legislative Committee on Interstate Cooperation

November 18, 1938
Park Central Hotel
New York City

Harold C. Ostertag, Chairman
N. Y. Joint Legislative Committee on Interstate Cooperation, presiding

Participating States

Connecticut, Delaware, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Vermont, and New York.

PREAMBLE

In the interest of sound liquor control and uniformity of liquor laws among the states, the following resolutions are recommended for legislative action in those states having recognized problems covered by the subject matter of the individual resolutions.

Advertising

RESOLVED that the states should adopt or empower their liquor administrations to adopt the Federal Alcohol Administration advertising regulations as a set of minimum standards to apply to intrastate advertising.

Extension of Credit

RESOLVED that this conference urge the adoption of a uniform extension of credit law in those states not now on a cash basis.

Warehouse Receipts

RESOLVED that this conference approve the uniform law prohibiting the sale of liquor warehouse receipts except under license issued by the state liquor administrations and urge its adoption by the states.

Interstate Reciprocity

1. RESOLVED that in order to aid states in the enforcement of their laws that the statutes or the regulations issued under the statutes of each state should require licensees to respect the laws of adjoining states in order to prevent bootlegging into dry monopoly or license states. To this end, state laws and regulations controlling out-of-state shipments should prohibit any licensee from tranporting or importing any intoxicating liquor or from delivering said liquor for the transportation or importation into any state for use therein in violation of the laws thereof.

2. RESOLVED that it is the opinion of this conference that the state liquor authorities in each state, under their respective statutory authority, should promulgate reciprocal regulations with other states with regard to liquor control whenever possible.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that this conference deplores the present unfortunate tendency for states to raise discriminatory barriers against the products of other states, and that this conference deplores the enactment by states of laws discriminatory against the products of other states in any way, shape or form, and urges that the legislators of all states give thorough study and consideration to any so-called "anti-discrimination" bills introduced into their legislatures.

Fair Trade Practices

RESOLVED that in the opinion of this conference the following constitute unfair trade practices in the sale and distribution of alcoholic beverages, and that for the purpose of eliminating such practices the liquor authorities of the respective states should be empowered to regulate or prohibit them:

1. Ownership or control of retail outlets by the wholesaler.
2. Subsidizing of retail outlets through loans gifts, or otherwise.
3. Commercial bribery.
4. Consignment selling.
5. False and misleading advertising.

Interstate Compact Recommended

RESOLVED that this conference recommends a study of the interstate compact as a means of securing greater uniformity in methods and levels of taxation and as a way of preventing the raising of interstate barriers in the liquor field and recommends such a study to the Commissions on Interstate Cooperation in this region.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that a suggested draft of a compact on this subject be prepared for submission by mail to the state conferees and the Committees and Commissions on Interstate Cooperation for their consideration and suggestions.

Future Action

RESOLVED that this conference call a meeting of representatives from the state liquor authorities, state tax units, and state Commissions on Interstate Cooperation in this area, to be held at the time of the Fourth General Assembly of the Council of State Governments in Washington, January 1939, for the purpose of drafting and approving specific reciprocal and uniform laws and an interstate compact covering various problems of liquor control considered at this conference in order to recommend them to the various state ligislatures for enactment in the 1939 legislative sessions.

MARRIAGE LAWS

Uniform state marriage laws have recently been brought forcefully to public attention by the proposal made by Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas to amend the U. S. Constitution to the effect that "The Congress shall have power to make laws, which shall be uniform throughout the United States, on marriage and divorce, the legitimation of children, and the care and custody of children affected by annulment of marriage or by divorce."

In the hope of stimulating action among the states in this field which has many interstate ramifications but in which little cooperative action has been undertaken. the New York Joint Legislative Committee on Interstate Cooperaton held a Regional Hearing on Uniform Marriage and Adoption Laws on December 17, 1937, in New York City. This commission was represented at the hearing by Senator George Woodward. The subjects to which the discussion was limited included statutory requirements for premarital examinations, waiting periods, marriage evasion laws, and state adoption laws.

In April, 1938, the Council of State Governments published a special study on the provisions and administration of state marriage laws that had been made by it as a result of the hearing. This report considered various aspects of federal control of marriage and divorce and also discussed premarital examination laws in some detail.

At the time of the hearing. the states of Connecticut, Illinois, Michigan, New Hampshire and Wisconsin had laws requiring both applicants for a marriage license to present a physician's certificate of their freedom from venereal disease. During 1938, although only 8 legislatures were in regular session, the states of Kentucky, New York, New Jersey, Oregon,[1] and Rhode Island passed similar laws. Several other states require only the male applicant to present such a certificate. A number of additional states have already passed this type of legislation in 1939.

Such legislation has many ramifications and many questions must be answered in drafting it. Should it include only syphilis or all venereal diseases? Should the license be withheld only when the disease is in the communicable stage? Should there be any statutory reference to examination fees? Should there be provision under which the clerk can waive the waiting period and examination requirements in issuing a license where special circumstances make it advisable? These and many other questions of merit consideration in such a bill. It should not be broader or stronger than the medical profession and public opinion will support or it will not be enforced.

Because syphilis may be spread from the mother to the child before birth, your commission also recommends earnest consideration of legislation similar to that in New York. New Jersey and Rhode Island, where the physicians attending expectant mothers are required to make a standard blood test for venereal disease. Both types of laws here mentoned should be helpful in improving the health of our citizens and for that reason we recommend enactment of legislation similar to Senate Bills 661 and 662.*

At the beginning of 1939 at least twenty-five states had laws which required that applicants for a marriage license wait a specified numberof days after applying for license before it could be granted. This was usually three days but varied among the states from two to five days. The purpose of such legislation is to prevent hasty marriages. Pennsylvania has such a law. Experience with premarital examination laws is beginning to indicate that a waiting period along with an examination law is perhaps unnecessary and may be undesirable. For in most instances, at least three days are required to secure the results of the blood test. This is coming to be regarded as sufficient notice of intention and restrictive enough to prevent so-called "hasty" marriages. This commission recommends that if and when a pre-marital examination law is passed in Pennsylvania, the present waiting period be combined with it in some way in order not to become an added restriction on marriage license applicants.

It is well known that up until the last few years "marriage mills" have existed in a number of states, just across the boundary line from states with more stringent marriage laws. The uniform marriage evasion law drafted in 1912 by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws was not effective in meeting this situation in those few states in which it was enacted. Recently, waiting periods and premarital examinations made the marriage mill still more popular, until these requirements were also passed and took away their value. When such laws become universal throughout a region or throughout the country, they may obviate the need for a marriage evasion law. The marriage evasion law* would require out-of-state couples to present evidence that they are qualified to marry under the laws of their home state before a local license is granted to them. Unless they are required to present evidence, such as a marriage license from their home state, this type of law may be ineffective. An example of such a law is appended for legislative consideration.

Adoption laws are so complex that a considerable amoust of research is necessary to determine even the principles that should be included in any recommended legislation. Neither this commission nor any of the other cooperation commissions have been in a position to do the necessary study. For this reason this commission has no recommendation to make at present but desires only to point out that this is a field in which much cooperation between states is needed.

INTERSTATE COMMISSION ON THE OHIO BASIN

The Pennsylvania Commission on Interstate Cooperation has joined with those other states embraced in the drainage basin of the Ohio River in forming the Interstate Commission on the Ohio River Basin. During the biennium this Commission has made marked advances in seeking solution to the problem of pollution in the Basin.

For many years the serious menace to public health caused by the discharge of millions of gallons of sewage and industrial wastes daily into the Ohio River and its tributaries has been a matter of great concern to the health departments of the States in the Ohio River Valley. Due to the rapid growth of the cities and to the expansion of industrial plants in the larger cities, the pollution of the river has increased steadily. Many of the industiral plants discharge wastes which produce extremely objectionable tastes and odors in public water supplies taken from the river.

The seriousness of this pollution became more apparent to the municipalities in the river valley during the severe droughts that occurred during the summers of 1930 and 1934, when the flow of the Ohio River became so low that some of the pools formed by government navigation dams became virtually open cesspools. During the latter part of the severe drought of 1930, epidemics of gastroenteritis involving thousands of cases were visited upon many cities in the valley. According to reports of investigators of the United States Public Health Service, this condition was caused by the discharge of sewage and wastes into the Ohio River from which these cities obtain their public water supplies.

The dangers to health created by sewage pollution were further demonstrated during the flood periods of 1935, 1936 and 1937. During the flood of 1937 water works plants serving a large number of cities and towns with public water supplies were wholly or partially flooded with highly polluted waters of the river. During the early stages of such flood conditions the flushing action of accumulated sewage deposit behind the navigation dams exerted an extremely heavy bacterial loading upon downstream waterworks intakes.

Some conception of the severe pollution of the Ohio River, and the public health hazards arising from the use of this stream for public water supply purposes, may be gained by the fact that the raw untreated sewage from more than 5,800,000 persons and the treated sewage from more than 2,400,000 additional persons are discharged daily into the Ohio River and its tributaries; that over 6,200.000 persons are supplied with water from the Ohio River and its tributaries; and that 1,500,000 persons are supplied with water direct from the Ohio River itself. The concentration of bacterial pollution in the river water for many weeks at a time is far greater than that considered safe to be used as a source of public water supply, even when the water is treated by the most modern methods of filtration, supplemented by chlorination, under the direction of competent trained and experienced operators.

Recognizing this threat to public health and in response to public demand, the 74th Congress of the United States adopted Public Resolution No. 104, approved June 8, 1936, authorizing the States in the Ohio River drainage basin to enter into an interstate compact for the control and abatemen of stream pollution. Pursuant to this enabling legsilation, representatives of the States in the Basin met at Cincinnati on November 20, 1936, at which meeting a subcommittee was appointed to prepare a tentative draft of an Ohio River Valley Water Sanitation Compact. This subcommittee, which comprised the respective state sanitary engineers and representatives of the Unitd States Public Health Service, met at Louisville on December 18 and 19, 1936, and prepared such a tentative compact, including minimum standards for sewage and waste tretment.

Following the preliminary meetings of 1936, the eight participating States in the Ohio River Drainage Basin held meetings in Cincinnati on January 17, 1938, May 24, 1938, June 13, 1938, and October 11, 1938. Membres of the Interstate Commission on the Ohio Basin met jointly with the Public Health Executives of the States and took an important part in the deliberations of the subcommittees. As a result of the work of these subcommittees and subsequent deliberations, a compact was finally agreed upon and adopted on October 11, 1938. In the Appendix accompanying this report, will be found the proposed compact in its entirety. The compact itself is included in the proposed uniform bill, as introduced in the House and which would also create the Ohio River Valley Water Sanitation Commission. The proposed compact and uniform bill will be before the legislatures of all the States in the Ohio Valley early in 1939, except that of Kentucky which will not meet except on special call prior to 1940. Upon the adoption of the compact by the majority of the States interested, the compact will be submitted to Congress for ratification and will become effective in the remaining States as they adopt it thereafter.

It also appears likely that legislation will be enacted granting Federal aid to the States, to assist in abating pollution of interstate streams. The Ohio River Valley Water

* See Appendix.

Sanitation District will provide an organized unit to receive Federal grants and, as the authority embracing the entire drainage area, will be in a position to most effectively apply the use of these funds for the greatest benefit of the entire Basin.

The Interstate Commission on the Ohio Basin is, of course, concerned with other needs of development within the drainage area. It has already cooperated with Federal agencies on Planning and Land Use throughout the area, and it provides a logical unit for the effective integration of Federal and State programs over a long term.

INTERSTATE COMMISSION ON THE POTOMAC RIVER BASIN

The Potomac River drainage basin is an area of approximately 14,000 square miles embracing parts of the states of Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia and Maryland, and the District of Columbia. The estimated population of the watershed is slightly more than 1,300,000 of which half is urban and half rural; 40% is within the District of Columbia, 25% in Maryland, and the rest in the other three states. The uses to which the river is put are varied and include domestic water supply, disposal of domestic and industrial waste, coal mine waste, navigation, fishing, and the development of shellfish areas.

Virtually every type of stream pollution is encountered in this river basin, the bulk of the domestic sewage coming from the Washington metropolitan area. Extensive data on the chemical and bacteriological content of the river as well as of its biochemical and hydrological characteristics have been carefully collected and studied by various federal, state, local and industrial agencies for many years. In May 1935 the Special Advisory Committee on Water Pollution of the National Resources Committee recommended [1] the establishment in this area of an administrative agency as a demonstration project on pollution abatement in which all levels of government would participate.

In 1937, Congress gave consent [2] to Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia and West Virginia and the District of Columbia to enter into a compact providing for the creation of a district covering the area drained by the Potomac River and its tributary streams. The purpose of the district is to regulate, control, prevent, or otherwise render unobjectionable and harmless the pollution of the waters of this area by sewage, industrial and other wastes.

In 1938, several exploratory meetings were held. At the Fourth General Assembly of the Council of State Governments in January, 1939, representatives from Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia and West Virginia and the District of Columbia, meeting to determine a plan of action for eliminating pollution in the Potomac, heard Robert H. Riley of the Maryland Department of Health say "this problem has been with us for nearly twenty years. Many of us have attended the numerous conferences through which we have sought a solution to the Potomac River pollution situation. I believe we are all agreed that the only permanent solution can be attained through an interstate compact." A meeting of representatives of the commissions on interstate cooperation, planning officials and sanitary engineers was planned for some time before March 15 for the purpose of setting up permanent machinery to deal with the problem.

That meeting was held in Washington, D. C., March 6, 1939, and was attended by representatives of the four state governments, the District of Columbia, and several federal agencies as well as by the Director and Assistant Director of the Council of State Governments which organized the meeting.

This state was represented by F. A. Pitkin, Executive Director, State Planning Board, W. L. Stevenson, Director, Bureau of Engineering, State Department of Health, as well as by Hon. Thomas B. Stockham, a member of the Pennsylvania Commission on Interstate Cooperation. At that time the official delegates agreed on a revised draft of a proposed compact which would establish the Potomac Valley Conservancy District comprising all of the area drained by the Potomac and its tributaries and would create the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin. The text of the proposed compact is appended to this report. The delegates also agreed on a proposed allocation of administrative costs based on such factors as population, amount of industrial and domestic pollution, and a flat service charge subject to the approval and appropriation by the signatory bodies. The total sums from the signatory bodies is not to exceed $30,000 a year and the proposed budget for the first year is $12,000. On this basis, the suggested allocation would be:

Pennsylvania	10	$1,200
Virginia	20	2,400
West Virginia	15	1,800
Maryland	25	3,000
District of Columbia	30	3,600

Joint efforts to improve the quality of water in the Potomac River afford Pennsylvania and its Commission on Interstate Cooperation an opportunity to demonstrate along with its neighboring states, the practicability of this method of solving problems that cross state boundaries.

The Pennsylvania Commission on Interstate Cooperation urges the consideration of the following resolutions adopted at the meeting and urges the legislature to adopt the proposed compact as set forth in the Appendix.

Resolutions Adopted by the Special Interstate Committee on the Potomac River Basin
March 6, 1939
Chairman, Frank Bane

Resolution I.

WHEREAS the Washington Board of Trade, the United States Chamber of Commerce, and the Council of State Governments have so generously cooperated with this body in furnishing materials, place of meeting and time of their personnel,

BE IT RESOLVED that the secretary of this conference is hereby directed to address a letter to each of the above organizations expressing the gratitude of the conference for its cooperation.

Resolution II.

WHEREAS the Congress of the United States by the enactment of Joint Resolution 162 (75th Congress, 1st Session), gave its consent to the States of Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, and the District of Columbia, comprising the drainage area of the Potomac River and its tributaries, to negotiate and enter into a compact or agreement for the creation of a conservancy district for the control and prevention of pollution of the water of the said area, and,

WHEREAS the Potomac Valley Pollution Conference has, after due consideration and consulation with officials of the above states and the District of Columbia, prepared a form of compact agreement which has been duly submitted to this Special Interstate Committee,

BE IT RESOLVED that this Commitee record is appreciation of the work of the Potomac Valley Pollution Conference and its subcommittes in the preparation of the compact agreement submitted to this Committee, and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that this Committee herewith state its approval of the principles set forth in the text of the proposed compact, and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the Committee herewith recommends the immediate formation of the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin and recommends the following courses of action:

1. That the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin be the official name of this agency.
2. That each state and the District of Columbia appoint, within 30 days, three commissioners to serve as official representatives on the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin. It is recommended that at least one member of the Commission on Interstate Cooperation be appointed in these states having such a commission.

3. That the Chairman of this Committee be directed to urge and to assist in any way possible the enactment of the necessary legislation required for the formation of the Potomac Valley Conservancy District and the appointment of the members of the Commission to administer the affairs of the said District.
4. That the Chairman of this Committee appoint a secretary who shall serve, without compensation until the first meeting of the Commission, as Secretary of the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin.
5. That the Secretary so appointed shall act at the direction of the Chairman of this Committee to assist him in any way and to call the first meeting of the duly appointed Commissioners.
6. That the Secretary so appointed be empowered to accept any funds, with the approval of the Chairman of this Committee, which may be offered by any official or governmental agency to be used to defray expenses incurred prior to the first meting of the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin or to defray expenses incurred by official members of the Commission in attending the first meeting of the said Commission, and may expend such funds in such manner as may be approved by the Chairman.
7. That the Chairman of this Committee is directed to call a meeting of the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin not later than May 15, 1939.

OTHER FIELDS OF INTERSTATE COOPERATION

In the field of transient relief, little progress has been made during the past two years. The Third General Assembly of the Council of State Governments in January, 1937, recommended that the states adopt the uniform transfer of dependents act and uniform settlement laws. Although a settlement of one year is recommended, there is more of a tendency for the states to increase rather than decrease their residence requirements. Welfare officials agree that the relief of transients should be a responsibility of the federal government because otherwise transients throw an unusual and unfair relief burden on particular states. Congress has not yet recognized this principle and transient relief continues to be a problem of the states. There are many other problems of an interstate nature in connection with administration of the social security laws which the Commissions on Interstate Cooperaton might well be instrumental in solving. Nothing can be done in this direction, however, until the policy of the federal government with respect to changes in the social security laws is more certain.

Milk control is an interstate problem of tremendous economic significance. At the same time it is one which is fraught with uncertainty and confusion in the methods to be used in its regulation. The recent decision in New York State holding invalid the marketing agreement in New York metropolitan area has a depressing effect on milk prices paid to many Pennsylvania farmers. The proper approach to the problem is not clear but it may be a field which this Commission and the other Cooperation Commissions in this region will have to enter in the future.

There appear to be possibilities for an interstate park on the New York border in the Allegheny Mountains and this Commission plans to explore the field for an Allegheny Interstate Park to determine if such a park is either possible or desirable.

Many phases of insurance regulation present opportunities for cooperation among the states. The National Association of Insurance Commissioners have officially recognized the Commissions on Interstate Cooperation and the Council of State Governments as agencies through which this can be expedited and it is expected that closer relations between the two groups will be brought about in the near future.

Conflicting taxation, a concern of this movement for many years, has had little attention and made only slow progress in the past two years. For a proper approach to this problem, representatives of the federal, state and local government must sit down at a common table to discuss existing conditions and possible solutions.

The states, through their joint agency the Council of State Governments have, for several successive years, made available for the study and execution of a plan to eliminate conflicting taxation, a sum of $25,000 when matched by a similar amount from the Federal government. Even though the Federal Government joined the states in creating the Tax Revision Council officially appointed members to it, it has never matched the grant by the states to carry out its purpose and Federal officials have not seemed inclined to meet with representatives of the states to seek a solution. In this field, the states are at a disadvantage because of the more dominant position of the Federal government.

It is encouraging to note the continued activity of the states in ironing out the tax conflicts among themselves. Several meetings of a Midwest Regional Committee on Conflicting Taxation were held in the fall of 1938. At these, representatives of the Commissions on Interstate Cooperation and the State Tax Commissioners agreed to seek a uniform date of assessment and also agreed on other phases of tax administration. Two somewhat similar meetings of New England states were held in Boston early in 1938 at the instigation of the Massachusetts Commission on Interstate Cooperation with beneficial results. Other instances of cooperative activities could be cited. This Commission feels that this is a field which needs many corrections and pledges itself to assist in every possible way to bring them about.

A new field of activity for the Commission on Interstate Cooperation is the elimination of trade barriers among the states. These have grown at an alarming pace in the last few years and represent a menace to internal free trade in this country. They are largely outgrowths of the depression and the result of efforts of states and their local industries to secure a preferential trade position within their border. They may take form in added taxes or license fees, inspection requirements or labeling standards on persons or products of other states. Within the last eight months they have been subjected to an unusual amount of publicity and attack as a result of studies and articles examining their nature. This, together with vigorous opposition from various Federal officials and agencies and action taken at the National Conference on Interstate Trade Barriers called by the Council of State Governments in April of this year, have been instrumental in defeating many such measures in this year's legislative sessions. The Pennsylvania Commission on Interstate Cooperation joins in the opposition to these barriers and promises full cooperation in eliminating this serious menace to our internal welfare:

DISTRICT OFFICE OF THE COUNCIL OF STATE GOVERNMENTS

The Pennsylvania Commission on Interstate Cooperation is fortunate in having at its service the facilities of a District Secretariat of the Council of State Governments. This office was established in New York City in October, 1935, to encourage and foster cooperation among the states of Delaware, New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania in the solution of their mutual problems. It enables the Commission of Interstate Cooperation to keep informed of each other's activities, it assists them in organizing conferences and meetings, conducts research and studies for the Cooperation Commissions, state officials and legislators, and brings the information and clearing house facilities of the Central Secretariat of the Council to their more immediate disposal.

This Commission has enjoyed its work with its neighboring commissions and committees on interstate cooperation during the past two years and has found the District

Office of the Council very helpful in facilitating this work. The Commission wishes to acknowledge the assistance of the Mr. Leo Seybold, District Representative of the Council, in the preparation of this report.

"Entruster" means the person who has or directly or by agent takes a security interest in goods documents or instruments under a trust receipt transaction and any successor in interest of such person A person in the business of selling goods or instruments for profit who at the outset of the transaction has as against the buyer general property in such goods or instruments and who sells the same to the buyer on credit retaining title or other security interest under a purchase money mortgage or conditional sales contract or otherwise is excluded

"Goods" means any chattels personal other than Money things in action or things so affixed to land as to become a part thereof

"Instrument" means

(a) Any negotiable instrument as defined in the Uniform Negotiable Instruments Law and amendments thereto or

(b) Any certificate of stock or bond or debenure for the payment of money issued by a public or private corporation as part of a series or

(c) Any interim deposit or participation certificate or receipt or other credit or investment instrument of a sort marketed in the ordinary course of business or finance of which the trustee after the trust receipt transaction appears by virtue of possession and the face of the instrument to be the owner "Instrument" does not include any document of title to goods

"Lien creditor" means any creditor who has acquired a specific lien on the goods documents or instruments by attachment levy or by other similar operation of law or judicial process including a distraining landlord

"New value" includes new advances or loans made or new obligation incurred or the release or surrender of a valid and existing security interest or the release of a claim to proceeds under section ten but "new value" shall not be construed to include extensions or renewals of existing obligations of the trustee nor obligations substituted for such existing obligations

"Person" means as the case may be an individual trustee receiver or other fiduciary partnership corporation business trust or other association and two or more persons having a joint or common interest

"Possession" as used in this act with reference to possession taken or retained by the entruster means actual possession of goods documents or instruments or in the case of goods such contructive possession a by means of tags or signs or other outward marks placed and remaining in conpicuous places may reasonably be expected in fact to indicate to the third party in question that the entruster has control over or interest in the goods

"Purchase" means taking by sale conditional sale lease mortgage or pledge legal or equitable

"Purchaser" means any person taking by purchase A pledgee mortgagee or other claimant of a security interest created by contract is insofar as concerns his specific security a purchaser and not a creditor

"Security interest" means a property interest in goods documents or instruments limited in extent to securing performance of some obligation of the trustee or of some third person to the entruster and includes the interest of a pledgee and title whether or not expressed to be absolute whenever such title is in substance taken or retained for security only

"Transferee in bulk" means a mortgagee or a pledgee or a buyer of the trustee's busines substantially as a whole

"Trustee" means the person having or taking possession of goods documents or instruments under a trust receipt transaction and any successor in interest of such person The use of the word "trustee" herein shall not be interpreted or construed to imply the existence of a trust or any right or duty of a trustee in the sense of equity jurisprudence other than as provided by this act

"Value" means any consideration sufficient to support a simple contract An antecedent or preexisting claim whether for money or not and whether against the transferor or against another person constitutes value where goods documents or instruments are taken either in satisfaction thereof or as security therefor

Section 2 WHAT CONSTITUTES TRUST RECEIPT TRANSACTION AND TRUST RECEIPT

1 A trust receipt transaction within the meaning of this act is any transaction to which an entruster and a trustee are parties for one of the purposes set forth in subsection three whereby

(a) The entruster or any third person delivers to the trustee goods documents or instruments in which the entruster (i) prior to the transaction has or for new value (ii) by the transaction acquires or (iii) as the result thereof is to acquire promptly a security interest or

(b) The entruster gives new value in reliance upon the transfer by the trustee to such entruster of a security interest in instruments or documens which are actually exhibted to such entruster or to his agent in that behalf at a place of business of either entruster or agent but possession of which is retained by the trustee provided that the delivery under paragraph (a) or the giving of new value under paragraph (b) either

(i) Be against the signing and delivery by the trustees of a writing designating the goods documents or instruments concerned and reciting that a security interest therein remains in or will remain in or has passed to or will pass to the entruster or

(ii) Be pursuant to a prior or concurrent written and signed agreement of the trustee to give such a writing

The security interest of the entruster may be derived from the trustee or from any other person and by pledge or by transfer of title or otherwise

If the trustee's rights in the goods documents or instruments are subject to a prior trust receipt transaction or to a prior equitable pledge section nine and section three respectively of this act determine the priorities

2 A writing such as is described in subsection one paragraph (i) signed by the trustee and given in or pursuant to such a transaction is designated in this act as a "trust

receipt" No further formality of execution or authentication shall be necessary to the validity of a trust receipt

3 A transaction shall not be deemed a trust receipt transaction unless the possession of the trustee thereunder is for a purpose substantially equivalent to any one of the following

(a) In the case of goods documents or instruments for the purpose of selling or exchanging them or of procuring their sale or exchange or

(b) In the case of goods or documents for the purpose of manufacturing or processing the goods delivered or covered by the documents with the purpose of ultimate sale or for the purpose of loading unloading storing shipping trans-shipping or otherwise dealing with them in a manner preliminary to or necessary to their sale or

(c) In the case of instruments for the purpose of delivering them to a principal under whom the trustee is holding them or for consummation of some transaction involving delivery to a depositary or registrar or for their presentation collection or renewal

Section 3 ATTEMPTED CREATION OR CONTINUANCE OF PLEDGE WITHOUT DELIVERY OR RETENTION OF POSSESSION

1 An attempted pledge or agreement to pledge not accompanied by delivery of possession which does not fulfill the requirements of a trust receipt transaction shall be valid as against creditors of the pledgor only as follows

(a) To the extent that new value is given by the pledgee in reliance thereon such pledge or agreement to pledge shall be valid as against all creditors with or without notice for ten days from the time the new value is given

(b) To the extent that the value given by the pledgee is not new value and in the case of new value after the lapse of ten days from the giving thereof the pledge shall have validity as against lien creditors without notice who become such as prescribed in section eight only as of the time the pledgee takes possession and without relation back

2 Purchasers (including entrusters) for value and without notice of the pledgee's interest shall take free of any such pledge or agreement to pledge unless prior to the purchase it has been perfected by possession taken

3 Where under circumstances not constituting a trust receipt transaction a person for a temporary and limited purpose delivers goods documents or instruments in which he holds a pledgee's or other security interest to the person holding the beneficial interest therein the transaction has like effect with a purported pledge for new value under this section

Section 4 CONTRACT TO GIVE TRUST RECEIPT

1 A contract to give a trust receipt if in writing and signed by the trustee shall with reference to goods documents or instruments thereafter delivered by the entruster to the trustee in reliance on such conract be equivalent in all respects to a trust receipt

2 Such a contract shall as to such goods documents or instruments be specificially enforceable against the trustee but this subsection shall not enlarge the scope of the entruster's rights against creditors of the trustee as limited by this act

Section 5 VALIDITY BETWEEN THE PARTIES

Between the entruster and the trustee the terms of the trust receipt shall save as otherwise provided by this act be valid and enforceable But no provision for forfeiture of the trustee's interest shall be valid except as provided in subsection five of section six

Section 6 REPOSSESSION AND ENTRUSTER'S RIGHTS ON DEFAULT

1 The entruster shall be entitled as against the trustee to possession of the goods documents or instruments on default and as may be otherwise specified in the trust receipt

2 An entruster entitled to possession under the terms of the trust receipt or of subsection one may take such possession without legal process whenever that is possible without breach of the peace

3 (a) After possession taken the entruster shall subject to subdivision (b) and subsection five hold such goods documents or instruments with the rights and duties of a pledgee

(b) An entruster in possession may on or after default give notice to the trustee of intention to sell and may not less than five days after the serving or sending of such notice sell the goods documents or instruments for the trustee's account at public or private sale and may at a public sale himself become a purchaser The proceeds of any such sale whether public or private shall be applied (i) to the payment of the expenses thereof (ii) to the payment of the expenses of retaking keeping and storing the goods documents or instruments (iii) to the satisfaction of the trustee's indebtedness The trustee shall receive any surplus and shall be liable to the entruster for any deficiency Notice of sale shall be deemed sufficiently given if in writing and either (i) personally served on the trustee or (ii) sent by postpaid ordinary mail to the trustee's last known business address

(c) A purchaser in good faith and for value from an entruster in possesion takes free of the trustee's interest even in a case in which the entruster is liable to the trustee for conversion

4 Surrender of the trustee's interest to the entruster shall be valid on any terms upon which the trustee and the entruster may after default agree

(5) As to articles manufactured by style or model the terms of the trust receipt may provide for forfeiture of the trustee's interest at the election of the entruster in the event of the trustee's default against cancellation of the trustee's then remaining indebtedness provided that in the case of the original maturity of such an indebtedness there must be cancelled not less than eighty per centum of the purchase price to the trustee or of the original indebtedness whichever is greater or in the case of a first renewal not less than seventy per centum or in the case of a second or further renewal not less than sixty per centum

Section 7 GENERAL EFFECT OF ENTRUSTER'S FILING OR TAKING POSSESSION

1 (a) If the entruster within the period of thirty days specified in subsection one of section eight files as in this act provided such filing shall be effective to preserve his security interest in documents or goods against all persons save as otherwise provided by sections eight nine ten eleven fourteen and fifteen of this act

(b) Filing after the lapse of the said period shall be valid but in such event save as provided in subdivision two (b) of section nine the entruster's security interest shall be deemed to be created by the trustee as of the time of such filing without relation back as against all persons not having notice of such interest

2 The taking of possession by the entruster shall so long as such possession is retained have the effect of filing in the case of goods or documents and of notice of the entruster's security interest to all persons in the case of instruments

Section 8 VALIDITY AGAINST CREDITORS

1 The entruster's security interest in goods documents or instruments under the written terms of a trust receipt transaction shall without any filing be valid as against all creditors of the trustee with or without notice for thirty days after delivery of the goods documents or instruments to the trustee and thereafter except as in this act otherwise provided

But where the trustee at the time of the trust receipt transaction has and retains instruments the thirty days shall be reckoned from the time such instruments are actually shown to the entruster or from the time that the entruster gives new value under the transaction whichever is prior

2 Save as provided in subsection on the entruster's security interest shall be void as against lien creditors who become such after thirty day period and without notice of such interest and before filing

(a) Where a creditor secures the issuance of process which within a reasonable time after such issuance results in attachment of or levy on the goods he is deemed to have become a lien creditor as of the date of the issuance of the process

(b) Unless prior to the acquisition of notice by all creditors filing has ocurred or possession has been taken by the entruster (i) an assignee for the benefit of creditors from time of assignment or (ii) a receiver in equity from the time of his appointment or (iii) a trustee in bankruptcy or judicial insolvency proceedings from time of filing of the petition in bankruptcy or judicial insolvency by or against the trustee shall on behalf of all creditors stand in the position of a lien creditor without notice without reference to whether he personally has or has not in fact notice of the entruster's interest

Section 9 LIMITATIONS ON ENTRUSTER'S PROTECTION AGAINST PURCHASERS

1 Purchasers of Negotiable Documents or Instruments

(a) Nothing in this act shall limit the right of purchasers in good faith and for value from the trustee of negotiable instruments or negotiable documents and purchasers taking from the trustee for value in good faith and by transfer in the customary manner instruments or documents in such form as are by common practice purchased and sold as if negotiable shall hold such instruments or documents free of the entruster's interest and filing under this act shall not be deemed to constitute notice of the entruster's interest to purchasers in good faith and for value of such documents or instruments other than transferees in bulk

(b) The entrusting (directly by agent or through the intervention of a third person) of goods documents or instruments by an entruster to a trustee under a trust receipt transaction or a transaction falling within section three of this act shall be equivalent to the like entrusting of any documents or instruments which the trustee may procure in substitution or which represents the same goods or instruments or the proceeds thereof and which the trustee negotiates to a purchaser in good faith and for value

2 Where a purchaser from the trustee is not protected under subjection one hereof the following rules shall govern

(a) Sales by trustee in the ordinary course of trade

(i) Where the trustee under the trust receipt transaction has liberty of sale and sells to a buyer in the ordinary course of trade whether before or after the expiration of the thirty day period specified in subsection eight of this act and whether or not filing has taken place such buyer takes free of the entruster's security interest in the goods so sold and no filing shall constitute notice of the entruster's security interest to such a buyer

(ii) No limitation placed by the entruster on the liberty of sale granted to the trustee shall affect a buyer in the ordinary course of trade unless the limitation is actually known to the latter

(b) Purchasers other than buyers in the ordinary course of trade

In the absence of filing the entruster's security interest in goods shall be valid as against purchasers save as provided in this section but any purchaser not a buyer in the ordinary course of trade who in good faith and without notice of the entruster's security interest and before filing either (i) gives new value before the expiration of the thirty day period specified in subsection one of section eight or (ii) gives value after said period and who in either event before filing also obtains delivery of goods from a trustee shall hold the subject matter of his purchase free of the entruster's security interest but a transferee in bulk can take only under (ii) of this subdivision (b)

(c) Liberty of Sales

If the entruster consents to the placing of goods subject to a trust receipt transaction in the trustee's stock in trade or in his sales of exhibition rooms or allows such goods to be so placed or kept such consent or allowance shall have like effect as granting the trustee liberty of sale

3 As to all cases covered by this section the purchase of goods documents or instruments on credit shall constitute a purchase for new value but the entruster shall be entitled to any debt owing to the trustee and any security therefor by reason of such purchase except that the entruster's right shall be subject to any set-off or defense valid against the trustee and accruing before the purchaser has actual notice of the entruster's interest

Section 10 ENTRUSTER'S RIGHT TO PROCEEDS

Where under the terms of the trust receipt transaction the trustee has no liberty of sale or other disposition or having liberty of sale or other disposition is to account to the entruster for the proceeds of any disposition of the goods documents or instruments the entruster shall be entitled to the extent to which and as against all classes of persons as to whom his security interest was valid at the time of disposition by the trustee as follows

(a) To the debts described in section nine (three) and also

(b) To any proceeds or the value of any proceeds (whether such proceeds are indentifiable or not) of the goods documents or instruments if said proceeds were received by the trustee within ten days prior to either application for appointment of a receiver of the trustee or the filing of a petition in bankruptcy or judicial insolvency proceedings by or against the trustee or demand made by the entruster for prompt accounting and to a priority to the amount of such proceeds or value and also

(c) To any other proceeds of the goods documents or instruments which are identifiable unless the provision for accounting has been waived by the entruster by words or conduct and knowledge by the entruster of the existence of proceeds without demand for accounting made within ten days from such knowledge shall be deemed such a waiver

Section 11 LIENS IN COURSE OF BUSINESS GOOD AGAINST ENTRUSTER

Specific liens arising out of contractual acts of the trustee with reference to the processing warehousing shipping or otherwise dealing with specific goods in the usual course of the trustee's business preparatory to their sale shall attach against the interest of the entruster in said goods as well as against the interest of the trustee whether or not filing has occurred under this act but this section shall not obligate the entruster personally for any debt secured by such lien nor shall it be construed to include the lien of a landlord

Section 12 ENTRUST NOT RESPONSIBILE ON SALE BY TRUSTEE

An entruster holding a security interest shall not merely by virtue of such interest or of his having given the trustee liberty of sale or other disposition be responsible as principal or as vendor under any sale or contract to sell made by the trustee

Section 13 FILING AND REFILING CONCERNING TRUST RECEIPT TRANSACTIONS COVERING DOCUMENTS OR GOODS

1 Any entruster underaking or contemplating trust receipts transactions with reference to documents or goods is entitled to file with the Secretary of the Commonwealth a statment signed by the entruster and the trustee containing

(a) A designation of the entruster and the trustee and of the chief place of business of each within this State if any and if the entruster has no place of business within the State a designation of his chief place of business outside the State and

(b) A statement that the entruster is engaged or expects to be engaged in financing under trust receipt transactions the acquisition of goods by the trustee and

(c) A description of the kind or kinds of goods covered or to be covered by such financing

2 The following form of statement (or any other form of statement containing substantially the same information) shall suffice for the purposes of this act

"Statement of Trust Receipt Financing

"The entruster ..... whose chief place of business within the State is at ..... or who has no place of business within this State and whose chief place of business outside this State is at .....

..... is or expects to be engaged in financing under trust receipt transactions the acquisition by the trustee ..... whose chief place of business within this State is at ..... of goods of the following description Coffee silk automobiles or the like

Signed ..... Entruster
Signed ..... Trustee"

3 It shall be the duty of the filing officer to mark each statement filed with a consecutive file number and with the date and hour of filing and to keep such statement in a separate file and to note and index the filing in a suitable index indexed according to the name of the trustee and containing a notation of the trustee's chief place of business as given in the statement The fee for such filing shall be one dollar

4 Presentation for filing of the statement described in subsection one and payment of the filing fee shall constitute filing under this act in favor of the entruster as to any documents or goods falling within the description in the statement which are within one year from the date of such filing or have been within thirty days previous to such filing the subject matter of a trust receipt transaction between the entruster and the trustee

5 At any time before expiration of the validity of the filing as specified in subsection four a like statement or an affidavit by the entruster alone setting out the information required by subsection one may be filed in like manner as the original filing Any filing of such further statement or affidavit shall be valid in like manner and for like period as an original filing and shall also continue the rank of the entruster's existing security interest as against all junior interests It shall be the duty of the filing officer to mark file and index the further statement or affidavit in like manner as the original

Section 14 LIMITATIONS ON EXTENT OF OBLIGATION SECURED

As against purchasers and creditors the entruster's security interest may extend to any obligation for which the goods documents or instruments were security before the trust receipt transaction and to any new value given or agreed to be given as a part of such transaction but not otherwise to secure past indebtedness of the trustee nor shall the obligation secured under any trust receipt transaction extend to obligations of the trustee to be subsequently created

Section 15 ACT NOT APPLICABLE TO CERTAIN TRANSACTIONS

This act shall not apply to single transactions of legal or equitable pledge not constituting a course of business whether such transactions be unaccompanied by delivery of possession or involve constructive delivery or delivery and redelivery actual or constructive so far as such transactions involve only an entruster who is an individual natural person and a trustee entrusted as a fiduciary with handling investments or finances of the entruster nor shall it apply to transactions of bailment or consignment in which the title of the bailor or consignor is not retained to secure an indebtedness to him of the bailee or consignee

Section 16 ELECTION AMONG FILING STATUTES

As to any transaction falling within the provisions both of this act and of any other act requiring filing or recording the entruster shall not be required to comply with both but by complying with the provisions of either at his election may have the protection given by the act complied with except that buyers in the ordinary course of trade as described in subsection two of section nine and lienors as described in section eleven shall be protected as therein provided although the compliance of the entruster be with the filing or recording requirements of another act

Section 17 CASES NOT PROVIDED FOR

In any case not provided for in this act the rules of law and equity including the law merchant shall continue to apply to trust receipt transactions and purported pledge transactions not accompanied by delivery of possession

Section 18 UNIFORMITY OF INTERPRETATION

This act shall be so interpreted and construed as to effectuate its general purpose to make uniform the law of the states which enact it

Section 19 CONSTITUTIONALITY

If any provision of this act or the application thereof to any person or circumstances is held invalid such invalidity shall not affect other provisions or applications of the act which can be given effect without the invalid provision or application and to this end the provisions of this act are declared to be severable

Section 20 SHORT TITLE

This act may be cited as the "Uniform Trust Receipts Act"

Section 21 INCONSISTENT LAWS REPEALED

Except so far as they are applicable to trust receipts and pledge transactions entered into before this act takes effect all acts or parts of acts inconsistent with this are hereby repealed

Section 22 TIME AND MANNER OF TAKING EFFECT

PROPOSED ACT

To amend the banking code of the state, in relation to the insurance of employees of financial institutions.

[Duties and liabilities of bank directors or trustees (a) with respect to fidelity bonds on the officers and employees and (b) with respect to indemnity insurance against other common hazards.]

BE IT ENACTED, ETC.

(a) Fidelity Bonds—The directors, trustees or other governing body of every commercial or savings bank and trust company organized under and by virtue of the laws of this State or the laws of any other State and doing business in this State,* shall direct and require good and sufficient fidelity bonds on all active officers and employees, whether or not they draw salary or compensation, which bonds shall provide for indemnity to such bank or trust company on account of any losses sustained by it as the result of any dishonest, fraudulent or criminal act or omission committed or omitted by them acting independently or in collusion or combination with any person or persons. Such bonds may be in individual, schedule or blanket form, and the premiums therefor may be paid by the bank.

(b) Other Insurance—The said directors, trustees, or other governing body shall also direct and require suitable insurance protection to the bank against burglary, robbery, theft and other similar insurable hazards to which the bank may be exposed in the operations of its business on the premises or elsewhere.

The directors, trustees or other governing body shall be responsible for prescribing at least once in each year the amount or penal sum of such bonds or policies and the sureties or underwriters thereon, after giving due and careful consideration to all known elements and factors constituting such risk or hazard. Such action shall be recorded in the minutes of the board of directors, trustees or other governing body and thereafter be reported to the Commissioner of Banking (or a similar supervisory officer) and be subject to his approval.

DELAWARE RIVER POLLUTION AGREEMENT

House Bill No. 222 By Mr. Kane

AN ACT

To promote interestate cooperation for the conservation and protection of water resources in the Delaware River Basin

* It may be desired to include other types of financial institutions receiving deposits and making loans or discounting credit instruments, such as building and loan associations, credit unions, etc., which are under the supervision of the Department of Banking or a comparable supervisory agency, in which case they should be specifically named in subsection (a). Likewise, the terms "bank" or "bank or trust company" would have to be changed to "financial institution."

Preamble

(1) WHEREAS the States of New York New Jersey Pennsylvania and Delaware have each created and now maintain a Commission (or Committee) on Interstate Cooperation for the purpose of establishnig and maintaining governmental machinery to facilitate communication negotiation understanding and cooperation between said states respectively and other states of the Union both regionally and nationally with power to establish such committees sub-committees and advisory boards as are deemed advisable to conduct conferences and to formulate proposals concerning subjects of intergovernmental cooperation to study the laws of the several states hold public or private hearings make findings and recommendations and to submit drafts of legislation to promote uniform laws for the elimination of the confusion and conflict between the several states of the Union and the Federal government in the matter of laws and administrative practices concerning conservation prevention abatement and control of pollution water supply public welfare flood control and other subjects and

(2) WHEREAS said Commissions (or Committees) on Interstate Cooperation of said states have organized and established and are now maintaining as an instrument of governmental machinery a joint advisory board known as "The Interstate Commission on the Delaware River Basin" as a regional commission composed of standing subcommittees of said Commissions (or Committees) on Interstate Cooperation respectively for the purpose of entering upon a program to study the conservation water supply pollution and other potential uses and benefits of and to develop integrated plans to conserve and protect the waters and other resources of the Delaware River Basin in the following specified particulars

A To serve as a fact-coordinating body and to develop the means and procedure by which the general plans and policies proposed for the development of the region may be carried out

B To Sponsor the carrying out of properly developed plans which result from surveys and research concerning population land and water resources and uses and other related subjects

C To coordinate the activities of the Commission and Committees on Interstate Cooperation and their joint agency the Council of State Governments with the work of the appropriate state and federal agencies for the prevention and abatement of pollution for flood control and for the proper general use and control of the waters of the Delaware River

D To encourage interstate compacts and the enactment of uniform state laws for the abatement of water pollution for flood control and the proper general use and control of the waters of the Delaware River

E To advance perpetuate and outline the work recommended by its conferences and to develop and propose new objectives and

(3) WHEREAS it is the purpose of the Commissions (or Committees) on Interstate Cooperation of said four states acting through said Interstate Commission on the Delaware River Basin to eliminate confusion and conflict among said States by the promotion and enactment of uniform laws in said states to preserve in a safe and sanitary condition the waters and watershed of said Delaware River Basin and to provide uniform concurrent regulations for the control and the enforcement of the elimination of pollution in the waters thereof in said states respectively and

(4) WHEREAS said Interstate Commission on the Delaware River Basin in cooperation with the state health departments of said states respectively has made a study for the purposes above cited of said Delaware River and its tributaries in said Delaware River Basin and has formulated proposals for the intergovernmental cooperation of said states in the correction and control of pollution of the waters thereof which have been formally approved ratified and accepted by the health departments of said states respectively in the following form

WHEREAS a substantial part of the territory of the States of New York New Jersey Pennsylvania and Delaware is situated within the Delaware River drainage basin and

WHEREAS the increase in population of the various municipal areas situated within the Delaware River Basin and

WHEREAS the increase in population of the various municipal areas situated within the Delaware River Basin and the growth of industrial activity within the Basin have resulted in increasingly serious pollution of the waters of the Interstate Delaware River and its tributaries and

WHEREAS such pollution constitutes a grave menace to the health welfare and recreational facilities of the people living in the Delaware River Basin and occasions great economic loss and

WHEREAS the control of future pollution and the correction of existing pollution of the waters of the interstate Delaware River and its tributaries is of prime importance to the people living in the Delaware River Basin and can best be accomplished through the cooperation of the representatives of the people in the basin in the States of New York New Jersey Pennsylvania and Delaware

Now therefore the State of New York and the State of New Jersey and the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of Delaware agree and are bound as follows

ARTICLE I

Each of the signatory states pledges to each of the other signatory states faithful cooperation in the control of future pollution and in the correction of existing pollution of the waters of the interstate Delaware River and its West Branch from the New York-Pennsylvania boundary line down to the Atlantic Ocean In order to effect such objects each of the states agrees to enact adequate legislation if necessary to enable each state so to require the treatment of sewage industrial waste or other artificial polluting maters as to place and maintain the waters of the aforesaid interstate Delaware River and of the tributaries thereof just above the confluence with the Delaware River in the clean and sanitary condition required by the provisions of this agreement Furthermore each such state agrees so to enforce the provisions of these requirements and other supplementary applicable legislation if any as to bring about the attainment of the objectives of pollution control and correction in accordance with such reasonable and effective programs as may be determined from time to time by the states in the manner prescribed herein

ARTICLE II

It is recognized by the signatory states that due to such variable factors as location size character and flow and of the many varied uses of the waters of the interstate Delaware River and its aforesaid West Branch such as water supply recreation navigation industrial developments maintenance of fish life shell-fish culture agriculture and other purposes that no single standard of sewage and waste treatment and of quality of receiving waters is practical for all parts of the river Therefore in order to apply minimum requirements for the attainment of correction and control of pollution which will be appropriate to the varied factors including the existing and potential quality and uses of the waters the interstate Delaware River is hereby divided into four zones to wit

ZONE I Zone 1 is that part of the Delaware River and its West Branch extending from the New York-Pennsylvania boundary line to the head of tidewater at Trenton New Jersey and Morrisville Pennsylvania

The drainage basin contributary to this zone excepting part of the Lehigh River Basin is relatively sparsely inhabited and contains few sewered communities and relatively few industrial establishments producing waste water The streams draining this area being in general relatively clean and of high elevation are well adapted as sources of public water supplies after treatment or purification

The principal uses of the waters of the Delaware River in Zone 1 are expected to be for water supply after such treatment or purification as may be necessary and for recreation bathing maintenance of fish and aquatic life agriculture and for other related purposes

ZONE II Zone 2 is that part of the Delaware River extending from the head of tidewater at Trenton New Jersey and Morrisville Pennsylvania to a line drawn perpendicular to the channel of the Delaware River from the mouth of Pennypack Creek in Philadelphia Pennsylvania to the corresponding point on the New Jersey shore

The drainage basin contributory to this zone is somewhat more densely populated than that of Zone 1 and it contains more sewered communities and industrial establishments

The principal uses of the waters of the Delaware River in Zone 2 are expected to be for water supply after treatment or purification and for recreation navigation maintenance of fish and aquatic life agricultural industrial and other purposes

ZONE III Zone 3 is that part of the Delaware River extending from the aforesaid line connecting the mouth of Pennypack Creek in Philadelphia and the corresponding point in New Jersey to the Pennsylvania-Delaware boundary line

The drainage basin contributory to this zone contains populous metropolitan areas including Philadelphia Pennsylvania and Camden New Jersey

The principal uses of the waters of the Delaware River in zone 3 are expected to be for navigation industrial water supply and other purposes

The water in this zone however should be of such sanitary quality that it will not be unfit for use as sources of water supply will not be harmful to fish life and will not adversely affect the quality of the waters of the tidal tributaries

ZONE IV Zone 4 is that part of the Delaware River extending from the Pennsylvania-Delaware boundard line to the Atlantic Ocean

The principal uses of the waters of the Delaware River in Zone 4 are expected to be for navigation industrial water supplies commercial fishing shellfish culture recreation and other purposes

In order to attain conditions of cleanliness and sanitation of the waters of the Delaware River which will be consistent with the appropriate existing and future quality and usese of such waters the following minimum requirements shall apply to the several zones herein provided It is the purpose and intent of such requirements to apply to artificial (not natural) causes of pollution

ARTICLE III

In order to put and maintain the waters of the interstate Delaware River and its West Branch as aforesaid in a clean and sanitary condition no sewage industrial wastes or other polluting matter shall be discharged into or be permitted to flow or fall into or be placed in any respective zone of the interstate Delaware River as herein established unless such sewage industrial waste or other artificial polluting matter shall first have been so treated as to produce an effluent which will meet the following minimum requirements

ZONE I 1 Such effluent shall be free of noticeable floating solids color oil grease or sleek and practically free of suspended solids

2 Such effluent shall be sufficiently free of turbidity that it will not cause noticeable turbidity in the water of the Delaware River

3 Such effluent shall show a reduction of organic substances of at least eighty-five (85) per cent as measured by the bio-chemical oxygen demand and furthermore such effluent in no case shall exceed a bio-chemical oxygen demand of fifty (50) parts per million and furthermore the discharge of such effluent after dispersion in the water of the river shall not cause a reduction of the dissolved oxygen content of such water of more than five (5) per cent The aforesaid reduction in dissolved oxygen content shall be determined by the average results obtained from dissolved oxygen tests made upon samples collected on not less than six (6) consecutive days from points in the river above and below the point or points of effluent discharge

4 Such effluent shall be of such quality that the most probable number of organisms of the Coli Aerogenes group shall not exceed one (1) per milliliter in more than ten (10) per cent of the samples of sewage effluent tested by the confirmed test and provided further that no single sample shall contain more than one hundred (100) organisms of the Coli Aerogenes group in one (1) milliliter

5 Such effluent shall be sufficiently free of acids alkalis and other toxic or deleterious substances that it will not create a menace to the public health through the use of waters of the Delaware River for public water supplies for recreation bathing agriculture and other purposes nor be inimical to fish animal or aquatic life

6 Such effluent shall be free of offensive odors and also be free of substances capable of producing offensive tastes or odors in public water supplies derived from the Delaware River at any place below the discharge of such effluent

ZONE 2 1 Such effluent shall be free of noticeable floating solids color oil or grease and practically free of both suspended solids and sleek

2 Such effluent shall be sufficiently free of turbidity that it will not cause noticeable turbity in the water of the Delaware River

Such effluent shall show a reduction of organic substance of at least eighty-five (85) per cent as measured by the bio-chemical oxygen demand and furthermore such effluent in no case shall exceed a bio-chemical oxygen demand of one hundred (100) parts per million and furthermore the discharge of such effluent after dispersion in the water of the river shall not cause a reduction of the dissolved oxygen content of such water of more than ten (10) per cent The aforesaid reduction in dissolved oxygen content shall be determined by the average results obtained by dissolved oxygen tests made upon samples collected on not less than six (6) consecutive days from points in the river above and below the point or points of effluent discharge

4 Such effluent shall be of such quality that the most probable number of organisms of the Coli Aerogenes group shall not exceed one (1) per milliliter in more than twenty-five (25) per cent of the samples of sewage effluent tested by the confirmed test and provided further that no single sample shall contain more than one hundred (100) organisms of the Coli Aerogenes group in one (1) milliliter

5 Such effluent shall be sufficiently free of acids alkalis and other toxic or deleterious substances that it will not create a menace to the public health through the use of the water of the Delaware River for public water supplies for recreation industrial and other purposes nor be inimical to fish animal or aquatic life

6 Such effluent shall be free of offensive odors and also be free of substances capable of producing offensive tastes and odors in public water supplies derived from the Delaware River at any place above or below the discharge of such effluent

ZONE 3 1 Such effluent shall be free of noticeable floating solids oil or grease and substantially free of both settleable solids and sleek

2 Such effluent shall be sufficiently free of turbidity that it will not cause substantial turbidity in the water of the Delaware River after dispersion in the water of the river

3 Such effluent shall show a reduction of at least fifty-five (55) per cent of the total suspended solids and a reduction of not less than thirty-five (35) per cent of the bio-chemical demand (It is the intent of this requirement to restore the dissolved oxygen content of the river water in this zone to at least fifty (50) per cent saturation To accomplish this it may be necessary in the case of certain wastes to obtain reductions greater than those required under this item)

4 Such effluent if it be discharged within two miles of a public water works intake or within prejudicial influence thereof shall at all times be effectively treated with a germicide

5 Such effluent shall be sufficiently free of acids alkalis and other toxic or deleterious substances that it will not create a menace to the public health through the use of the waters of the Delaware River for public water supplies or render such waters unfit for industrial and other purposes or cause the water of the Delaware River to be harmful to fish life

6 Such effluent shall be practically free of substances capable of producing offensive tastes or ordors in public water supplies derived from the Delaware River

ZONE 4 1 Such effluent shall be free of noticeable floating solids oil or grease and substantially free of both settleable solids and sleek

2 Such effluent shall be sufficiently free of turbidity that it will not cause substantial turbidity in the waters of the Delaware River after dispersion in the water of the river

3 Such effluent shall show a reduction of at least fifty-five (55) per cent of the total suspended solids and shall be subject to such further treatment as may be needed to prevent a nuisance

4 Such effluent if it be discharged within prejudicial influence of a public water intake or of recreational areas or of shell fish grounds shall at all times be effectively treated with a germicide except that in the case of recreational area influence such treatment need not be provided during the period from October 15th to May 15th of each year

5 Such effluent shall be sufficiently free of acids alkalis and other toxic or deleterious substances that it will not create a menace to the public health through the use of the waters of the Delaware River for public water supplies or render such waters unfit for commercial fishing shell fish culture recreational industrial or other purposes

6 Such effluent shall be practically free of substances capable of producing offensive tastes or odors in public water supplies derived from the Delaware River

It is further recognized by the signatory states that the quality of the waters of the interstate tributaries of the Delaware River and its aforesaid West Branch are of interstate concern at their points of confluence with the Delaware River and its West Branch Therefore it is also agreed that sewage industrial waste or other artificial polluting matter discharged into or permitted to flow or to fall or be placed in any intrastate tributary of the aforesaid Delaware River shall be treated to that degree if any necessary to maintain the waters of such intrastate tributary immediately above its confluence with the aforesaid Delaware River in a condition at least equal to the clean and sanitary condition of the waters of the Delaware River immediately above the confluence of such tributary

Analyses and tests regarding the minimum requirements herein prescribed shall be determined in accordance with the provisions contained in the American Public Health Associations latest edition on "Standard Methods for the Examination of Water and Sewage"

The aforesaid requirements as to treatment of sewage industrial wastes or other artificial polluting matter and as to the sanitary quality of receiving water are minima It is the intent and the purpose of these requirements to accomplish reasonable and adequate control and correction of pollution Due to the many variable factors involved however and to the responsibility of forecasting future developments with certainty it may be necessary in the future to impose additional requirements particularly in Zones 2 and 3

The minima herein prescribed therefore shall be considered the first steps toward attaining the objectives sought and if necessary may be required to be supplemented in the case that the general application of such minimum requirements does not adequately improve and maintain the sanitary quality of the waters of the Delaware River

1 That part of the area of the Delaware River Basin lying within this state is hereby established and declared to be a component part of an interstate region for intergovernmental cooperation by said states in the conservation protection and development of the water resources thereof by means of integrated plans and said Interstate Commission on the Delaware River Basin is hereby recognized as the duly established regional commission or agency of this state for intergovernmental cooperation in effectuating the purposes described in paragraph (2) of the above preamble with the full and complete authority to exercise for the accomplishment of said purposes the governmental machinery powers and duties conferred by this state upon said Commission (or Committee) on Interstate Cooperation

2 The reciprocal agreement set forth in paragraph (4) of the above preamble is hereby ratified and applied to the waters and watershed of said Delaware River Basin within the territorial limits of this State and its terms and provisions shall supercede the terms and provisions of any existing laws and regulations applicable to that area to the extent only that the terms and provisions of such existing laws and regulations are inconsistent with the terms and provisions set forth in said reciprocal agreement

3 The Department of Health is hereby empowered and directed to apply and carry into effect the proposals terms and provisions of said reciprocal agreement in the several zones therein prescribed respectively within the territorial limits of this state and to enforce the same by the exercise of such administrative and legal authority and the institution and prosecution of such actions suits or other proceedings as may be necessary or appropriate as are now or may hereafter be provided under the laws and practice of this state

4 The Department of Health is hereby authorized and directed to cooperate with said Interstate Commission on the Delaware River Basin in the further study of the sanitary condition of the waters of the Delaware River and its tributaries in said Delaware River Basin and to improve adopt and enforce within this state such reasonable modifications changes or alterations in the zones or standards of quality of water in said river and tributaries as may from time to time be recommended by said Interstate Commission on the Delaware River Basin and approved by the departments of health of the other states constituent to said Delaware River Basin

5 The terms and provisions of said reciprocal agreement shall become effective upon receipt by the Secretary of State of this state of a certificate from the Executive Secretary of The Interstate Commission on the Delaware River Basin that an act in substantially the same form as this act has been passed by the legislature and approved by the Governor of one of the other three states constituent to said Delaware River Basin together with a certified copy of said act of said state and thereupon the Secretary of State shall advise the Department of Health of this State accordingly

USED CAR BILL

PROPOSED ACT

To amend the general business law, in relation to the sale of used motor vehicles brought into this state to be sold.

BE IT ENACTED, ETC.

Registration. Every person, who shall bring any used motor vehicle into this state, for the purpose of sale or re-sale, except as a trade-in on a new or used motor vehicle, shall before offering such used motor vehicle for sale, and within ten days from the date of entry of such used motor vehicle into the state, register such used motor vehicle with the department of state, on a form to be furnished by such department and under such rules as may be promulgated by such department, which rules shall require a description of the make, age, condition and value of such used motor vehicle, together with proof of the title of the vendor thereto and of freedom from liens thereon.

Certificates of title. Every person, to whom this article shall apply, upon the sale and delivery of a used motor vehicle, shall, at the time of delivery of such used motor vehicle, deliver to the purchaser a certificate of title duly indorsed with the statement that he has complied with the provisions of this article.

Maintenance of actions. No action to recover any such used motor vehicle, or any part of the selling price thereof, shall be maintained in the courts of this state by any vendor of a used motor vehicle, or by his successors or assignees, unless there has been a compliance with the provisions of this article.

Violations and punishment. Any person, who shall violate any of the provisions of this article or make false statement on a certificate of title, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction, shall be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred dollars or more than five hundred dollars, or by imprisonment for not less than thirty days or more than six months or by both such fine and imprisonment.

LIQUOR WAREHOUSE RECEIPTS ACT

PROPOSED ACT

To amend the alcoholic beverage control law, in relation to purchase and sale of warehouse receipts.

BE IT ENACTED, ETC.

No licensee shall sell or purchase any receipts, certificates, contracts or other documents issued for the storage of alcoholic beverages except as provided by the rules of the liquor authority. The liquor authority shall prescribe such rules for the purchase and sale of such receipts, certificates, contracts or other documents issued for the storage of alcoholic beverages which, in its opinion, will best accomplish

(1) Elimination of fraudulent and deceptive transactions;

(2) Protection of purchasers against defaults by sellers;

(3) The delivery of the alcoholic beverages represented by such receipts or documents, and

(4) The payment of all taxes due thereon to the state.

UNIFORM LIQUOR COMPACT ENABLING ACT

AN ACT providing that the state of ..... may enter into a compact with any of the United States obligating the states party thereto not to enact legislation in their control of alcoholic beverages discriminatory against the citizens or products of other states.

Be it enacted, etc.:

Section 1. The Governor of this state is hereby authorized and directed to execute a compact to the consent of Congress on behalf of the state of ..... with any of the United States legally joining therein in the form substantially as follows:

A COMPACT

Entered into by and among the contracting states, signatories hereto, subject to the consent of Congress.

The contracting states solemnly declare:

that since the United States Supreme Court has held that all prior constitutional barriers against discriminatory legislation by states are superseded by the provisions of the Twenty-first Amendment in relation to the regulation by the various states of the manufacture, sale and distribution of alcoholic beverages; and since several states have enacted legislation which is discriminatory in that persons and products of one state are subjected to higher taxes, more restrictive licensing and other requirements than are imposed on persons or products of the state enacting such legislation, and since it is the considered belief of the states party hereto that such discriminatory legislation is contrary to the fundamental concepts underlying our system of federated states, that therefore it is the purpose of the parties hereto to enter into a compact not to enact any such discriminatory legislation.

The contracting states solemnly agree:

(1) To permit (a) persons residing in the other states party to the compact, to manufacture, sell and distribute alcoholic beverages in that state under the same terms, conditions and limitations granted to persons residing in said state, and (b) alcoholic beverages manufactured in the other states party to this compact to be sold and distributed under the same terms, conditions and limitations imposed upon alcoholic beverages manufactured within the limits of said state.

(2) That this compact shall become operative immediately upon its execution by any state as between it and any other state or states so executing subject to the ratification of the compact by Congress.

(3) That this compact shall continue in force and remain binding on each executing state until renounced by it. Renunciation of this compact by any of the state party thereto must be preceded by that state's sending six month's notice in writing of its intention to withdraw from the compact to the other states party hereto.

Section 2. If any section, sentence, subdivision or clause of this Act is for any reason held invalid or to be unconstitutional, such decision shall not affect the validity of the remaining portions of this Act.

Section 3. This Act shall take effect immediately.

PREMARITAL EXAMINATION ACT

Senate Bill No. 662 By Mr. Wolfenden

AN ACT

Regulating the issuance of marriage licenses prohibiting the issuance thereof to persons infected with syphilis in certain stages requiring each applicant to produce certain evidence of freedom from such disease imposing duties upon the Department of Health and the clerk of the orphans' court of the various counties and imposing penalties

Section 1 No license to marry shall be issued until there shall be in the possession of the clerk of the orphans' court a statement or statements signed by a duly licensed physician of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania that each applicant within thirty days of the issuance of the marriage license has submitted to an examination to determine the existence or non-existence of syphilis which examination has included a standard serological test or tests for syphilis and that in the opinion of the examining physician the applicant is not infected with syphilis or if so infected is not in a stage of that disease which is likely to become communicable The physician's statement shall be accompanied by a statement from the person in charge of the laboratory making the test or from some other person authorized to make such statement setting forth the name of the test the date it was made the name and address of the physician to whom a report was sent and the exact name and address of the person whose blood was tested but not setting forth the result of the test.

Section 2 For the purpose of this act a standard serological test for syphilis shall be a test approved by the State Department of Health and shall be made at a laboratory approved to make such tests by the State Department of Health Such laboratory tests as are required to be made by this act shall on request of the physician submitting the sample and on his certificate that the applicant is unable to pay be made without charge by the State Department of Health

Section 3 Any applicant for a marriage license having been denied a physician's statement as required by this act shall have the right of appeal to the Department of Health of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania for a review of the case and the said Department shall after appropriate investigation issue or refuse to issue a statement in lieu of the physician's statement required by section one of this act.

Section 4 The statements of the physician who examined the applicant and the laboratory which made the serological test shall be uniform throughout the State and shall be upon forms provided therefor by the State Department of Health These forms shall be filed by the clerk of the orphans' court separately from the applications for marriage licenses and shall be regarded as absolutely confidential by any and every person whose duty it may be to obtain make transmit or receive such information or report.

Section 5 Any applicant for a marriage license physician or representative of a laboratory who shall misrepresent any of the facts prescribed by this act or any licensing officer failing to receive the statements prescribed by this act or who shall have reason to believe that any of the facts thereon have been misrepresented and shall nevertheless issue a marriage license or any person who shall disregard the confidential character of the information or reports required by this act or any other person who shall otherwise fail to comply with the provisions of this act shall upon conviction thereof in a summary proceeding in the county wherein such offense was committed be sentenced to pay a fine of not less than twenty dollars ($20.00) nor more than one hundred dollars ($100.00) to be paid to the use of said county and the costs of prosecution and upon failure to pay such fine and costs shall be imprisoned not less than ten (10) nor more than thirty (30) days

Section 6 All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed Provided that nothing in this act shall be construed to repeal the provisions of section four of the act approved the twenty-fourth day of July one thousand nine hundred and thirteen (Pamphlet Laws 1013) entitled "An act regulating the issuance of licenses to marry prohibiting the issuance of such licenses to certain persons regulating the time during which licenses shall be valid and the time when returns shall be made of marriages solemnized to the clerk of the orphans' court and prescribing the duties of the clerk of the orphans' court" which provides for a hearing by the orphans' court in those cases when the right to a license is not made to appear

MATERNITY BLOOD TEST ACT

Senate Bill No. 661 By Mr. Wolfenden

AN ACT

For the prevention of congenital syphilis providing for and regulating the taking of serological tests of women pregnant with child and requiring notation thereof on the birth and still-birth certificates of their children imposing duties upon the Department of Health and upon physicians and other persons attending women pregnant with child and imposing penalties

Section 1 Every physician who attends any woman pregnant with child for conditions relating to pregnancy during the period of gestation or at delivery shall take or cause to be taken a sample of blood of such woman at the time of first examination or within fifteen (15) days thereof and shall submit such sample to an approved laboratory as hereinafter defined for a standard serological test for syphilis All other persons permitted by law to attend women pregnant with child but not permitted by law to take blood samples shall cause a sample of the blood of every such pregnant woman attended by them to be taken by a duly licensed physician of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and submit it to approved laboratory for a standard serological test for syphilis

Section 2 For the purpose of this act a standard serological test for syphilis shall be a test approved by the State Department of Health and shall be made at a laboratory approved to make such tests by the State Department of Health Such serological tests as are required by this act shall on request of the physician submitting the sample and on his certificate that the patient is unable to pay be made without charge by the State Department of Health

Section 3 In reporting every birth and stillbirth physicians and others required to make such reports shall state on the certificate whether a serological test for syphilis has been made upon a specimen of blood taken from the woman who bore the child for which a birth or stillbirth certificate is filed and the approximate date when the specimen was taken and if the test was not made that the same was not made because in the opinion of the physician the making of such test was not advisable

Section 4 Any person who shall violate any of the provisions of this act shall upon conviction thereof in a summary proceeding in the county wherein such offense was committed be sentenced to pay a fine of not less than twenty dollars ($20.00) nor more than one hundred dollars ($100.00) to be paid to the use of the said county and the costs of prosecution and upon failure to pay such fine and costs shall be imprisoned not less than ten (10) days nor more than thirty (30) days

MARRIAGE EVASION ACT

PROPOSED ACT

To amend the domestic relations law, in relation to marriage licenses issued to non-residents

BE IT ENACTED, ETC.

Restrictions on issuance of marriage licenses to non-residents. A clerk authorized to issue marriage licenses, shall not issue a license for the marriage of parties, both of whom reside and intend to continue to reside outside of the state, until, in addition to complying with all other requirements for the issuance of marriage licenses, he has received and filed evidence that the contracting parties are qualified to marry according to the laws of the state in which the prospective bride resides and intends to continue to reside. Such evidence shall be a license for the marriage of the parties, or two such licenses if a license for each party is required, issued according to the law of such state. In case the prospective bride resides or intends to reside in the District of Columbia, in a territory or dependency of the United States, or in a foreign country, such evidence shall be a license or licenses for the marriage of the parties issued according to the law of such district, territory, dependency or foreign country.

This act shall take effect immediately.

OHIO RIVER SANITATION COMPACT

House Bill No. 943 By Mr. Holland

AN ACT

Approving ratifying and enacting into law the Ohio River Valley Water Sanitation Compact for the prevention abatement and control of pollution of the rivers streams and waters in the Ohio river drainage basin and making the State of Pennsylvania a party thereto creating the "Ohio River Valley Water Sanitation Commission" providing for the members of such commission from the State of Pennsylvania and providing for the carrying out of said compact

Section 1 Ohio River Valley Water Sanitation Compact Approved The following Ohio River Valley Water Sanitation Compact which has been negotiated by representatives of the States of Illinois Indiana Kentucky New York Ohio Pennsylvania Tennessee and West Virginia is hereby approved ratified adopted enacted into law and entered into by the State of Pennsylvania as a party thereto and signatory state namely

OHIO RIVER VALLEY SANITATION COMPACT

WHEREAS A substantial part of the territory of each of the signatory States is situated within the drainage basin of the Ohio River and

On or before the first day of December of each year the Commission shall submit to the respective Governors of the signatory States a full and complete report of its activities for the preceding year

The Commission shall not incur any obligations of any kind prior to the making of appropriations adequate to meet the same nor shall the Commission pledge the credit of any of the signatory States except by and with the authority of the legislature thereof

Article VI

It is recognized by the signatory States that no single standard for the treatment of sewage or indusrial wastes is applicable in all parts of the District due to such variable factors as size flow location character self-purification and usage of waters within the District The guiding principle of this compact shall be that pollution by sewage or industrial wastes originating within a signatory State shall not injuriously affect the various uses of the interstate waters as hereinbefore defined

All sewage from municipalities or other political subdivision public or private institutions or corporations discharged or permitted to flow into these portions of the Ohio River and its tributary waters which form boundaries between or are contiguous to two or more signatory States or which flow from one signatory State into another signatory State shall be so treated within a time reasonable for the construction of the necessary works as to provide for substantially complete removal of settleable solids and the removal of not less than forty-five per cent (45%) of the total suspended solids provided that in order to protect the public health or to preserve the waters for other legitimate purposes including those specified in Article I in specific instances such higher degree of treatment shall be used ts may be determined to be necessary by the Commission after investigation due notice and hearing

All industrial wastes discharged or permitted to flow into the aforesaid waters shall be modified or treated within a time reasonable for the construction of the necessary works in order to protect the public health or to preserve the waters for other legitimate purposes including those specified in Article I to such degree as may be determined to be necessary by the Commission after investigation due notice and hearing

All sewage or industrial wastes discharged or permitted to flow into tributaries of the aforesaid waters situated wholly within one State shall be treated to that extent if any which may be necessary to maintain such waters in a sanitary and satisfactory condition at least equal to the condition of the waters of the interstate stream immediately above the confluence

The Commission is hereby authorized to adopt prescribe and promulgate rules regulations and standards for administering and enforcing the provisions of this article

Article VII

Nothing in this compact shall be construed to limit the powers of any signatory State or to repeal or prevent the enactment of any legislation or the enforcement of any requirement by any signatory State imposing additional conditions and restrictions to further lessen or prevent the pollution of waters within its jurisdiction

Article VIII

The Commission shall conduct a survey of the territory included within the District shall study the pollution problems of the District and shall make a comprehensive report for the prevention or reduction of stream pollution therein In preparing such report the Commission shall confer with any national or regional planning body which may be established and any department of the Federal Government authorized to deal with matters relating to the pollution problems of the District The Commission shall draft and recommend to the governors of the various signatory States uniform legislation dealing with the pollution of rivers streams and waters and other pollution problems within the District The Commission shall consult with and advise the various States communities municipalities corporations persons or other entities with regard to particular problems connected with the pollution of waters particularly with regard to the construction of plants for the disposal of sewage industrial and other waste The Commission shall more than one month prior to any regular meeting of the legislature of any state which is a party thereto present to the Governor of the State its recommendations relating to enactments to be made by any legislature in furthering intents and purposes of this compact

Article IX

The Commission may from time to time after investigation and after a hearing issue an order or orders upon any municipality corporation person or other entity discharging sewage or industrial waste into the Ohio River or any other river stream or water any part of which constitutes any part of the boundary line between any two or more of the signatory States or into any stream any part of which flows from any portion of one signatory State through any portion of another signatory State Any such order or orders may prescribe the date on or before which such discharge shall be wholly or partially discontinued modified or treated or otherwise disposed of The Commission shall give reasonable notice of the time and place of the hearing to the municipality corporation or other entity against which such order is proposed No such order shall go into effect unless and until it receives the assent of at least a majority of the commissioners from each of not less than a majority of the signatory States and no such order upon a municipality corporation person or entity in any State shall go into effect unless and until it receives the assent of not less than a majority of the Commissioners from such State

It shall be the duty of the municipality corporation person or other entity to comply with any such order issued against it or him by the Commission and any court of general jurisdiction or any United States district court in any of the signatory States shall have the jurisdiction by mandimus injunction specific performance or other form of remedy to enforce any such order against any municipality corporation or other entity domiciled or located within such State or whose discharge of the waste takes place within or adjoining such State or against any employee department or subdivision of such municipality corporation person or other entity however such court may revew the order and affirm reverse or modify the same upon any of the grounds customarily applicable in proceedings for court review of administrative decisions The Commission or at its request the Attorney General or other law enforcing official shall have power to institute in such court any action for the enforcement of such order.

Article X

The signatory States agree to appropriate for the salaries office and other administrative expenses their proper proportion of the annual budget as determined by the Commission and approved by the Governors of the signatory States one-half of such amount to be prorated among the several States in proportion to their population within the District at last preceding federal census the other half to be prorated in proportion to their land area within the District

Article XI

This compact shall become effective upon ratification by the legislatures of a majority of the States located within the District and upon approval by the Congress of the United States and shall become effective as to any additional States signing thereafter at the time of such signing

IN WITNESS WHEREOF the various signatory States have executed this compact through their respective compact commissioners

Section 2 Appointment of Members of Ohio River Valley Water Sanitation Commission Secretary of Health to be Member Ex-Officio In pursuance of article four of said compact there shall be three members of the Ohio River Valley Water Sanitation Commission from the State of Pennsylvania The governor by and with the advice and consent of the Senate shall appoint two persons as two of such commissioners each of whom shall be a resident and citizen of this State The terms of one of the said two commissioners first appointed shall be three years and of the other shall be six years and their successors shall be appointed by the Governor by and with the advice and consent of the Senate for terms of six years each Each commissioner shall hold office until his successor shall be appointed and qualified Vacancies in the office of any such commissioner from any reason or cause shall be filled by appointment by the governor by and with the advice and consent of the Senate for the unexpired term The third commissioner from this State shall be the Secretary of Health ex-officio and the term of any such ex-officio commissioner shall terminate at the time he ceases to hold said office of Secretary of Health and his successor as a commissioner shall be his successor as said Secretary of Health With the exception of the issuance of any order under the provisions of article nine of the compact said ex-officio commissioner may delegate from time to time to any deputy or other subordinate in his department or office the power to be present and participate including voting as his representative or substitute at any meeting of or hearing by or other proceeding of the commission The terms of each of the initial three members shall begin at the date of the appointment of the two appointive commissioners provided the said compact shall then have gone into effect in accordance with article eleven of the compact otherwise shall begin upon the date which said compact shall become effective in accordance with said article eleven

Any commissioner may be removed from office by the Governor

Section 3 Powers of Commission Duties of State Departments Etc. Jurisdiction of Common Pleas Courts Enforcement of Act There is hereby granted to the commission and commissioners thereof all the powers provided for in the said compact and all the powers necessary or incidental to the carrying out of said compact in every particular All officers of this State are hereby authorized and directed to do all things falling within their respective provinces and jurisdiction necessary to or incidental to the carrying out of said compact in every particular it being hereby declared to be the policy of this State to perform and carry out the said compact and to accomplish the purposes thereof All officers bureaus departments and persons of and in the State Government or administration of this State are hereby authorized and directed at convenient times and upon request of the said commission to furnish the said commission with information and data possessed by them or any of them and to aid said commission by loan of personnel or other means lying within their legal powers respectively.

The courts of common pleas of this State are hereby granted the jurisdiction specified in article nine of said compact and the Attorney General or any other law-enforcing officer of this State is hereby granted the power to institute any action for the enforcement of the orders of the commission as specified in said article nine of the compact

Section 4 Powers Herein Granted in Addition to Those

Heretofore Granted Any powers herein granted to the commission shall be regarded as in aid of and supplemental to and in no case a limitation upon any of the powers vested in said commission by other laws of this State or by the laws of the States of Illinois Indiana Kentuckey New York Ohio West Virginia Tennessee or by congress or the terms of said compact

Section 5 Expenses of Commission Appropriations Officers and employees The commissioners shall be reimbursed out of moneys appropriated for such purposes all sums which they necessarily shall expend in the discharge of their duties as members of such commission

There shall be appropriated to the commission out of any moneys in the State Treasury unexpended and available therefor and not otherwise appropriated such sums as may be necessary for the uses and purposes of the commission in carrying out the provisions of this act and the payment of the proper proportion of this State of the annual budget of the Ohio River Valley Water Sanitation Commission in accordance with article ten of said compact

The commission shall elect from its membership a chairman and may also select a secretary who need not be a member The commission may employ such assistance as it may deem necessarily required and the duties of such assistants shall be prescribed and their compensation fixed by the commission and paid out of the State Treasury out of funds appropriated for such purposes upon the requisition of said commission

The commission shall meet at such times and places as agreed upon by the commissioners or upon call of its chairman

Section 6 When Act to Become Effective This act shall take effect and become operative and the compact be executed for and on behalf of this State only from and after the approval ratification and adoption and entering into thereof by the States of New York West Virginia Ohio and Virginia

POTOMAC RIVER POLLUTION AGREEMENT

House Bill No. 845 By Mr. Stockham

AN ACT

To create a commission to act jointly with commissions appointed for like purpose by the States of West Virginia and Maryland the Commonwealth of Virginia and the District of Columbia which together with three members to be appointed by the President of the United State shall constitute the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin with power to cooperate in the abatement of the existing pollution and in the control of future pollution of the waters of the drainage basin of the Potomac River within the States of Maryland and West Virginia the Commonwealth of Virginia and the District of Columbia to authorize the Governor of the State to execute on behalf of this State a compact with representatives of other states for the purpose of forming the above mentioned commission and creating a Potomac Valley Conservancy District providing for the appointment of the Pennnsylvania members of said commission and their terms of office and providing an appropriation

Section 1 There is hereby created a commission consisting of three members to act jointly with commissions appointed for like purposes by the States of West Virginia and Maryland the Commonwealth of Virginia and the District of Columbia and an additional three members to be appointed by the President of the United States and which together with the other commissions appointed as hereinbefore mentioned shall constitute and be known as the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin The said commission for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania shall consist of three members to be named by the Governor from the membership of the Pennsylvania Commission on Interstate Cooperation two of whom shall be actual residents in the Potomac River Drainage Basin The members shall be appointed immediately after this act becomes effective and shall serve for terms of two years or until their successors are appointed They shall serve without compensation but shall be paid their actual expenses incurred in and incident to the performance shall contribute to the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin its prorata share of the expenses of said commission which shall be such sums as may be appropriated for the purpose but not less than the sum of three thousand dollars ($3,000) per year for the biennium beginning June first one thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine

The Governor of the Commonwealth is hereby authorized and directed to execute a compact on behalf of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania with the other States and the District hereinabove referred to who may by their legislative bodies so authorize a compact in form substantially as follows

WHEREAS it is recognized that abatement of existing pollution and the control of future pollution of interstate streams can best be promoted through a joint agency representing the several states located wholly or in part within the area drained by any such interstate stream and

WHEREAS The Congress of the United States has given its consent to the States of Maryland and West Virginia the Commonwealths of Pennsylvania and Virginia and the District of Columbia to enter into a compact providing for the creation of a conservancy district to consist of the drainage basin of the Potomac River and the main and tributary streams therein for the purpose of regulating controlling preventing or otherwise rendering unobjectionable and harmless the pollution of the waters of said Potomac drainage area by sewage and industrial and other wastes

Now Therefore the States of Maryland and West Virginia the Commonwealths of Pennsylvania and Virginia and the District of Columbia hereinafter designated signatory bodies do hereby create the Potomac Valley Conservancy District hereinafter designated the Conservancy District comprising all of the area drained by the Potomac River and its tributaries and also do hereby create the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin hereinafter designated the Commission under the articles of organization as set forth below

The Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin shall consist of three members from each signatory body and three members appointed by the President of the United States Said Commissioners other than those appointed by the President shall be chosen in a manner and for the terms provided by law of the signatory body from which they are appointed and shall serve without compensation from the Commission but shall be paid by the Commission their actual expenses incurred and incident to the performance of their duties

(A) The Commission shall meet and organize within thirty days after the effective date of this compact shall elect from its number a chairman and vice-chairman shall adopt suitable bylaws shall make adopt and promulgate such rules and regulations as are necessary for its management and control and shall adopt a seal

(B) The Commission shall appoint and at its pleasure remove or discharge such officers and legal engineering clerical expert and other assistants as may be required to carry the provisions of this compact into effect and shall determine their qualifications and fix their duties and compensation Such personnel as may be employed shall be employed without regard to any civil service or other similar requirements for employes of any of the signatory bodies The Commission may maintain one or more officers, for the transaction of its business and may meet at any time or place within the area of the Conservancy District

(C) The Commission shall keep accurate accounts of all receipts and disbursements and shall make an annual report thereof and shall in such report set forth in detail the operations and transactions conducted by it pursuant to this compact The Commission however shall not incur any obligations for administrative or other expenses prior to the making of appropriations adequate to meet the same nor shall it in any way pledge the credit of any of the signatory bodies Each of the signatory bodies reserves the right to make at any time an examination and audit of the accounts of the Commission

(D) A quorum of the Commission shall for the transaction of business the exercise of any powers or the performance of any duties consist of at least a majority of the members of the Commission provided however that no action of the Commission relating to policy shall be binding on any one of the signatory bodies unless at least two of the Commissioners from such signatory body shall vote in favor thereof

The Commission shall have the power and its duties shall be

(A) To coordinate tabulate and summarize technical and other data now available or as shall become available in the future from any socurce on the pollution of the streams of the Conservancy District and on the character and conditions of such streams and to prepare reports thereon annually and at such other times as may be deemed advisable by the Commission

(B) To supplement existing information and data and to secure new data by such investigations analyses on other means as may be necessary to secure adequate information on the character and condition of the streams of the Conservancy District as they now exist or may be affected by the future discharge of sewage and industrial and other wastes into said stream

(C) To cooperate with the legislative and administrative agencies of the signatory bodies or the equivalent thereof and with other interested commissions and similar organizations for the purpose of promoting uniform laws rules or regulations for the abatement and control of pollution of streams in the said Conservancy District

(D) To disseminate to the public information on aims and purposes of the Commission and on the harmful and uneconomical results of stream pollution through the issuance of bulletin circulars correspondence literature and reports

(E) To cooperate with other organizations engaged in fact-finding and research activities on the treatment of sewage and industrial waste or other wastes and if deemed advisable to institute and conduct such research and fact-finding activities

(F) To make and if needful from time to time revise and too recommend to the signatory bodies reasonable minimum standards for the treatment of sewage and industrial or other wastes now discharged or to be discharged in the future to the streams of the Conservancy District and also for cleanliness of the various streams in the Conservancy District

The moneys necessary to finance the Commission in the administration of its business in the Conservancy District shall be provided through appropriations from the signatory bodies and the United States in the manner prescribed by the laws of the several signatory bodies and of the United States and in amounts as follows

The pro rata contribution shall be based on such factors as population the amount of industrial and domestic pollution and a flat service charge as shall be determined from time to time by the Commission subject however to the approval ratification and appropriation of such contribution by the several signatory bodies And further provided that the total of such sums from all signatory bodies shall not exceed a total of thirty thousand dollars ($30,000) per annum

ARTICLE IV

Pursuant to the aims and purposes of this compact the signatory bodies mutually agree

1 Faithful cooperation in the abatement of existing pollution and the prevention of future pollution in the streams of the Conservancy District

2 The enactment of adequate and insofar as is practicable uniform legislation for the abatement and control of such pollution

3 The appropriation of biannual sums of the proportionate basis as set forth in Article III

ARTICLE V

This compact shall become effective immediately after it shall have been ratified by the majority of the legislatures of the States of Maryland and West Virginia the Commonwealths of Pennsylvania and Virginia and by the Commissioners of th District of Columbia and approved by the Congress of the United States provided however that this compact shall not be effective as to any signatory body until ratified thereby

ARTICLE VI

Any signatory body may by Legislative action after one year's notice to the Commission withdraw from this compact

Section 2 If any section sentence subdivision or clause of this act is for any reason held invalid or uconstitutional such decision shall not affect the validity of the remaining portions of this act

Section 3 The sum of six thousand dollars ($6,000) is hereby specifically appropriated to the commission created by this act for the purposes herein mentioned to be paid on warrant of the Auditor General on requisition of the chairman of the commission

Section 4 This act shall become effective immediately upon final enactment

REPORT OF THE OIL INDUSTRY INVESTIGATION COMMISSION OF THE COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA

Being a Commission of the General Assembly Organized Pursuant to Legislative Authorization Conferred By The Extraordinary Session of 1938

(Act No. 5—Act No. 38)

LETTER OF TRANSMITTAL

May 26, 1939.

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Your Commission appointed pursuant to Act No. 5, as amended by Act No. 38, of the 1938 Special Session of the Legislature, has the honor of herewith submitting its report.

As stated in the introductory pages of its report, neither the first nor the second Commission obtained the information requested in its questionnaires although both Commissions considered this information as of vital importance to the Commonwealth.

Your Commission has not had an opportunity to hold hearings nor examine witnesses under oath nor has it had an opportunity to do more than review a summary of the testimony submitted to the first Commission and to confer with the Director of Economic Research of the first Commission, Doctor Samuel B. Ross, who has summarized the findings of fact contained in two thousand pages of testimony developed by the previous Commission.

Your Commission therefore submits a Report based upon a summary of the evidence presented to the first Commission and at the same time wishes to call attention to the fact that it has been impossible for it to carry out the mandates of the Legislature to make a thorough and impartial investigation of the oil industry without the holding of hearings and the subpoena of witnesses, papers and other documents and that this cannot be done under the limited appropriation provided by the Legislature.

Your Commission therefore respectively requests that, in the absence of a much larger appropriation, the Commission should either be discharged by the Legislature or granted such additional appropriation as will adequately provide funds to carry on the task assigned to it.

Respectfully submitted,

Michael C. Chervenak, Jr., Chairman,
Member of the House.
Edward J. Thompson. Member of the Senate
Bernard B. McGinnis, Member of the Senate
John J. Finnerty, Member of the House
Thomas Weidemann, Member of the House
Samuel B. Ross, Secretary.

Thomas Weidemann
Dr. Samuel B. Ross, Secretary

All statements of fact are based upon testimony taken under oath at hearings upon exhibits taken at hearings or upon documents at various times in the possession of one or the other, of the Oil Industry Investigation Commissions.

One complete copy of the Official Testimony as developed by the First Oil Industry Investigation Commission is herewith filed with the Chief Clerk of the House of Representatives for permanent custody and reference purposes. Reference indications in the body of the report, such as, (D-260), etc., refer to the Volume and Page of this testimony.

With this is also filed one copy of the Statistical Report of a Works Progress Administration Unit which operated for a time under the direction of the First Oil Industry Investigation Commission and subsequently under the sponsorship of the State Treasurer.

Brief History of The Investigation of the Petroleum Industry In Pennsylvania, 1937-1939.

The first Oil Industry Investigation Commission was authorized by the Legislature in April 1937. After being organized in May 1937, it actively engaged in its task of investigation from June 1937 until February 1938, a period of eight months. June and July of 1937, were principally occupied with the holding of hearings in various parts of the State which developed two thousand pages of testimony taken under oath. During the month of August the Commission obtained a grant from the Works Progress Administration to supplement its resources which were too meager to permit thorough tabulation and analysis of the large amount of data which the Commission planned to obtain from the oil industry.

The subsequent five months were occupied with the selection of personnel, partial analysis of testimony taken by the Commission, and the designing of questionnaires which were intended to elicit, for the first time in the history of the oil industry, complete information regarding secret trade practices and conduct of business.

In the latter part of January 1938, shortly before the date upon which the industry was to have given the Commission the information requested in the questionnaires, the work of the first Oil Commission was halted by an injunction issued by the Dauphin County Court of Common Pleas. This Commission never resumed operations although the injunction, which rested upon a contention of unconstitutionality, was appealed to the State Supreme Court in June 1938, which court rendered a decision adverse to the Commission.

Neither the first nor the second Commission obtained the information requested in the questionnaires. Both Commissions considered this information regarding the conduct of the business as of vital importance to the Commonwealth, whose economic life is as dependent upon gasoline as upon electricity.

On November 29, 1938, a second Oil Industry Investigation Commission was established by Legislative enactment. This Commission, after a delay incurred by the difficulty of obtaining the records and documents of the first Commission, resumed the work of the first Commission in so far as the analysis of information already obtained was concerned. The following is its report.

CHAPTER I

A DOCUMENT OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA PREPARED AND PUBLISHED BY THE OIL INDUSTRY INVESTIGATION COMMISSION

Production

Although the American petroleum industry originated in Pennsylvania the state now holds pre-eminence only in the high quality of its crude. This is due to the fact that Pennsylvania crude has a paraffin base, contains no sulphur and possesses a lubricating content of twenty-three per cent as compared with a lubricating content of only three per cent for crude oil in the United States generally. In refining practice at the present time, the manufacturer is able to produce one and one-tenth gallons of lubricating oil from a barrel of western oil; whereas, a barrel of Pennsylvania crude yields approximately nine gallons of lubricants. (C-122)

The paraffin base of Pennsylvania crude distinguishes it from crudes of other regions which have an asphalt, a naphtha or mixed bases. (C-122) Although lubricants may be manufactured successfully from crude other than Pennsylvania crude, the ability of Pennsylvania's lubricants to withstand heat without undue disintegration placed them in a class apart and accounts for their reputed superiority. (C-149)

The superiority of Pennsylvania crude is not entirely limited to its lubricating quality. Since this crude contains no sulphur, the gasoline manuafctured from it is likewise free from sulphur.

The gavity of crude oil refers to the weight of the oil with respect to the weight of other liquids. Western crudes, which are lighter in gravity, yield more gasoline by the simpler processes of refining than does Pennsylvania crude.

The terms "Pennsylvania Crude" and "Pennsylvania Grade Crude" are interchangeable and describe any and all oil derived from petroleum deposits within the boundaries of Pennsylvania. This now amounts to approximately 17,000,000 barrels annually. Some neighboring states also produce quantities of Pennsylvania grade crude. Total production of this crude oil from all sources does not exceed 30,000,000 barrels per year.

Of the crude petroleum used in Pennsylvania in the year 1936, 17,700,000 barrels were produced in Pennsylvania; 8,630,000 barrels were imported from foreign countries; and 75,380,000 barrels were imported from other states, such as Louisiana, New Mexico, New York, Ohio, Oklahoma, Texas and West Virginia. During the year, 97,686,000 barrels were run to stills in Pennsylvania.

Location

In Pennsylvania, crude oil production is confined to the region west of the Allegheny Mountains. The eastern boundary of the producing area runs from Greene County in the southwest in a northeasterly direction of Potter County in the north central section of the State.

Reserves

Crude oil reserves in Pennsylvania are variously estimated to amount to 340,000,000 barrels (D-1, 172), 2,200,000,000 barrels (C-122) and 2,700,000,000 barrels. (Petroleum Administrative Board, "Cost of Production of Crude Oil.")

Oil is commonly thought to lie in something resembling lakes or rivers beneath the surface of the earth. This misconception probably arises from the fact that the industry refers to the oil deposits as "pools." The fact of the matter is that oil does not lie in pools or lakes, but that oil is held by solid strata of sand or sandstone much as coffee is held by a lump of sugar. Unexplored oil sands are completely filled with oil, gas and water, or a combination of these.

The Pennsylvania fields ordinarily possess many strata of oil sands. The first sand in some regions is not more than sixty feet beneath the surface, others are as deep as 12,000 feet. The sands themselves vary in thickness from a few inches to thirty or forty feet.

New Reserves

In the early exploration of the Pennsylvania fields, the first sand was not considered productive. The gas pressure upon which development then depended was low or nonexistent and, consequently, this sand was thought to contain no oil. However, within the last few years, by means of cores obtained with diamond drills, geologists discovered that the first sand contains as much as 15,000 barrels of oil per acre. This constitutes a sizable augmentation of the previous estimation of Pennsylvania reserves. (C-150) It is now estimated that there are between 5,000 and 18,000 barrels of recoverable oil per acre in the Venango sands alone. (C-153)

Types of Producers

Approximately 14,000 individuals, partnerships and corporations in the State of Pennsylvania own producing wells or have an interest in production. They range in size from one company which produces one-tenth of all the crude in the state, to individuals who own only a one thirty-second or a one sixty-fourth interest in a well producing but a few gallons daily. (D-141, C-127, C-49)

The 80,200 producing wells in the State turn out an average of only one-sixth of a barrel per day. The vast majority of producers are individuals of small means with a low average production per well. Many engage in additional pursuits among which farming is the most common. The richer agricultural lands of other states produce at a low cost the same agricultural commodities produced in the oil regions. Therefore, this class of Pennsylvania producer must rely heavily upon his income from oil.

The small oil well owner is ordinarily a marginal or submarginal producer. When the price of Pennsylvania crude reached six dollars a barrel in the post-war period, large profits were realized. During the subsequent decline in prices, profits disappeared and losses became the general rule.

In the Bradford region, wells producing as high as 50 barrels a day have been brought in recently. Considering the fixed costs per well, this Bradford production is low-cost oil.

Primary and secondary production in the Bradford region accounts for about seventy-five per cent of all the oil produced in Pennsylvania. Producers possessing small wells in the other regions outside the Bradford district suffer from what they call "Overproduction in the Bradford Area."

Drilling

Production costs vary from pool to pool and from well to well with relation to variation in volume and other factors such as drilling costs.

In Pennsylvania, the customary mode of drilling is known as the percussion method. This consists of repeatedly dropping a long steel shaft armed with a wedge-shaped bit upon the crust of the earth. The bit falls a distance of about two feet and cuts and pulverizes the rock, stone and clay in its path. As the hole progresses, a casing of steel pipe is inserted to support the sides of the hole. In the process of drilling, the pulverized material becomes suspended in water and is taken from the hole by means of a bailer. This method of drilling is to be distinguished from the more expensive rotary method used in western fields.

In detail, the cost items in drilling a well consist of the rig, rope, the bailer, an engine to activate the drill, casing, tubing, fuel, nitro-glycerine to "shoot" the well and loosen up the sands if they are found to be impervious, additional fixtures to cap or shut in the well and labor costs. If the location of the well is not easily accessible, the clearing of a rough roadway is an additional cost. If the well is found to be productive, other costs are those of a pump, sucker rods, pumping equipment, cleaning out and replacing tubing, casing and labor.

In the Pennsylvania fields, wells are named according to their characteristics. A "flowing well," which is now nearly non-existent, is one which produces oil without pumping. "Pumper wells" are those which must be pumped. A "stripper well" is a well which produces so little oil that it is pumped only intermittently, possibly once a week. An "abandoned well" is one which is permanently out of operation. A "capped well" or a "shut in well" is one which has been temporarily closed, but which has potential production.

Abandonment Value

In connection with costs it is necessary to bear in mind that there is some small recovery of costs when a well is abandoned. This consists of the sale price of the salvaged casing, tubing and other equipment.

In the early period of exploitation, Pennsylvania oil sands usually possessed a large volume of natural gas held under compression by rock strata. The pressure of this gas, technically known as rock pressure, was frequently as high as 750 pounds per square inch.

It performed two functions. First, by dissolving in the oil it produced viscosity and made the oil flow more freely; second, its pressure upon the oil acted as a propellant in pushing the oil out of the well.

During the absence of a market for natural gas in the initial stages of exploitation, the gas was used as a propellant with such prodigitality that the pressure became exhausted. This had two major effects. Wells must now be pumped and the gas which has escaped from the oil leaves the oil more viscuous and less easily recovered.

The mining of oil in the manner indicated above left large quantities of oil in the sands. Much of this is now recoverable by what are known as secondary methods of production.

Secondary Production

Secondary production is a salvage operation. It is an endeavor to obtain the oil remaining in sands that have already been drilled but which have not been exhausted. The exploitation of sands by means of secondary production is a complex feat of engineering which must be supported by a substantial financial outlay.

In secondary production more than one well is usually employed. In fact, the wells may be as many as one to an acre, although this is a high proportion. Natural gas, air or water are pumped into the oil sands under pressure through the intake wells to force the oil toward the producing wells. In the southern portion of the State, secondary production is accomplished primarily by the use of air and gas. In the northern part of the State, water is the usual propellant. (C-125)

On a thirty acre tract operated by the Simons Oil Corporation, Bradford, Pennsylvania, there are twenty water-intake wells, seventeen producing wells and three abandoned wells. In connection with secondary production, in this case, there was some difficulty in obtaining an adequate supply of water. Having obtained this, it was necessary to treat the water with chemicals so as to prevent lime deposits from impairing the operation of valves, lines and plungers. Such a re-pressuring project also involves the purchase and the scientific use of engines, pumps, filters, tanks plus a provision for heating the storage tanks during the winter. Moreover, in applying pressure to the sand, the rate of input and pressure must be carefully controlled to obtain maximum results. In the Simons project the maximum daily recovery was reached nine months after the beginning of operations and two months later daily production began to decline.

We have no data indicating the average profitable life of such a project, but one factor to be considered is the large capital expenditure involved and its low abandonment value when the field is exhausted.

Secondary production by means of gas and air involves similar expenditures and problems. One common cause for failure of re-pressuring attempts is the by-passing of gas through non-oil-bearing sands or the belated discovery that the permeability of the sand is so low as to prevent the passage of gas and air. (C-154)

Primary production in new fields has long been notable for the financial risk involved. Secondary production, when undertaken by those of limited means is even a greater gamble. Such enterprisers are unable to avail themselves of the best technological advice, nor can they drill a sufficient number of wells to take advantage of the law of probability. One example of this is the case of a man who has invested more than thirty thousand dollars in secondary production, but who is losing money and does not dare to cease operations. Yet, he is unable to invest more money. (C-144), (C-142), (C-143), (C-141). Many individuals and corporations with insufficient assets thus take the bull by the horns only to discover that they cannot hold on and dare not let go.

Small secondary tracts are subject to the danger of contiguous competition.

Cost of Secondary Production

The Commission estimates the average cost per barrel in secondary production to be approximately $2.15 under present conditions in the State of Pennsylvania.

One project reports cost of $2.52 per barrel, not including lease-hold cost, depreciation, depletion, amortization and taxes. (C-152) Others report costs of $1.82 and $1.92, when including the above mentioned expenses. Other secondary producers report costs in excess of $3.00 per barrel. (C-144)

It is notable that those secondary producers, whose lifting costs are in the neighborhood of $2.00 per barrel or under, are for the most part large enterprises with substantial financial reserves.

Posted Price System for Pennsylvania Grade Crude

In Pennsylvania, the price at which thousands of producers sell their crude and the price at which a few purchasers buy it is posted at the business offices of a small number of concerns. This is known as the Posted Price for Pennsylvania grade crude.

In the long run, the price of Pennsylvania grade crude is based on a multiplicity of factors, many of which are not constant. Among these are the following: The amount and the cost of the world's crude production, the world demand, ocean transportation costs, the United States import tariff, the demand in the United States, volume of production in the United States, cost of production in the United States, cost of transportation within the United States, preference for Pennsylvani lubricants by motorists and industry, volume of Pennsylvania crude production and the cost of producing Pennsylvania crude.

In the short run, the price is determined by the judgment of a few large sellers and purchasers of Pennsylvania grade crude. (C-76, 132)

Complaints Against the Posted Price System

Complaints against the Posted Price System are cogent. Testimony indicates that the price is "usually set by" two Companies. (C-76, 132).

In connection with this conclusion, the factors which limit the possibility of manipulation must be borne in mind. If the price is set too high, Pennsylvania producers and refiners of Pennsylvania crude would suffer from competition with western oils. This in time would automatically compel a lower price.

The automatic limiting factors operating against low prices are not so apparent. The large producers would be able to curtail production, while small producers would be less able to curtail.

If large producers continue production under low prices, the effect upon them depends upon their relationship to refining. In any case their production profits would diminish. A producer not affiliated with a refining company and not engaged in refining would undoubtedly suffer, but a producer who is also engaged in refining or affiliated with a refining company would be in a better position.

Since there is convincing testimony to the effect that the market price of products refined from Pennsylvania crude does not sag in proportion to declining prices for crude, there may be opportunity for refiners to use the low crude market to obtain supplies of raw material at bargain prices while they continue to sell the finished material at high prices.

Another complaint is that some refiners and their affiliates follow the practice of storing large quantities of crude when the price is low; that this is manufactured and the products sold when crude prices recover; that during the subsequent period of high crude prices such companies curtail purchases and that the producers are therefore unable to obtain the advantages of the higher prices to which they are entitled.

Because of the resistance to the return of questionnaires designed to elicit complete information concerning trade practices and because of court proceedings which delay the Commission's work for eleven months, the Commission was unable to complete its examination.

Lest large producing companies and large purchasers of Pennsylvania grade crude which also have affiliated refineries be judged too harshly, it must be remembered that a producer-refiner relationship and a strong influence over prices is not confined to the State of Pennsylvania, nor to the companies examined by the Commission.

A Two Price System

There have been, at times, two sets of prices for Pennsylvania crude. One, the publicized posted price; the other, the posted price plus a premium, which some refineries were obliged to pay in order to obtain their necessary supplies.

This premium indicated a demand for crude beyond the amount which the seller could furnish at the posted price. In a free market, the posted price would have risen to a point where the demand, and supply set an equilibrium price, but the practice of the industry was to place purchasers upon an allotment at the posted price. Then those refiners, whose supplies were inadequate, were obliged to go into the second price system and pay a premium.

The above practice subjected many producers and refiners to unnecessary business hazards in an industry already replete with difficulties.

CHAPTER II

Transportation

After a producer drills a well and obtains oil he usually requests a pipe line company to connect his well with its lines. This entails the building of what is called a gathering line from the well to the trunk line of the company.

The pipe line companies aver that they do not ordinarily purchase crude, (C-1) that they simply contract to transport it to a purchaser. Exceptions to this rule are cared for by the maintaining of storage facilities by pipe line companies. The producer is allowed thirty days free storage, after which the charge is sixty cents a day per thousand barrels. Whether or not the producer's oil is stored, he must pay what is known as a gathering charge, which is 20.84 cents per barrel in the Titusville and Oil City regions. (C-4)

The producer is also subject to a charge for sediment, water leakage and evaporation. This amounts to two per cent of all oil measured from producer's tanks. (C-118) One large producer is charged more than $100,000 a year by pipe line companies on this account, but the Commission has been unable to obtain data which would justify such a charge, nor has any witness before the Commission been able to justify this charge.

Types of Pipe Line Companies

One classification of pipe line companies embraces the Common Carrier Lines. If they are intra-state lines, they operate under the surveillance of the Public Utilities Commission of Pennsylvania. If they are inter-state lines they operate under the regulations of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

In theory, these lines are obliged to transport petroleum for any and all persons at the rates and under the conditions prescribed by the regulating bodies.

Complaint. That independent persons have found it impossible to utilize these transportation facilities because the companies render service only after great delay.

Private Lines

A second classification of pipe line company embraces the private lines. These do not hold out their services to the public and are used for the transportation of commodities by the corporation which own them.

Water Transportation

A number of oil companies own and operate tankers for the transportation of petroleum and its products from the Gulf to the Atlantic Seaboard. Upon occasion, these companies also charter tankers, as do many oil companies which possess no tankers of their own.

Water transportation is also used on the Great Lakes and in some of Pennsylvania's inland waterways.

Motor transportation of crude is resorted to by some small producers and occasionally by small refiners to whom pipe line facilities are unavailable.

Motor transportation of refined products is used on a large scale. At least forty thousand motor vehicles are thus engaged in the State of Pennsylvania. In fact, this is the principal means of carrying products to retail stations.

Transportation Tariffs

Pipe line transportation of gasoline has developed between eastern and western Pennsylvania and other points. The rate between Philadelphia and Pittsburgh is 8/10 of a cent a gallon. In the long run and in the freely competitive market, the wholesale price of gasoline in Pittsburgh should not be more than 8/10 of a cent above the Philadelphia price.

The commission finds that the economies of this type of transportation are not properly reflected in the Pittsburgh price. During a period of nine months, wholesale prices in Pittsburgh exceeded the Philadelphia price by more than a cent and a half per gallon.

Rail Transportation and Increased Railroad Rates

Since 1914, the railroad rates of gasoline shipments in Pennsylvania have been successively increased 5%, 15%, 25% and 40% cumulatively. This shortened the radius in which Pennsylvania gasoline can be marketed by those refiners limited to railroad transportation. For refiners located in western Pennsylvania this area is now roughly western New York, western Pennsylvania, eastern Ohio and West Virginia.

Exchange of Products

Intense competition was presumed to prevail among the large companies. It will come as a surprise to the public and to motorists to know that many companies cooperate in supplying each other with gasoline. Not only do many companies fill each other's tanks, but they sometimes furnish each other with the specifications of their highly advertised products, which are supposed to possess superlative qualities because of these unique specifications.

The manner of effecting exchanges of products is as follows: As between two companies, the first furnished the second with gasoline made to the specifications of the second company. The second company in turn gives the first company "Q" gasoline to meet that company's specifications. The accounts are balanced monthly and the transaction amounts to trading gasoline gallon for gallon. (C-73, 76) The first company also makes Ethyl gasoline for a third company which is marketed under that company's brand name. (C-74)

A fourth company has exchange agreements with a fifth company and the third company. Exchange agreements are not limited to gasoline. The fifth company gives furnace oil to the fourth company in New England, and they in turn receive oil in Philadelphia which results in a saving in transportation costs. (D-746) The fourth company also exchanges products with the other major companies. (D-697, 698) A sixth company and the second company also have exchange agreements whereby they furnish each other with gasoline. (D-572, 571)

A seventh company furnishes gasoline to other major companies, such as the third company and to an eighth and a ninth company. (D-326) This seventh company accepts delivery from other major companies of gasoline to be sold under the brand name of the seventh company in other states. (D-327) The gasoline which a tenth company markets in Pennsylvania comes partially from the refineries of the third company (D-260) and from an eleventh company. (D-274)

A twelfth company takes delivery from a thirteenth company. (B-192) The seventh company delivers gasoline to the eleventh company's trucks which convey it directly to the retail dealers of the eleventh company. (D-920)

In connection with exchange of gasoline among refining companies, there justly arises a question of the value of brand advertising. Chemical and physical tests made of over one hundred samples of gasoline taken at random in the State reveals no substantial difference in the gasoline of many companies.

One gasoline broker testifying before the Commission stated that if one of the major companies asked for seventy octane gasoline they all get the same gasoline. If the specifications are changed, they are changed after these companies buy the gasoline. (C-104)

A saving of transportation costs is the reason for exchanging products.

The hypothetical method of accomplishing this economy in transportation costs would run as follows: A Philadelphia company possessing no refinery in the Pittsburgh area will arrange with a refinery in the Pittsburgh area for a supply of gasoline for the Philadelphia company's Pittsburgh retail stations. The company possessing a refinery in the Philadelphia area will then reciprocate by supplying gasoline for the retail stations of the Pittsburgh company, which are in the Philadelphia region. Balances would be made monthly and the practice amounts to trading gasoline gallon for gallon. Thus, the cost of shipping gasoline across the state would be avoided.

CHAPTER III

Refining

The refining phase of the petroleum industry affords a striking illustration of the adjustment of technological methods to market requirements. When the first oil well was opened near Titusville, Pennsylvania and for years thereafter, the primary public need was for an illuminating oil. In 1880, kerosene constituted 75% of our petroleum products. When the automobile entered the market, refining emphasis quickly shifted from kerosene to gasoline. In 1910, the latter product amounted to approximately 10% of product refinery yield. Within twenty years, the gasoline yield rose to more than 40% of the total, and in 1938, it is in the neighborhood of 50% of the total. Meanwhile, the kerosene yield has declined in conformity with market requirements from 75% to a little over 5% of the total. At present, kerosene is not even the second most valuable product of the petroleum industry. The secondary position has been taken by lubricants.

Refining consists of separating the constituent fraction of petroleum by heating the crude oil to successively higher temperatures. The boiling point varies according to the molecular weight of the fractions. Thus it is possible to run them off separately through condensing pipes. Refining practice, however, is more complicated than this simple description of its theory.

The refining described above is variously known in the industry as topping, skimming and straight run distillation. In topping and skimming only the more volatile distillates are taken from the petroleum. In straight run refining, the oil is successively heated to higher temperatures without being allowed to cool. This was at one time a novel advance over the earlier method of allowing the petroleum to cool after each fraction had been distilled.

A revolutionary departure in refining occurred in 1914 when cracking was first undertaken on a commercial scale in the United States. In the cracking process, the oil is subjected to heat and pressure, which causes the heavier molecules to break down into both heavier and lighter ones. The lighter molecules contribute to an increased yield of gasoline, and the heavier ones increase the amount of heavier products run from the stills.

This process increased the gasoline yield from a maximum of 25% to 40% of the total volume of crude.

As refining progressed from topping and skimming to the present advanced methods, the necessary investment in refineries increased. Today in the modern type of refinery, an investment of $200 to $300 per barrel of daily capacity is reported. Moreover, obsolescence rates run as high as 50% of the cost of operation and maintenance.

The foregoing means that large companies using the most modern methods of refining have a large financial outlay at stake. If their actions indicate a desire to dominate the market and to crowd out new enterprisers who begin operations on a small scale, their motivation is understandable.

CHAPTER IV

Markets

During the last twenty years the marketing area for Pennsylvania gasoline has continuously contracted. Since 1914, the railroad rates on gasoline shipments in Pennsylvania have been successively advanced five per cent, fifteen per cent, twenty-five per cent, and forty per cent cumulatively. This rise has so narrowed the marketing area to which Pennsylvania gasoline can be shipped, that today it embraces only western New York, western Pennsylvania, eastern Ohio and West Virginia for refineries in western Pennsylvania. (C-113)

Originally Pennsylvania gasoline was sold in New England, Michigan and Canadian markets. Subsequently, refineries built in New England and using South American and Gulf crude restricted that field. Then importation of gasoline from the Atlantic Seaboard via the Erie Canal and the Great Lakes further curtailed the northern marketing area. (C-104, 113, 98, 99, 114)

In addition to this, gasoline pipe lines running from the eastern to the western end of the state bring gasoline manufactured from South American and Mid-Continent crude directly into competition with gasoline manufactured in Western Pennsylvania. At the present time, the marketing area in western Pennsylvania for Pennsylvania gasoline is restricted to a radius covered by a one cent freight rate. (C-99)

Lubricating oils made from Pennsylvania crude have a wide public acceptance. This is the mainstay of independent refineries operating on Pennsylvania crude. (C-99) Against this there is a trend toward reduced consumption of lubricants per machine, by reason of improved machine design both in the automotive field and in industry.

Pennsylvania refineries whether using Pennsylvania crude wholly or in part, are everywhere subject to the influence of competition from gasoline manufactured from western oils. As an example of this, one company ships crude from the Gulf to the Atlantic seaboard, then across the Pennsylvania oil field by pipe line and delivers it to the refinery for manufacture. In fact, the State of Pennsylvania is webbed with pipe lines which bring western gasoline into competition with Pennsylvania gasoline.

Independent refineries occupy disadvantageous positions. In addition to the likelihood of a high unit cost for production of petroleum products among independents, the independent refineries are for the most part obliged to use either rail or motor truck transportation in finding an outlet to their markets. This transportation is more expensive than transportation by pipe lines.

Summary: In summary, independent Pennsylvania refineries possess a limited marketing area, which in addition to its limitations, is invaded by competition with gasoline made from western oils. The only advantage possessed by independent refineries using Pennsylvania crude lies in the reputed superiority of Pennsylvania lubricants. This market is largely maintained by the momentum of public habit, by the Pennsylvania Grade Crude advertising campaigns and by the fact that western refineries have not decided to run more lubricants from western oils. Moreover, independent refiners of Pennsylvania crude, with the exception of one or two companies, are dependent upon independent marketing agencies for their outlet to the retail trade. Altogether, this leaves them in a dangerous position. They are at the mercy of low-priced crudes in the sale of their gasoline and at the mercy of psychological factors for a market for their lubricating oil.

Distributors and Marketers

Oil companies possessing refineries employ a wide variety of methods to place their products in the hand of the consumer. A company employing all methods would have first, a direct line to the retail consumer by means of company-owned bulk stations, company-owned trucks and company-controlled retail stations.

Next, this company would have jobbers. A jobber buys and sells large quantities of products much as the orthodox commercial wholesaler would buy from a manufacturer and sell to retail stores. He does not operate upon a commission or consignment basis. (D-361) Usually he possesses large storage and delivery facilities.

A company possessing all means of outlet to the market would also have distributors. A distributor is that "class to whom material is shipped on consignment and who makes return to the company weekly, sometimes semi-weekly, and operates essentially the same as company-operated bulk stations." (D-380)

What adds to the complexity is the fact that some jobbers are also retail dealers; i. e., they operate retail stations. (D-361) Distributors likewise may own retail stations or have a financial and business affiliation with retail outlets. (D-1053) Moreover, jobbers sometimes retail directly to consumers by tank wagon. (D-185) It is also necessary to recognize the fact that a distributor may also be a refiner. And a distributor may also be a retail marketer. (D-1053)

Of the total of 756 bulk plants in Pennsylvania, 521 are controlled by large oil companies.

In addition to the above-mentioned avenues to the market, some companies maintain contracts with a chain of stations or even with a single station which is independently owned and operated. These stations may be located at a railroad siding, in which case the gasoline comes to them in railroad tank cars. If they possess no such railroad facilities, the company may deliver to them at the company's bulk plant at prices comparable to those paid by trackside purchasers.

The previously mentioned company-owned bulk plant serving company-owned stations, the distributor, the jobber and the track-side buyer are the first avenues to the market from the refinery. They are supplemented by tank car sales of gasoline and other products in the open market, by sales in tankers and in barge lots. Thus, in all, there are seven primary outlets which a company may maintain as the first step from the refinery.

It is to be noted that tank car sales do not necessarily mean that the products run by tank car directly from the refinery to the buyer. They may be shipped part way by pipe line, tanker, barge or by motor truck.

As the product moves toward the ultimate consumer, the paths fork and increase in number. Its movement shows duplications of service at prices unrelated to what are ordinarily considered distinctions between retail and wholesale prices.

One lane runs to farmers who are supplied by the peddler, who covers a route through the countryside.

Another lane leads from the bulk station to those who buy at tank prices for their independently owned and operated retail stations.

An additional branch and the most troublesome, runs directly to the commercial consumer. Commercial consumers are those who buy petroleum products from the refiner or the wholesaler for their own use, for use in their business, or for resale to employees, and sometimes to the public in general. In passing, it might be noted that the commercial consumer is the bete noire of the retailer, because commercial consumers usually purchase gasoline at a lower price than retail dealers themselves can purchase it.

Turning now to the second main avenue from the refiner which leads to the distributor, we find the distributor selling to retail stations, to peddlers and to commercial consumer accounts.

The third avenue from the refiner which leads to the jobber finds him similarly engaged, with three principal avenues of outlet, the peddler, the retail stations and the commercial consumer.

The fourth avenue from the refiner, namely, that to the trackside buyer finds him engaged principally in selling to retail stations, although some have been known to sell to commercial consumers.

The fifth, sixth and seventh avenues from the refinery, namely, the tank sales on the open market, the tanker sales on the open market and barge sales, need not be traced to the consumer. They ordinarily cut back to a large marketing organization or to a refinery company which temporarily lacks supplies. Thus products find their way to the retailers through the mechanism previously described, for the company bulk stations, the distributors, the jobbers and the track-side buyers.

Complaints Against Price Difference Between Branded and Unbranded Gasoline

By design or accident, the wholesale price of unbranded gasoline is maintained at a higher level than branded gasoline. (D-233, D-196) Moreover, some leading price reporting services do not reflect what jobbers and distributors handling branded products are paying to their suppliers.

Credible witnesses report that the independent jobber must pay 7.75 cents for unbranded gasoline on the Atlantic Seaboard. At the same time, branded gasoline is sold for 6.25 cents. (July 1937) Thus, unbranded gasoline costs a jobber 1.5 cents more than branded gasoline. A qualified witness further states that the burden of advertising is not being added to the price of branded gasoline, and that the companies make a price differential between unbranded and branded gasoline in order to maintain an advantageous control of marketing.

The selling of branded and unbranded gasoline at different prices as described above, is an admitted trade practice. (D-197)

It is undoubtedly to the advantage of major companies to secure and fortify their outlets for their refinery products. Gasoline is the most important of these. One means of assuring themselves of this market control is by means of the creation of a market which buys brand names and sells brand names. Padding the prices of unbranded gasoline is one means of discouraging the creation of stations selling unbranded gasoline and privately branded gasoline. In other words, unbranded gasoline sold at padded prices discourages competition against brands and reinforces market domination.

Prices, Cost and the Public Interest

Gasoline is a joint product. When it is manufactured, other products are also partially manufactured. Thus, there arises the question as to what part of the cost of the manufacture of gasoline should be attributed to the partial manufacture of subsequent products.

The determination of the cost of manufacturing gasoline is a difficult, even an impossible problem unless an arbitrary accounting method is used. Refiners employ methods which are arbitrary and suitable to their purposes, but they are of little use to the public or to governmental agencies in the determination of a fair price.

The problem of the cost of manufacturing gasoline is similar to the problem of estimating the cost of producing cotton seed. This is a joint product with cotton fibre. It is simple enough to determine the cost of producing both products, but impossible to determine the amount of fertilizer, labor costs, taxes, depreciation, interest and other charges which should be attributed separately to cotton seed and to cotton fibre.

The sales allocation method of computing costs is generally employed in the petroleum industry. As far as a means of informing the public of the fair cost of manufacturing gasoline is concerned, this is a circular system which leads nowhere. The cost of manufacturing products is derived from the price for which they sell. It contrasts with the cost of analysis used by a cotton farmer. His costs include labor, fertilizer, seed, depreciation of machinery, taxes, interest and insurance. If this amounts to a total of $500 and he finds he has produced 10,000 pounds of seeds and fibre, he knows that the cost is five cents a pound for both products taken together. If he were to work on a method similar to the sales allocation method, he would look at market prices and decide that since fibre sold for ten cents a pound and seed for two cents a pound, that twelve cents is the cost of producing a pound of these two items.

In order not to condemn unjustly computation of costs by the sales allocation method, it must be pointed out that it is of practical value to the refiner.

RETAILERS

Summary

In contrast with a background of cooperation and tolerance among major oil companies in the fields of production, transportation and refining, we discover retailing to be a scene of ferocious competition. Here the financial pygmies have not found a way to the easy conduct of business discovered by the financial giants. By and large, retailing is the least profitable and the most competitive phase of the petroleum industry.

Therefore, it is not surprising to find that the large oil companies have adopted the Iowa Plan. Under this name, there has been a general movement to discharge retail station employees and to turn the operation of retail stations over to former employees or to other workmen for operation. This relieves the oil companies of the financial responsibility for maintaining payrolls in the least profitable part of their business. At the same time, by means of cancellable leases, they retain ownership and control of their market outlets.

During the past few years, the movement has proceeded so far that there are now relatively few retail stations operated by major oil companies. Considering the difficulty of efficiently using the time of retail station employees in a business where the demand for their labor is sporadic, the rapid acceptance of the Iowa Plan is understandable. The adoption of the chain store tax has given the Iowa Plan additional momentum.

One effect of the Iowa Plan has been the large scale entrance of unemployed persons of small means into the business of petroleum products. Here, instead of receiving wages, they become dependent upon gallonage and margins for their livelihood.

Number of Stations

Pennsylvania has approrximately 28,449 retail outlets. With respect to operation they may be classified as follows:

1. Those stations which are owned and operated by integrated companies. By this is meant stations, the ownership of which, either by lease or by fee, is vested in the integrated company and whose attendants are directly in the employ of an integrated company.

2. The next category is that of stations which are owned by an integrated company and leased for operation in the sale of the integrated company's products.

3. There is still another category of integrated company stations. This includes those which are leased from an individual by the company and released either to that individual or to another individual for the sale of the integrated company's products. Usually all of the above types are what are known as one hundred per cent stations or undivided stations. This means that they sell only the gasoline and, in most cases, only the oils and greases of the owning company.

Stations of Marketing Organizations Which Posses No Refineries

The title of this category of retail outlet is self-descriptive. However, the size of the company and the number of stations vary.

Such marketing organizations whether large or small are eyed enviously by the major companies, whose great desire is to increase their volume of gasoline sales so as to increase their marginal revenue.

At this point it will be appropriate to explain the present day emphasis upon control of retail marketing in the oil industry as contrasted with the comparative indifference to control among the large companies in earlier periods.

In the earlier period, control of the refining capacity was the key to the industry. At this time, refineries were comparatively inexpensive when rated with respect to the investment per barrel of daily capacity. With technological advancement and development of new methods of refining, investment in refineries increased. At the present time, an investment of three hundred dollars per barrel of daily capacity in a refinery is not unusual.

With such a large investment involved, the refining companies found it necessary to assure themselves adequate supplies of crude. It was at this juncture that oil companies sought the ownership of sufficient production to satisfy their refinery requirements. The incursion of the major companies into Mid-Continent, California and South American fields was a part of this movement. After having thus further increased their investments and responsibilities they felt it also necessary to assure themselves of outlets to the market, even down to the hose which carries gasoline into the motorist's tank.

A common feature of producing, transporting and manufacturing on such a scale is the fact that up to a certain point, increased utilization of facilities brings a decreased cost per unit.

Until this point is reached, every additional gallon sold means additional profits beyond the profits realized from the sale of gallons manufactured in smaller volume. From this comes the strident efforts to obtain increased gallonage.

The burden of the above remarks in connection with marketing companies having no refineries is an explanation of the rivalry among refining companies to negotiate contracts with such organizations and to increase gallonage.

Special Types of Retail Outlets

The Track-side buyer is the bugaboo of most retailers. His gasoline comes to him in tank cars on a railroad siding and is usually sold by him below the prevailing retail market price. The gasoline so sold may be manufactured by a small company which owns the retail stations or it may be purchased from local refineries in the open market and shipped to the station in tank cars. This may be an economical mode of marketing gasoline when compared with the bulk station system of large companies and their fleet of motor trucks which travels every highway and by-way of the State. The track-side stations are in a position to cut prices and still make money.

The Curb Station is regarded as a menace to the orderly conduct of retailing. It is one which dispenses with driveways and locates the gasoline pumps at the street curb so that customers station their cars on the public thoroughfares when buying gasoline. In addition to the saving in overhead costs accomplished by dispensing with driveways and utilizing public thoroughfares instead, the curb station has less call for water and air service than do the stations possessing driveways. From these facts come the tendency of curb station operators to cut prices and precipitate local price wars.

Retailer's Receipts From Gasoline Sales

The tabulation of 7,000 questionnaires received by the Commission from a total of 28,000 odd retailers, reveals the fact that among these the average difference between the amount paid by the retailer to supplying companies for gasoline and the amount received by the retailer for the sale of such gasoline was $1.440 in 1937. In the operation of the retailer's business, whatever expenses are allocated to gasoline selling would be deductible from this amount to ascertain the retailer's net gain from gasoline sales. The 7,000 retailers interrogated upon this subject constituted a random sampling of retailers within the State. It is to be understood that they do not represent a special type or category of retailer.

Evidence of Overdevelopment of Retail Stations

The average cost of gasoline to the retailer during 1937 was slightly over fourteen cents per gallon, including five cents which represents State and Federal Tax, and the average selling price was slightly over eighteen cents per gallon, including five cents which represents State and Federal Tax, which indicated a margin of four cents for the State generally.

Density of Retail Stations

A survey made by the motor police in June 1938, gives a picture of the density of retail station development in the State as a whole.

Two routes, one from Pittsburgh to Erie, to Kingston,

Northumberland, Lock Haven, Hollidaysburg, Ebensburg, Butler and Pittsburgh; and a second route from Pittsburgh over U. S. Highway 22 and U. S. Highway 611 to Philadelphia and from Philadelpia over U. S. Route 30 to Pittsburgh were studied.

On the first route, which covered 774.3 miles, there were 1,345 retail stations or one retail station for every 1.7 miles. These stations maintained 3,898 pumps for dispensing gasoline.

On the second route covering U. S. Highway 22 and 30, there were 2.3 retail stations per mile for a distance of 653.2 miles. These maintained 4.874 pumps for dispensing gasoline.

74,000 pumps in Pennsylvania serve two million registered automotive vehicles, or one pump for every twenty-seven cars. If properly distributed throughout the state, one pump for every sixty cars would be ample provision.

The low gross income from gasoline sales is not surprising in view of the density of stations.

Commercial Consumer Accounts

It is the Commercial Consumer Account practice of oil companies which makes the already precarious livelihood of the retailer even more secure.

At the same time that oil companies supply the retailer with gasoline at wholesale prices, some companies also supply the retailer's customer with gasoline at the same price. Frequently they supply the retailer's customer with gasoline at even lower prices. Thus the Retailer who buys at higher prices than his customer is expected to make a living by competing with his supplying company for the customer's trade. The Commission estimates that at least forty per cent of all the gasoline sold in the state is purveyed through Commercial Consumer Accounts.

If the retailer were operating on a wage basis, this practice would not be helpful, but since as a result of the Iowa Plan, he is operating on a margin, the commercial consumer account practice adds injury to difficulty.

Although oil companies generally claim that the commercial consumer accounts prices are given only to those who purchase a minimum of one hundred thousand gallons a year, the Commission finds that minimum gallonage policies are so generally disregarded as to constitute an immediate danger to those persons of small means who have invested in the retailing of gasoline.

So that there may be no misunderstanding as to the nature of commercial consumer accounts, the fact that this type of account embraces sales direct from refiners, from bulk plants, from distributors and from jobbers to business concerns and even to non-commercial consumers will bear repetition. A distinguishing feature of commercial consumer sales is that they do not pass through the retail stations. A second distinguishing feature is price. This may be slightly above the price to retail dealers, equal to it, or as is often the case, below it. In any event, the price to the commercial consumer is much less than the price at which the retail stations can sell to the public.

Commercial consumer sales of gasoline are not regarded by the refining industry as sales which affect retailers nor as sales destined to reach retail customers, but the Commission finds that in practice and in effect, commercial consumer sales are part and parcel of the retail set up.

A similar situation would prevail if the manufacturer of a breakfast food were to conduct a nation-wide advertising campaign, set up window displays for the grocer, sell him the product at twelve cents and then turn around and supply the grocer's customer with the same article at eleven cents.

In theory, the retailer, who buys at higher prices than the commercial consumer, is supposed to make a living by competing with his supplying company for the trade of consumers. The presumption is that the retailer can successfully compete by offering the consumer a higher price than an oil company offers.

This practice promises the retailer an easy approach to bankruptcy. It scarcely need be said that the commercial consumer system twists business away from the retailers. Even in the quixotic oil industry, purchasers still prefer low prices.

Considering the fact that oil companies spend much time and money upon the maintenance of retail stations, the above mentioned commercial consumer practice of undermining the retailer may seem senseless, but it is not. The retailers serve a number of purposes.

The retail station is a glorified billboard where the attendants combine the functions of sales clerks and sandwich men. Even the lavatories are a part of the retail station's advertisement of the refiner's brand name.

While the retailer attends upon the motorist with windshield wiping, inflation of tires, sale of gas and other services, the signs, colors and service impress upon him the brand name of the merchandise.

Commercial Consumer Prices

An observer might as well try to catalogue the prices in a second-hand furniture market as to classify those at which sales are made to commercial consumer accounts. The following are a few examples of commercial consumer prices:

Undivided dealers prices up to 100,000 gallons.
Dealer's price minus one cent rebate.
Tank car price plus one-half cent for a contract of more than 100,000 gallons.
Tank car price plus one cent for less than 100,000 gallons.
Undivided dealer's price minus one-half cent.
Undivided dealer's price minus one cent with a variation related to the refinery price.
Five and one-half cents below the prevailing retail price.
Six cents below the prevailing retail price.

The reader will be mystified by many features of the commercial consumer account business. This is particularly true if he is acquainted with logic.

For example, in reading of tank car quotations he might believe that a purchaser buys a railroad tank car of gasoline. This is not necessarily the case. In the oil industry, tank car sales need have nothing to do with tank cars. Gasoline sold at tank car prices may come to the purchaser by "tank wagon delivery."

The language of the oil industry is often at variance with the facts it purports to describe.

A Commercial Consumer in Action

A steel company presents the best picture of the commercial consumer in action:—Three pumps on steel company property, seven station attendants ready to fill tanks, a sign, "employees only" plus 12,000 persons on the pay roll and a price of two cents under the retailer's price in the district. (E-7) This, plus the fact that the public can also purchase gasoline at the reduced price, constitute the highlights of the Johnstown tableau.

At this gasoline bazaar, the steel company supplied its employees and the public approximately 605,000 gallons of gasoline in eleven months of 1937, at a gross profit of $12,000. (E-10)

The company which made this flourishing business possible, sold the steel company gasoline at one-half cent more than the tank car price. This was one and one-half cents less than the prevailing price to retail dealers in the region. (E-38)

To prevent sales to the general public, the steel company employed a brass check system. In theory, only those presenting the brass check issued to employees were to be served by the station attendants, but from the testimony of non-employees who purchased without having presented a brass check, it is evident that the system did not prevent sales to the public.

Further Examples of Commercial Consumer Accounts In the Johnstown Area

A dairy company in Johnstown made four contracts with four different companies and agreed to take a minimum of 60,000 gallons from each. The dairy company took the minimum from none of the oil companies, but it bought gasoline at one-half cent above the tank car prices. (E-72)

This price was a cent and a half lower than the price to the retailers themselves. The fact that many retailers purchased a larger volume than the dairy made the discriminatory price all the more burdensome to the retailers.

Such conditions are by no means confined to Johnstown. In the Philadelphia area, a commercial consumer purchaser has contracts with four oil companies to supply his one and only pump with a total of 40,000 gallons per year at the same price, i. e., one-half cent over tank car prices.

Prices to Retailers

No small part of the retailer's difficulty arises from the confusion and secrecy of pricing practices. The retailer is affected not only by the price he pays, but by all the prices from the refinery to the ultimate consumer.

With respect to a confused price structure, an official of one of the leading companies clarifies the confusion as follows:—"We make contracts on a domestic market based on a dealer's price over a period of a year or years on a sliding scale basis; in other words, based on the dealer's price differential on that, as I explained to you, of two cents off for the distributor and one and one-half cents off for the tank car buyer; and that price is off the dealer's price and that is for a period of contract for one year." (D-698) This explanation of price policy is difficult to understand.

So as to present the proper picture, it should be noted that there are a number of different price categories. There is a distributor's tank car price (D-690); a seller's tank car price minus one per cent for cash (Exhibit 51); a tank car price for a full load delivered to undivided dealers (D-1044); a tank car price plus one-half cent for less than full load delivery (D-1044); and a tank car price at the high low average of the Oil Gram prices. (D-129)

In confirmation of this variety of prices, we refer to the statement of an official of a large company who said, "There are a number of different tank car prices." (D-127)

Dealers Subject to Price Discrimination

Considering the diversity and secrecy of prices, a description of price discrimination among leaders who purchase from the same supplying company is unnecessary. It is merely necessary to call attention to the fact that the variation in prices to different dealers who buy from the same supplying company exists and has proceeded so far as to become a general practice.

Dealers who receive their merchandise from different supplying companies or from the same supplying company have no reliable means of determining whether or not they are being treated fairly.

We again recur to the term competition. If competition is to perform its function, free, accurate and easily obtainable information respecting the prices at which goods are sold is necessary. Such conditions do not exist as between supplying companies and their dealers. It would be difficult to construct a price structure which would better serve as a foundation for discriminatory treatment of retail dealers.

It is also to be noted that there is a price to peddlers which may be as much as one and one-half cents less than the dealer's price. Moreover, there is another price to what are called commission agents. Although the confusion in prices may have seemed complete, an additional confusion is still possible. There are such things as commission agents, peddlers and retailers all in one and the same person. (D-1075)

Furthermore, there are "under the fill" prices, where twenty-five gallon lots are sold at the dealer's prices. (D-89) There are also prices to dealers at the low of Platt's Oil Gram (D-1137), a car unloader's price (D-106), a commercial consumer's price of one-half cent less than the undivided dealer's price, (D-983) a dealer's price plus one-half cent for bookkeeping on charge accounts, (D-480), an additional commercial consumer's price to what are called large buyers at tank car prices (D-983) and a commercial consumer's price at five cents off the retailer's price. (D-809)

Thus the Commission finds that the market for one of the most important commodities of our economic life is a comparatively secret market in so far as it affects thousands of retail dealers in Pennsylvania.

Gasoline Prices

The public is chiefly interested in knowing whether gasoline prices are artifically controlled and whether the motorist is paying an exorbitant price for petroleum products. To answer this question it is necessary to begin with the production of crude oil itself. Regardless of what method of cost accounting a company may use, some part of the price of gasoline is derived from the price of crude.

Controlled instead of free competition in gasoline prices is further illustrated by the difference in the price of branded and unbranded gasolines. Among major companies which sell both gasolines, unbranded gasoline is uniformly higher in price than branded gasoline.

Proceeding from the refiners to the independent jobber who has no refinery of his own we find companies again artifically controlling prices. For the most part, they center around the branded and unbranded prices described above. One jobber with a half century's experience in the oil business states that "All prices in the oil business in the past fifty years have been artifically controlled although there has never been such a bad condition as exists today." The same witness further states that there is no open tank car price and no open cargo price. Moreover, when he wishes to buy gasoline, he is obliged to go to the larger companies and pray for the best contact he can obtain since there are no competitors with the large companies for those who wish to purchase large volumes.

Another witness states that in his attempts to buy gasoline no other company will bid under his supplying company although the witness has endeavored to obtain bids at various times.

An independent jobber who wishes to organize outlets for unbranded gasoline or for his own brand is confronted with a great difficulty. He always finds that the net back to the refinery for the branded gasoline is less than that for the unbranded gasoline, or in other words, competing jobbers and retailers may obtain branded gasoline at lower prices.

To completely eliminate an independent jobber who has succeeded in building up a retail business, the major companies need only increase the spread between branded and unbranded gasolines. When the retail price of branded gasoline is sufficiently below that for unbranded gasoline, the retail trade drifts to the big-brand stations and leaves the independent jobber's stations bankrupt.

On the other hand, if the independent jobber chooses to sell branded gasoline, he is at the mercy of contract renewals with the company whose brand he has been selling.

As we continue towards the consumer, we find that one company in Pennsylvania takes the initiative in deciding what the price of gasoline is to be and that large companies usually imitate this company's prices.

Price Determination and Simultaneous Movements

An official of one of the large companies which follow the first company's price announcements admits that the leadership of price changes has been announced by the particular company in question for the past fifteen years. (D-347) The officials of the large companies which follow the price leadership in the state do not feel that their actions are collusive. They explain the general uniformity of price changes "as due to just general competitive knowledge." (D-347)

Downward price movements may be more reasonably explained in terms of price competition than upward movements. With respect to the downward movements, an official of one large company states, "If there is a margin between two grades of gasoline of equal trade acceptance, the one company will make such a terrific inroad into the other company's business that they cannot afford to stay at that price for any great length of time." He states that it is absolutely essential that if one company makes a downward move, the others must follow. (D-948, 949)

The same official reports that his company "made a survey of various communities designed to ascertain the effect of different price margins on their scales. This study shows that they could not stand more than one cent per gallon margin without having the independent do more business than our dealer. They found that where the margin was one and one-half cents, the independent did considerably more business and where it was two cents he did practically all." (D-942) "The company also discovered that when their price was adjusted, the lost gallonage did not come back right away and sometimes never came back." (D-942)

This explanation of price uniformity with respect to declining prices is more credible than the oil industry's explanation of uniformity of upward movements. In the former case, there is undoubtedly a competitive situation which impels uniformity, but it is not competition among oil companies which establishes the uniformity of rising prices. Nor can we conclude from the testimony that it is scarcity in supply and consequent competition among the buying motorists which causes uniformity of rising prices.

Some characteristic examples of the oil industry's explanation of uniformity of price rises follows. An official of one of the outstanding companies upon being asked what conditions warranted a one-half cent increase in gasoline prices replied, "I would say that the reason is that the increase was increase in cost of raw material transportation, labor . . . I don't know but I would judge that our people made a check up and found that price rise was the thing to do. That would be my opinion." (D-296) Although the gentleman making this statement had seventeen years' experience in the marketing end of the oil industry and admitted a knowledge of the operation of one of the largest companies, the explanation could not be used by the most able accountant or economist as a basis for computing the necessity of an increase in price.

Prior to this gentleman's explanation of increased prices being the result of increased costs, the testimony recorded many statements from officials of leading oil companies to the effect that the computation of cost of manufacturing a single item such as gasoline was impossible, by reason of the fact that joint costs were involved in cost computation.

An official of another company explains simultaneous price changes among companies as a result of "general competitive knowledge." (D-348) Thus we have several conflicting statements from authoritative sources explaining price rises. One, an increase in cost; another "general competitive knowledge."

The same official who explained the increased prices in terms of increased costs subsequently brought forth a new explanation concerning a one-half cent increase in the price of gasoline east of the Allegheny Mountains. He states that his price increase occurred "because competition followed in the eastern part of the State." In the western part of the State, a one-half cent increase did not occur because "competition didn't seem to follow." (D-297)

PRICE LEADERSHIP AND SIMULTANEOUS PRICE CHANGES

Summary

The Commission has met with a frequent charge that large oil companies all change their prices simultaneously

The Commission finds that this is not a universal practice but that the price of groups of companies have followed each other very closely.

An additional feature of retail gasoline prices is the regional variation of price in the State of Pennsylvania. Ordinarily, the lowest price area is Philadelphia, the region north and west of Philadelphia as far as the Allegheny Mountains is the next highest in price and western Pennsylvania pays still a higher price. The margin between the different zones is one-half cent; that is, the price in Pittsburgh is one cent higher than that in Philadelphia.

What the Commission judges to be competent witnesses aver that there is no justification for regional prices in Pennsylvania for the same seller. Considering the prevalence of exchange of gasoline among companies, the avoidance of transportation costs should frequently disrupt the regional differences. In practice, it is where local competition prevails, that large companies desert the regional price formula, rather than where products are exchanged.

Even if the higher price of gasoline in Pittsburgh arises from transportation costs, arbitrary fixation of prices still exists, for the difference between Pittsburgh and Philadelphia wholesale prices is ordinarily one cent or more, while the pipeline transportation cost for gasoline between these two points is only eight-tenths of a cent a gallon. Moreover, the companies have submitted no data to prove that the actual cost is as high as the posted tariff. It may be lower.

Over a period of months, the wholesale price of gasoline in Pittsburgh averaged $.015 per gallon above the Philadelphia price. This indicates an unwarranted regional inflexibility of price.

Price Wars

Competition, which is so much emphasized by the officials of the oil companies, may be given greater credence in the field of retailing than elsewhere. In retailing we find frequent price wars in which merchants sell products at cost or at less than cost. The fact that such price wars do not occur in the sale of the same commodities among the large companies is an eloquent indication of the difference in the degree of competition as between retail marketing and all other phases of the industry.

One small retailer in Pittsburgh reports the cost of a recent war to him to have been $30 per day. (B-308) A card arriving at a retail station signed "Executive Committee" usually announces the termination of a price war. (B-324) The Commitee referred to is the executive committee of a retail gasoline dealers association. Occasionally several months of effort on the part of the retail association is required to re-establish uniformity of price.

In order to be fair to the large supplying companies, it must be noted that the establishment of uniform prices by retail gasoline dealers associations amounts to elimination of price competition. In establishing unformity of retail prices more persons are involved than in the establishment of uniform prices among large companies. Therefore, the retail price control method receives more publicity.

Blockades are sometimes used by interested retailers to force price cutters into line when a price war is imminent. In Pittsburgh, a large number of motorists who were opposed to price cutting drove into the McConnel Service Stations to buy gasoline and proffered one hundred dollar bills in payment. The problem of changing so many large bills paralyzed the business of these stations and the presence of the cars in the drive-ways completed the blockade. In an attempt to combat the blockade, these service stations posted a schedule of charges for service as follows: To fill a battery with water, 50 cents; air in one tire, 10 cents; air in two tires, 19 cents; check oil, 10 cents; fill radiator, 25 cents; wipe rear window, 15 cents. (B-73)

Melodrama sometimes accompanies the efforts of retail organizations to stabilize retail prices. Mr. Stevens, a retail dealer of Philadelphia, recites his experience as follows: ". . . and about twenty minutes later I had a delegation call on me that Mr. 'X' had picked out with a well known Philadelphia gangster at the head of them. . . Well anyway, they visited me and I was a little too smart for them and called the cops and they got locked up . . . well I got the drop on them and by that I mean that I had two 32 calibers, one in each hand and I meant business." (D-1184)

The consumer's price is frequently affected by what are called price wars. The principal characteristic is the general break in the curb price, which results from competition among dealers to increase the gallonage. These are sometimes precipitated by track side buyers selling as low as three cents under the curb price. (B-306) At other times independent operators or tank car buyers will give secret rebates to retail purchasers and draw established gallonage from other stations until these cut prices in an attempt to regain the lost gallonage. (B-274)

The price war usually has three results. It gives the motorist gasoline at bargain prices. It causes financial loss to participating dealers. The third effect is the ultimate cooperation of warring retailers by which they agree, through retail dealers associations, to return to uniform prices.

Subsidization

Subsidization is in the nature of a gift. In retail marketing, these gifts run from the oil company to the retailer. The furnishing of pumps, buildings, driveways, islands, the lending of money and the paying of rental of three to four hundred dollars a year for the privilege of placing an oil company sign on the retail station property, are examples of subsidization.

An analysis of marketing subsidizations is important for the reason that it gives the subsidized retailer an advanage over unsubsidized competitors. Whatever the purpose of subsidization may be, its effect is discriminatory. Since subsidization is usually a trade secret, the unsubsidized dealer posses no means of combotting the practice nor of even discovering its existence. In competing with a neighborhood dealer, he may sink slowly into bankruptcy and never discover that the reason for his demise and his competitor's survival has been secret subsidization.

Since subsidization amounts to a secret rebate upon merchandise sold to the dealer by the supplying company, it is equivalent to a price discrimination. If competition is to perform its function in our economic system, there must be full and easily accessible information regarding both the direct price and the indirect rebates which determine the final price at which commodities sell. Where subsidization exists in retail marketing this vital element is lacking.

Subsidization of retail stations by large companies is a generally accepted trade practice in the Philadelphia area. (D-1136) It is evinced by the fact that one company supplied electrical pumps, a number of five hundred and fifty gallon tanks, five thirty-gallon hiboys, one roto washer, one computing pump and one air compressor to fifteen different stations. (D-1097) One beneficiary of this subsidization admitted that the company furnished nearly all the equipment needed for each station including a hydraulic hoist for automobiles worth three hundred and fifty dollars. (D-1102) These gifts did not exhaust the largess of the company in question for they also prepared the islands for the installation of pumps and underwrote the station operator's credit for the amount of $12,000. (D-1104)

An official of another company also admits what appears to be a similar practice but claims that the materials are rented to the station operator. In connection with this reported renting of equipment there arises further question as to the value of equipment, rate of depreciation, a fair rental price and the possibility of remitting the rental after it has been paid. Therefore, although there may be a regular relationship of lessor and lessee, renting does not remove subsidization from its cloud of secrecy. If anything, the renting of equipment increases the impossibility of preventing subsidization, from becoming discriminatory.

With respect to rental prices and the difficulty of preventing subsidization, one large company reports that a station valued at over sixty thousand dollars rents for sixty dollars a year. This means a return of less than one per cent. After the owning company has set aside the returns from rental for the payment of taxes and depreciation, the net return to the oil company on such an investment must be below zero. Thus the retailer using this station in compeition with retailers owning similar properties receives a subsidization of approximately twenty-five hundred dollars every year. Under these circumstances even a rugged individualistic competitor can have little hope of successfully establishing his own business with his own capital.

A single oil company owning more than seventy stations in Pennsylvania which have been leased for operation receives such a low rental that the average for all stations amounts to less than two per cent of the depreciated value of the stations.

To properly care for depreciation, taxes and other expenses incidental to independent ownership, it would be necessary to have an average ratio of at least eight and one-half per cent.

CHAPTER V

Price Reporting Publications

In the oil industry it is not customary to sell gasoline over a period of time such as a year at a definite price of say fifteen cents per gallon. Therefore, organizations which wish to make an arrangement with a supplying company so that they will have an uninterrupted supply, find it necessary to base their contracts upon day to day quotations of market prices in one of the price reporting publications. It is estimated that over two hundred million gallons of gasoline are sold annually in Pennsylvania upon the basis of such quotations.

From the testimony it is discovered that an important price reporting publication does not meet the minimum requirements of an accurate reporting service. The prices are not arrived at by taking all the prices in a marketing area as the basis for computing the average prices for the day. In arriving at the reported price for a certain day for No. 4 fuel oil only four out of thirteen companies in the Philadelphia area were contracted. (824) In addition, one price reporting publication sometimes does not reflect the lowest prices paid. (D-233)

With respect to sales of gasoline, there are generally speaking, three different types of tank car sales. One is for tank car deliveries to retail dealers, one to commercial consumers and one to distributor-jobbers. (790) A well known price reporting publication reports only the tank car price for jobbers. (D-790) This is manifestly inadequate. A half picture is more likely to mislead than a whole picture or than no picture at all.

An agent of a price reporting service conducted his survey of prices in such a haphazard manner that he could not recall more than four contracts and had no log book to show what companies he had contacted during a period of gasoline price change only two weeks prior to his appearance as a witness. (802, 808, 816) The witness was questioned at length regarding his manner of arriving at the prices for the day. This with the purpose of discovering whether he used a uniform mathematical method. The following were the results:

Question: Now, the other way you can do it is to consult so many of the thirteen companies, who, in the Philadelphia market are selling No. 4 fuel oil in tank wagon quantities as you believe necessary, in your best judgment, to give you an indication of market trends and then you can announce your best judgment from that report so received by you, in conjunction with all your accumulated wisdom, and reflect and announce in the "blank" a posted price which is your judgment of the preponderant market.

Answer: That's correct.

Question: Was that what your are doing?

Answer: That's right.

Answer: No, not necessarily. (827)

Question: All that I am trying to get at is the extent to which the posted price of "blank" accurately reflects a reporting of the preponderant market prices posted by the marketers in the Philadelphia market. Now do I understand that instead of reporting the average arrived at, by careful survey of the market, it reflects your opinion based however many and whatever many that you deem it necessary to lead you to announce a judgment.

Answer: The market represents my opinion of the preponderant market on any given day. (816)

Instead of a uniform mathematical method of arriving at price quotations, the only uniformity discoverable was the uniform use of this witness' personal judgment of prices. Needless to say this is a far cry from standardized quotations based upon mathematical formulae.

Underlying this use of the personal judgment formula is the fact that he did not employ complete coverage of marketers.

unimportance of these price quotations to the public. The following testimony is the answer.

Question: Are you familiar with the practice of a good many companies operating in the Philadelphia and Pennsylvania market generally and particularly in the City of Philadelphia, in its municipal contracts, and the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, asking for bids and specifications based upon Mr. "blank's" judgment as announced in the "blank" posted price?

Answer: I don't recall any bids on that basis, no.

Question: Well, don't you know as a matter of fact, that all of municipal contracts in the City of Philadelphia today, the specifications announced and the bids solicited and contracts awarded were based on "blank's" posted price for the various grades of oils and gasolines in the Philadelphia market?

Answer: No, I did not know that.

Question: You didn't realize how important you were to this industry?

Answer: No, frankly, I didn't. (829, 830)

Thus the witness seemed to realize for the first time that the flow of money from pocket to pocket was accelerated or reparted by his judgment of market prices. (D-829) There arises the question as to the extent to which the bank balances of supplying companies and consumers may have been affected by the witness' innocent judgment.

GENERAL CONCLUSION

The Oil Industry In Pennsylvania: An Integropoly

Considering the definition given the term monopoly by some of our courts to the effect that monopoly exists only where there is a complete control of the supply of a commodity, the Commission avoids the use of this term. It does not judge the oil industry in Pennsylvania in terms of the presence of or the absence of monopoly.

Conditions of imperfect competition which develop in markets where there are relatively few sellers and many buyers is a common occurence in modern industrial nations. The methods by which the sellers cooperate in managing the market and maintaining prices beyond those which would exist in a freely competitive market vary. Cartels are common in Europe. The United States has developed trusts, holding companies and communities of interest, but the Commission does not consider any of these terms appropriate to the oil industry in Pennsylvania.

The rapid present day technological and economic developments in industry frequently give rise to the need for new terms. Since it is desirable to describe the predominating characteristics of the industry in a single term, the Commission finds the term integropoly appropriate. Etymologically, the term comes from the Latin word integrare, meaning separate parts, which together make a unity, plus a Greek root, which gives us the syllable "opoly" to sell. Thus the combination of "integrare" and "opoly" or "integropoly" describes a unity composed of closely working parts which dominates the supplying of petroleum products to the public.
